Plane Crash Probers Say Big Bird Hit

Official Reports Impact Damaged Plane Stabilizer

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — Federal investigators said Saturday that an airliner which crashed killing all 17 persons aboard hit a large bird shortly before the crash which could have had a serious effect on the plane.

Edward Slattery of the Civil Aeronautics Board told The Associated Press that remains of a large bird—probably a goose or swan—were found on the left stabilizer of the United Air Lines Viscount. He said the stabilizer had been punctured by the impact.

CARCASS FOUND

The main carcass of the bird was found near the stabilizer, Slattery said.

He said the tail, which houses the stabilizer, was found a quarter of a mile away from the main wreckage and this leads investigators to believe the tail section broke off before the plane crashed.

The plane crashed and burned Friday on a farm 10 miles southwest of Baltimore.

The bird carcass was turned over to Maryland's chief medical examiner, Dr. Russell S. Fisher, for refrigeration and identification.

Slattery, CAB public information officer, also told newsmen that the pilot of the four-engine turboprop plane was warned by the approach control center in Washington a few minutes before the crash that there were birds in the area.

Slattery said the last plane crash because of birds was Oct. 4, 1960, when an Eastern Air Lines Electra crashed on takeoff at the Boston airport. A flock of starlings was sucked into the Electra engines.

The CAB official emphasized the Boston accident was not comparable because it involved the engines of the plane.

The viscount, en route from Newark, N.J., to Atlanta, Ga., was approaching Washington, D.C., for its first scheduled stop when it crashed.

Investigators split into eight groups with specific areas of responsibility at the crash scene, six miles from Ellicott City.

Raids On Cuba To Be Resumed By Exile Group

MIAMI (UPI)—A Cuban exile group known as "Commandos L-66" Saturday warned the Castro regime to expect new hit-and-run raids on Cuba now that the United States naval blockade has ended.

At the same time, Dr. Aureliano Sanchez Arango, leader of the triple-a organization, said in an interview that "the days of the terrorist regime of Cuba are numbered." Triple-a was originally founded by Sanchez Arango years ago for the underground struggle against deposted strongman Fulgencio Batista.

Commandos L-66 is the new name of the old Alpha 66 organization which recently split up into two groups. One group adopted the new name, the other retained the name Alpha 66.

A spokesman for Commandos L-66 said:

"We are going to renew raids on Cuba as soon as possible. We now have enough money to carry out the first new action."

Ignoring apparent United States policy toward discouraging such raids, the spokesman appealed to both Cuban exiles and Americans to support the group's military plans with contributions.

REFUSE TO PAY FINES

Amish Jailed Over Schools

INDEPENDENCE, Iowa (AP) — Eight bearded Amish men went to jail here Saturday in protest against what they said was state interference with the operation of their private schools.

In Justice of the Peace Court they refused to pay fines of $10 on misdemeanor charges of failing to hire certified teachers for their two schools in this northeast Iowa community.

ONE PAYS FINE

For the simple farm life of their religious sect, the Amish contended that their own teachers with only an eighth-grade education are sufficient for their children. They said they do not have enough money to pay for college-trained teachers required by state law.

Two other Amish men had been arrested. One of them paid the fine. The other was in a hospital and could not appear.

Three-day jail sentences were imposed by Justice of the Peace Joe Koeppel for the eight, including one of their number, Dan Bontrager, who acted as spokesman.

Bontrager argued that his people were protected by constitutional guarantees of the right to religious freedom and right of petition.

CHRISTMAS FUNDS

Goodfellows Set Annual Drive

It's Goodfellows time again. Today marks the official beginning of this year's fund raising campaign to finance Goodfellows, the local charity founded 28 years ago to help needy children and their families at Christmas time.

Founded in 1934 by Wilson Ewing, late publisher of the News-Star—World, and B. B. Martin, a Monroe businessman, Goodfellows has been one of the most generously supported charities in the Twin Cities.

Hundreds of families are helped every year with groceries, toys and clothing at Christmas. Contributions go 100 per cent for the purchase of food and clothing. There are no salaries, fees or any other expenses. All work in connection with the program is donated.

HEAD DRIVE

As usual this year's campaign will be headed by Martin and Jack Hesketh, director of the Monroe Recreation Department.

No personal solicitations are made on behalf of Goodfellows. Contributions are accepted through an appeal conducted by the News - Star — World.

Requests for assistance is likewise received, by mail, at the News- Star — World. All requests for aid are screened to determine whether or not the appeal is justified.

All mail, contributions and donations, should be sent to: Goodfellows, c-o News-Star — World, Monroe, La.

As in years past, the News-Star and Morning World will run a list of contributors to the fund.

"It is imperative that we get enough money to take care of the numerous requests we are sure to get," Martin said. He said that

EXPENSIVE PROBLEM

Ship Now Is Home To Unwanted Man

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Joaquim Reimunto, the man without a country, isn't without a home.

He has found one aboard the British cargo ship Bristol City.

The ship's owners find him an expensive problem, but the crewmen love him.

He swears he's from Uruguay, but Uruguay won't claim him.

He says he "no speak English," but laughs at stories in American newspapers.

He's an unwanted passenger, but he may be with the ship for life.

Reimunto stowed away aboard the Bristol City in Norfolk in August, hiding in a ventilator for five days.

The ship returned to port Saturday, to load tobacco at docks in Berkley.

The Spanish-speaking stowaway was under guard in the ship's sick bay. Last month, left alone there, he climbed out a porthole in the port of New York and spent two days in Manhattan before immigration officials found him in a bar.

"He left in old clothes," said the ship's steward, "but when they found him he was in the midst of a bunch of bums, and he was wearing a new suit."

Reimunto's excursion cost Charles Hill & Sons, the Bristol City's owners, $1,000 a day in fines for "permitting" the illegal entry into the United States. They now pay $25 a day to post security guards to watch him.

The whole affair has made Capt. James N. Ramsey, the ship's master touchy. "See the ship's agents," he told a reporter Saturday. He would answer no questions.

JFK To Visit Cuban Crisis U.S. Bases

Georgia, Florida Installations On Agenda For Tour

HYANNIS PORT, Mass., (AP) — President Kennedy will make a one-day visit Monday to military men sent to the Georgia-Florida area because of the Cuban crisis, the summer White House announced Saturday.

The President's fast tour will begin near Savannah, Ga., and will take him to Army, Navy and Air Force installations as far south as Key West, Fla., which is 90 miles from Cuba.

PLANS DISCLOSED

Andrew T. Hatcher, assistant White House press secretary, said the President will talk with officers and men at several of the bases he visits.

At Homestead Air Force Base, south of Miami, Fla., the President will see the advance headquarters for the Cuban operation. The top command was under Adm. Robert L. Dennison, commander of the Atlantic Fleet at Norfolk, Va.

The President called off his planned trip to Cambridge, Mass. Saturday to see the Harvard-Yale football game because of the prospect of rainy weather.

Hatcher said the President's brothers, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and Sen.-elect Edward M. Kennedy, with their wives and some other weekend guests, flew to Boston in the family plane Caroline for the game. The younger brothers, like the President, went to Harvard and played football as students there.

The President announced his selection of another Harvard man, Dean Francis Keppel of the Harvard School of Eduction, for appointment to the $10,000-a-year post as U.S. commissioner of education.

Howling Storm Fades Out In Northeast Area

By United Pres International

The last breaths of a vast howling autumn storm blew light snow into Pennsylvania, New York and New England Saturday.

Four inches fell on Utica, N. Y., in six hours, and Massena, N. Y., and Burlington, Vt., got two inches. Total accumulation in Maine was up to four inches.

The vigorous storm which was spawned in the Midwest Friday, reached western New York by sunrise Saturday, and an associated cloud shield covered the northeastern states.

Eight inches of snow fell in Minnesota during the storm. Traffic in the twin cities of Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn., was snarled by a five-inch snowfall.

Gusty winds whipped the St. Louis, Mo., area during the storm and tore up an estimated 2,000 square feet of roofing at Kiel auditorium. More than $30,000 worth of Christmas decorations were shredded at Sioux City, Iowa.

Blustery gales whipped the Washington and Oregon coastlines Saturday. Tatoosh Island was lashed by 50-mile-an-hour winds and Oregon had 80 mile an hour blasts.

Showers and drizzle fell in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona.

The Weather Bureau said a sprawling system of high barometer readings caused clear skies and freezing temperatures in the Southeast. To the northwest, the mercury fell to 5 below at Butte, Mont., Saturday morning.

Traffic Toll For Holiday Varies Little

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation's accident death toll for the Thanksgiving weekend showed little variation from those of recent years.

In recent years, the four-day Thanksgiving traffic tolls and those from all types of accidents were: 1958, 454 (626); 1959, 445 (650); 1960, 442 (608), and 1961, 457 (602).

ENDS SUNDAY

The current count began at 6 p.m., local time, Wednesday and ends at midnight Sunday.

With its large proportion of traffic fatalities, it underscored the dangers that lurk in highway travel during the Thanksgiving holiday.

Yet Thanksgiving traditionally is not as perilous as Christmas, when drinking is usually prevalent, or Independence Day, when midsummer outdoor pastimes are at their height.

The record four-day holiday death toll from traffic accidents — 706—was set at Christmas 1956. The highest over-all accident death toll of 924 was counted during the four-day Independence Day holiday in 1961.

For comparative purposes, the Associated Press surveyed a non-holiday, four-day weekend. During the 102-hour comparison period there were 459 traffic fatalities, 30 fire victims and 113 killed in miscellaneous accidents. This toll of 602 was recorded from 6 p.m. Wednesday Nov. 7 to midnight Sunday, Nov. 11.

COSTS IN BILLIONS

Test Aircraft Contract Let

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Dynamics Corp. was picked by the Pentagon Saturday to develop the first test planes in what will become a multibillion-dollar program for building universal design fighter aircraft for the Air Force and Navy.

The Defense Department said this "will surpass any fighter aircraft program since World War II in both numbers and dollars."

No specific cost figures were given, but unofficial guesses were that upward of $5 billion could go into production of well over 1,500 aircraft.

General Dynamics, with Grumman Corp., as an associate, will build 22 test planes, with the first to be delivered within the next 2½ years.

Saturday's award was for development and building of the test planes and not for production. That will come after the development program has reached an advanced point.

The contest for the development contract was one of the hardest fought in the aircraft industry in years. A few months ago, it narrowed down from an original 10 companies to two of the titans of the industry, General Dynamics and the Boeing Co.

What Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara wants is a jet fighter plane that, with some relatively small differences in size and weight and with the ability to change configuration of its wings while in flight, can fly Air Force, Navy or Marine missions.

To make this possible, General Dynamics is to design a plane which:

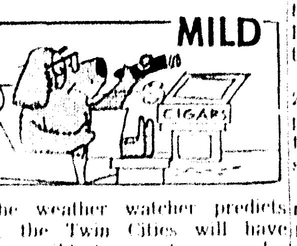
1. Flies at about 1,400 miles an hour top speed and at supersonic speed at sea level.

2. Can take off and land on short, rough airfields in forward battle areas or be launched and recovered by aircraft carriers.

3. "Can fly anywhere in the world in one day," through use of aerial refueling.

4. Can use either conventional or nuclear weapons against targets on the ground or enemy planes in the air.

The plane will have a two-man crew. Its complicated radar equipment and weapons system will require more than just a pilot's attention.



The weather watcher predicts that the Twin Cities will have more mild temperatures under partly cloudy skies today, with the same forecast to extend into Monday.

The mercury is expected to range from a high of around 70 today to a low of between 46 and 50 tonight.

Saturday's extremes consisted of a maximum reading of 70 and a minimum 41.

No precipitation was recorded in the vicinity Saturday and none is predicted for today.

Sunrise will be at 6:47 a.m. today with sunset at 5:03 p.m.

SPECIALISTS LAST HOPE

Wee Lass Facing Life Of Darkness

NEW YORK (AP) — A wee Bonnie lass was brought here Saturday from Scotland in a last ditch effort to save her from a life of darkness.

Margaret McKeown was flown from her native Glasgow, Scotland, in the hope that specialists can stem the ravages of a disease that in her 19 months of life has claimed the sight of one eye and threatens to blind the other.

The child's mother, Mrs. Mary McKeown, a 38-year-old housewife and mother of three other children, expressed hope "they may be able to help my child."

She said her youngest daughter slept during most of the jet flight from London, sponsored by the wife of an American financier who read of Margaret's plight in newspapers.

A tumor, of a type most common in infants and children, forced physicians to remove Margaret's left eye some months ago. Since that time, however, the tumor spread to the right eye and it was feared that eye too would have to be removed.

Then Mrs. Joseph Gales Ramsey III, wife of a Reno financier, heard of Margaret's case and began to call physicians to see what hope they could offer.

She was told that a Dr. A. B. Reece might be able to help the child if she were brought to the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York.

Mrs. Ramsey quickly turned from a patient in Mayo Clinic to combination banker, State Department attache and diplomat. In less than three days, all formalities had been cleared and Margaret was on her way.

Talks Begin On Western Military Aid

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India Saturday asked Communist China for "clarification" of its three - day border war cease-fire.

It was the first Indian diplomatic recognition of the one-sided truce offer and came as U. S. and British teams began formal talks on massive military aid for India.

OFFER AID

London dispatches said the British and American missions in New Delhi had been instructed to tell Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru the two nations were ready to give India "any assistance" requested whether it accepted Peking's truce terms.

The battle fronts remained quiet with only Indian patrol activities reported in the Ladakh area of Kashmir in the west and along the North East Frontier Agency in the east. India has been tacitly observing the cease fire while the government had the truce offer under consideration.

Red China however, was still maintaining a tough policy. One Peking broadcast demanded that India release the hundreds of Chinese nationals interned under India's emergency regulations now in effect. Another accused Nehru of "still crying for a long drawn out war."

With tensions easing somewhat along the border residents who fled the Assm town of Tezpur in path of the Communist threat were returning to their homes. But the return was difficult because, for one thing, some officials before fleeing freed residents of insane asylums, prisons and some hospitals.

3 Escape Reds After Icy River Swim To West

BERLIN (UPI) — Three young East Germans swam an icy river to the American sector of West Berlin Saturday and were undetected in their escape to freedom.

The swimmers, aged 19, 22 and 27, were picked up by West Berlin police on a snow-covered bank of the river. They were hospitalized suffering from exposure.

The Communist East German news agency, meanwhile, charged that arsonists had set fire to an electric transformer on the Communist operated elevated railway between East and West Berlin. It said the fire temporarily interrupted service on the line.

West Berlin police denied any knowledge of such a fire.

The Communist ADN agency said the transformer was located in the American sector of West Berlin.

The Red agency said that "this sabotage act against elevated traffic in West Berlin created great dangers for long distance rail traffic to and from West Germany."

The Communists long have threatened that interference with West Berlin's elevated traffic, operated by the Communists under four-power agreements, might have repercussions on Western rail access to Berlin.

Plane Crash Probers Say Big Bird Hit

Official Reports Impact Damaged Plane Stabilizer

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. (AP) — Federal investigators said Saturday that an airliner which crashed killing all 17 persons aboard hit a large bird shortly before the crash which could have had a serious effect on the plane.

Edward Slattery of the Civil Aeronautics Board told The Associated Press that remains of a large bird—probably a goose or swan—were found on the left stabilizer of the United Air Lines Viscount. He said the stabilizer had been punctured by the impact.

CARCASS FOUND

The main carcass of the bird was found near the stabilizer, Slattery said.

He said the tail, which houses the stabilizer, was found a quarter of a mile away from the main wreckage and this leads investigators to believe the tail section broke off before the plane crashed.

The plane crashed and burned Friday on a farm 10 miles southwest of Baltimore.

The bird carcass was turned over to Maryland's chief medical examiner, Dr. Russell S. Fisher, for refrigeration and identification.

Slattery, CAB public information officer, also told newsmen that the pilot of the four-engine turboprop plane was warned by the approach control center in Washington a few minutes before the crash that there were birds in the area.

Slattery said the last plane crash because of birds was Oct. 4, 1960, when an Eastern Air Lines Electra crashed on takeoff at the Boston airport. A flock of starlings was sucked into the Electra engines.

Investigators split into eight groups with specific areas of responsibility at the crash scene, six miles from Ellicott City.

The record four-day holiday death toll from traffic accidents—706—was set at Christmas 1956. The highest over-all accident death toll of 924 was counted during the four-day Independence Day holiday in 1961.

For comparative purposes, the Associated Press surveyed a non-holiday, four-day weekend. During the 102-hour comparison period there were 459 traffic fatalities, 30 fire victims and 113 killed in miscellaneous accidents. This toll of 602 was recorded from 6 p.m. Wednesday Nov. 7 to midnight Sunday, Nov. 11.

COSTS IN BILLIONS

Test Aircraft Contract Let

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Dynamics Corp. was picked by the Pentagon Saturday to develop the first test planes in what will become a multibillion-dollar program for building universal design fighter aircraft for the Air Force and Navy.

The Defense Department said this "will surpass any fighter aircraft program since World War II in both numbers and dollars."

No specific cost figures were given, but unofficial guesses were that upward of $5 billion could go into production of well over 1,500 aircraft.

General Dynamics, with Grumman Corp., as an associate, will build 22 test planes, with the first to be delivered within the next 2½ years.

Saturday's award was for development and building of the test planes and not for production. That will come after the development program has reached an advanced point.

The contest for the development contract was one of the hardest fought in the aircraft industry in years. A few months ago, it narrowed down from an original 10 companies to two of the titans of the industry, General Dynamics and the Boeing Co.

What Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara wants is a jet fighter plane that, with some relatively small differences in size and weight and with the ability to change configuration of its wings while in flight, can fly Air Force, Navy or Marine missions.

To make this possible, General Dynamics is to design a plane which:

1. Flies at about 1,400 miles an hour top speed and at supersonic speed at sea level.

2. Can take off and land on short, rough airfields in forward battle areas or be launched and recovered by aircraft carriers.

3. "Can fly anywhere in the world in one day," through use of aerial refueling.

4. Can use either conventional or nuclear weapons against targets on the ground or enemy planes in the air.

The plane will have a two-man crew. Its complicated radar equipment and weapons system will require more than just a pilot's attention.

The weather watcher predicts that the Twin Cities will have more mild temperatures under partly cloudy skies today, with the same forecast to extend into Monday.

The mercury is expected to range from a high of around 70 today to a low of between 46 and 50 tonight.

Saturday's extremes consisted of a maximum reading of 70 and a minimum 41.

No precipitation was recorded in the vicinity Saturday and none is predicted for today.

Sunrise will be at 6:47 a.m. today with sunset at 5:03 p.m.

SPECIALISTS LAST HOPE

Wee Lass Facing Life Of Darkness

NEW YORK (AP) — A wee Bonnie lass was brought here Saturday from Scotland in a last ditch effort to save her from a life of darkness.

Margaret McKeown was flown from her native Glasgow, Scotland, in the hope that specialists can stem the ravages of a disease that in her 19 months of life has claimed the sight of one eye and threatens to blind the other.

The child's mother, Mrs. Mary McKeown, a 38-year-old housewife and mother of three other children, expressed hope "they may be able to help my child."

She said her youngest daughter slept during most of the jet flight from London, sponsored by the wife of an American financier who read of Margaret's plight in newspapers.

A tumor, of a type most common in infants and children, forced physicians to remove Margaret's left eye some months ago. Since that time, however, the tumor spread to the right eye and it was feared that eye too would have to be removed.

Then Mrs. Joseph Gales Ramsey III, wife of a Reno financier, heard of Margaret's case and began to call physicians to see what hope they could offer.

She was told that a Dr. A. B. Reece might be able to help the child if she were brought to the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York.

Mrs. Ramsey quickly turned from a patient in Mayo Clinic to combination banker, State Department attache and diplomat. In less than three days, all formalities had been cleared and Margaret was on her way.

Talks Begin On Western Military Aid

NEW DELHI (UPI) — India Saturday asked Communist China for "clarification" of its three - day border war cease-fire.

It was the first Indian diplomatic recognition of the one-sided truce offer and came as U. S. and British teams began formal talks on massive military aid for India.

OFFER AID

London dispatches said the British and American missions in New Delhi had been instructed to tell Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru the two nations were ready to give India "any assistance" requested whether it accepted Peking's truce terms.

The battle fronts remained quiet with only Indian patrol activities reported in the Ladakh area of Kashmir in the west and along the North East Frontier Agency in the east. India has been tacitly observing the cease-fire while the government had the truce offer under consideration.

Red China however, was still maintaining a tough policy. One Peking broadcast demanded that India release the hundreds of Chinese nationals interned under India's emergency regulations now in effect. Another accused Nehru of "still crying for a long drawn out war."

With tensions easing somewhat along the border residents who fled the Assm town of Tezpur in path of the Communist threat were returning to their homes. But the return was difficult because, for one thing, some officials before fleeing freed residents of insane asylums, prisons and some hospitals.

3 Escape Reds After Icy River Swim To West

BERLIN (UPI) — Three young East Germans swam an icy river to the American sector of West Berlin Saturday and were undetected in their escape to freedom.

The swimmers, aged 19, 22 and 27, were picked up by West Berlin police on a snow-covered bank of the river. They were hospitalized suffering from exposure.

The Communist East German news agency, meanwhile, charged that arsonists had set fire to an electric transformer on the Communist operated elevated railway between East and West Berlin. It said the fire temporarily interrupted service on the line.

West Berlin police denied any knowledge of such a fire.

The Communist ADN agency said the transformer was located in the American sector of West Berlin.

The Red agency said that "this sabotage act against elevated traffic in West Berlin created great dangers for long distance rail traffic to and from West Germany."

The Communists long have threatened that interference with West Berlin's elevated traffic, operated by the Communists under four-power agreements, might have repercussions on Western rail access to Berlin.

Pakistan Pact Offer Is Said Isolation Attempt

By HENRY S. BRADSHER

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—The reported offer by Communist China to sign a nonaggression pact with Pakistan is regarded here as an effort to isolate India by two countries that have no other common interests.

Official Indian circles expressed this attitude Saturday on the basis of reports from Pakistan that President Mohammad Ayub Khan had received an offer for such a pact from Peking. The reports are not officially confirmed.

India and Pakistan have lived in bitter enmity since they were created by partition of British India, and fought over which would get Kashmir State. India and Red China are locked in a bloody border struggle, now in an uneasy cease-fire.

The only apparent bond between anti-Communist Pakistan and Communist China is their common enmity with India. It's a relatively new arrangement, and may not be lasting.

For it was in a large part fear of Red China, as well as India, that prompted Pakistan to join the Western camp and begin taking U.S. arms in 1954. At that time, neutralist India and Red China, despite the border differences, were on friendly terms and jointly assailed Pakistan's then new alignment.

Since India's border dispute with China flared into charges of aggression in 1959, however, New Delhi has been cool toward Peking. Now, after a month of undeclared war, India is seeing only the bad side of China.

Pakistan, on the other hand, is finding the good side that India once saw. This began in Pakistan as part of anger over President Kennedys emphasis on the importance of economic aid to India and what Pakistanis considered Washington's coolness toward a staunch anti-Communist ally. As a result, voices began to be heard in Pakistan questioning its membership in two anti-Communist alliances—the Central Treaty Organization and the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Simultaneously, a new, more friendly phase began in Pakistani-Red Chinese relations. The two countries have already agreed to talk over differences on the border between Pakistan-controlled Kashmir and Red China.

It is felt in New Delhi that a nonaggression pact between them would be a logical development if each side believes it is gaining from it.

On Red China's side, it is seen as part of the pattern of isolating India. Red China has already settled its border disputes with Burma and Nepal and appears to be trying to cast India as out of step and therefore in the wrong.

On the Pakistani side, such a pact would be considered by them as a slap at the United States for paying more attention to nonaligned India then to allied Pakistan.

By helping isolate India, Pakistan could expect to lessen what it considers a real threat of Indian aggression over Kashmir.

However, official circles in New Delhi express the hope that any agreement between Pakistan and Red China now will be more a marriage of convenience rather than a lasting arrangement. Pakistan is considered still basically a Westernized nation with anti-Communist military leadership.

Alabama accidents have taken at least 10 victims during the long Thanksgiving holiday period, including nine in traffic and another in a shooting, a survey showed Saturday.

The death count began at 6 p.m. Wednesday and ends at midnight Sunday.

Charles H. Brannon, 62, of Lineville in Clay County, was killed Saturday when his car went out of control on a curve near Lineville.

A one-car smashup near Selma early Saturday killed a Birmingham woman, Hattie G. Williams, 60. Two Negro men were also injured as the car in which the three were riding ran off Alabama Highway 5 at Safford and struck a tree. The injured were hospitalized at Selma.

Airliner Bomb Threats Turn Out To Be Hoax

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A bomb threat caused a brief flurry Saturday night for two airlines, but it turned out to be a hoax.

Ginger Halpin, an employe of Trans Air Lines in Lafayette, received a telephone call from a man who told her: "Emergency. Emergency. There's a bomb on the next flight out."

Miss Halpin notified Lafayette police and Eastern Air Lines. Trans had flown its last plane for the night but Eastern flight 384 was just taking off for Baton Rouge.

Lafayette police asked the Eastern plane to stay on ground to be searched, but it took off on the 30-minute flight to Baton Rouge.

En route, the crew checked the baggage that had been put on at Lafayette, and found nothing.

A spokesman for Eastern Air Lines here said the original call was apparently a hoax. He warned that there are high federal penalties for telephone bomb threats.

Cubans Report Mikoyan Will Leave Sunday

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Havana radio said Saturday night Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan would bid farewell to the Cuban people Sunday.

The announcement did not say just when Mikoyan planned to leave. The broadcast heard here said he would make his farewell appearace on television at 8 p.m.

Mikoyan arrived in Havana on Nov. 2, shortly after the Soviet Union decided to pull its missiles out of Cuba, on what was believed to be a fence-mending mission.

There has been no explanation for the prolonged length of his stay or official announcement on his discussions with Prime Minister Fidel Castro and other Cuban leaders.

Star Arrives In Twin Cities For Appearance

An 18-year-old attractive blue-eyed, blonde film star who said she taught Elvis Presley how to do the twist, arrived here Saturday for an appearance along with other Hollywood luminaries at the Joy Drive-In Theatre today.

She is Nancy Czar, who co-starred with Arch Hall Jr. in "Wild Guitar," which is showing at the drive-in today. The stars will team with Alan O'Day playing an electric piano and Dave Sullivan, drummer, in staging a 40-minute rock and roll stage show at 8:30 p.m. O'Day was musical director of the "Wild Guitar" film, and along with Sullivan and Hall, scored the music for the production. All of them are teenagers.

This is Hall's third film and Miss Czar's first. She won ice-skating championship laurels in the 1960 Olympics at Squaw Valley, Calif. In today's appearance she will sing and do the twist. Hall will sing and play the electric guitar.

DELEGATION TO ARCHBISHOP

CINCINNATI (AP) — Archbishop Karl J. Alter was breakfasting after dedicating a 12-room addition at St. Vivian School, Finneytown, when 12-year-old Tim Bien appeared at the head of a small delegation.

Tim had this suggestion: "Your Grace, I've been thinking how nice it would be if you'd give us a free day in honor of this dedication."

The archbishop decided it would be nice. Tim and his schoolmates got the day off.

AND NOT FOOLPROOF

Seismic Detection Means Complicated

By DORIAN FALK

GENEVA (AP)—High Western diplomats Saturday night described a suggested system of robot seismic stations to monitor a nuclear weapons test ban as extremely complicated and expensive and apparently not even foolproof.

They were referring to the black box idea, a proposed worldwide belt of sealed instruments.

Both the United States and Britain have said they are willing to discuss the idea—first raised in the London Pugwash Conference in September and picked up by Soviet officials in Moscow, Geneva and New York.

Western diplomats expect the Russians to submit a detailed proposal after the reopening of the 17-nation disarmament conference Monday.

Western officials said American and British scientists have found many flaws in the black box idea, which the Russians contend could eliminate the need for international on-site inspection—on which the two Western powers insist—and could solve the East-West deadlock over how the proposed nationally manned stations should be run.

As far as is known, the idea is that the sealed seismic recorders, each weighing up to 400 pounds, would be distributed over the world's landmass, including the Soviet Union.

They would be replaced every week. Used recorders would be flown to the proposed Vienna headquarters of the International Test Ban Treaty Commission. There technicians would scan the tapes for possible recordings indicating a clandestine nuclear explosion.

Only a commission official would be allowed to break the seals.

The sources said Western scientists maintain a test ban violator could almost completely—and almost at will—distort the seismic tape readings without even touching the box.

The Western side feels that between 500 and 1,000 recorders would be required for the Soviet Union alone. Diplomats said this number was confirmed even by Soviet scientists at the Pugwash meeting.

Western diplomats said that in their New York discussions with Western negotiators Soviet officials have given the impression they are thinking of a much smaller number of stations.

The sources said a robot system of many thousand units that would have to be replaced every week from all over the world would involve enormous transport costs. It would require a staff of at least several hundred highly skilled technicians for scanning of the tapes.

And the initial capital costs alone would be far higher than the estimated $2.5 billion required for the original Geneva system of manned stations, and idea that has been abandoned by all three nuclear powers.

Mints Working Overtime In Coin Shortage

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The U.S. Mint said Saturday it will be working seven days a week around the clock for at least several weeks to try to fill the rising demand for coins.

Michael H. Sura, mint superintendent, said he has received $100,000 from Washington to pay the extra wages, but did not know how long it would last.

Until recently, the mine here has been operating two shifts a day, five days a week.

The coin shortage that has been plaguing the nation's banks in the past two years reportedly has grown worse in recent months. The increase in coin-operated machines was given as one reason.

Fire Razes Library At Old Mission

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP) — Flames raced through the rectory of famed San Juan Capistrano Mission on Saturday, destroying the library and thousands of books on theology.

The 187-year-old mission attached to the rectory was spared.

The California State Division of Forestry estimated damage at $25,000.

The mission, 70 miles south of Los Angeles, is famed for its legend that swarms of swallows return every March 19, St. Joseph's Day, to spend the summer, then migrate south again.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Vincent Lloyd-Russell, pastor, said the fire, which broke out in the library on the second floor of the rectory, heavily damaged living quarters as well.

He said no documents of historic significance were kept in the library. Ceiling beams in the room were from the original mission.

The mission was founded as part of a California chain in 1775 by Father Junipero Serra. It fell into disrepair, mainly because of earthquakes, early in the 19th century.

Restoration projects started after World War I have rebuilt it to nearly its original proportions.

NO CLASSES AT MUD

LOUDONVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Mud College still stands, but it's privately owned now and the building is used for storage.

A century ago, a teacher of a one-room log school remarked that the school was a college. "A mud cottage," someone suggested.

When the log school was torn down in the 1870s, and the present white frame structure built, the new school officially was named Mud College. The last classes were held in the building 25 years ago.

KNOWN AS 'IDEA MAN'

Harvard Educator Gets Federal Post

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — If President Kennedy was looking for leadership and administrative ability in the post of U.S. commissioner of education, he found it in Francis Keppel, dean of the Harvard faculty of education.

At a time when general interest in professional careers in education lagged—particularly in public education—the Harvard Graduate School of Education quadrupled its full-time enrollment and faculty, admission applications multiplied tenfold, and endowment more than doubled.

The man behind that story was Dean Keppel, now 46.

For 14 years he has directed the training of school teachers, administrators and other educational specialists, while also guiding research activities at the Harvard education school.

How do you get liberal arts graduates interested in careers in public school education when the impression exists there's no money in teaching, that the teacher is not respected, that it is hard to put up with politicians?

It takes an idea man. And that's what Keppel is: a man who can see a problem and looks for ways of tackling it. He's also an administrator who knows how to get a balance in faculty among the people who have know-how in education with assorted social scientists. The result? a lively ferment of ideas.

He perceived that research programs that led to doctorates in education were not necessarily geared to administration. On the contrary, they might be geared just to specialization and research in narrow fields. That was why he introduced programs that could lead to a different kind of education degree: doctorate in administrative education.

A rather short man with eyeglasses, who dresses with the care of a rising business executive, he is himself essentially an administrator. An administrator with a good sense of humor — the lighter touch. He can kid people—and get away with it. And he can get people to work together.

A sociable man, who likes to dance (when work doesn't crowd in on his private life), who enjoys (or used to enjoy) playing squash in winter and tennis in summer, he is also a father who has brought up two daughters.

A native New Yorker, he had a good background to start with in education: son of the late Frederick P. Keppel, dean of Columbia College and later president of the Carnegie Corp.

BANS PUBLIC MEETINGS

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI)—Nigerian Defense Minister Mohammed Ribadu Friday banned all public meetings and processions in the Lagos area for two months. The ban was believed linked with tension surrounding the current treason trial in which the leader of the action group opposition, Chief Obafemi Awolowo, and 25 others are accused of preparing a coup d'etat.

Even One Vaccine Shot Is Helpful Against Flu

EDITOR'S NOTE — The United States is expected to get a new wallop this winter from Asian flu, scientists say. Here's a last minute report on what science can do to help you fight off the effects of this disease which has contributed to the deaths of 90,000 Americans in the past five years.

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you are in a "high risk" group for influenza your best bet is to take antiflu vaccine sometime within the next two weeks. They could offer your last chance for protection against a new wallop from Asian flu expected to strike widespread areas of the United States this winter.

The malady, new to the world only in the last five years, has contributed to the deaths of 90,000 Americans and sickened many more thousands, notably in the devastating epidemic of 1957-58.

For various reasons the anticipated visitation this winter is not expected to approach the seriousness of the first great epidemic.

But, many outbreaks are forecast by the Public Health Service. The disease, while preventable, responds to no magic drug once it takes hold.

The service has recommended vaccination for everyone in high-risk groups—that is, those most likely to experience serious consequences if the flu hits them.

This would include everyone with a chronic debilitating disease, pregnant women, and everyone over 45.

And the service says vaccine supplies appear to be adequate for all of them.

This coming week, and possibly the week after, could be the last-chance weeks for getting vaccinated in time to do any good before the disease may begin to appear in this country. Based on most past experience for the various forms of influenza, including the Asian type, that would be around Dec. 15.

Getting vaccinated sometime in the next two weeks, preferably the first, could be very important. It takes from one to two weeks for an initial shot of vaccine to take effect in people who had no vaccination the previous year.

Ideally—if they were not vaccinated last year against flu — children aged 6 through 12, and adults starting with age 13, should have received two separate shots of vaccine this year, spaced two months apart, with the course of shots completed by mid-December.

For children 3 months old to school age who were not vaccinated last year, the ideal course calls for two initial shots, a week apart, followed by a booster about two months later—with completion by mid-December.

For all ages, a single shot this year is sufficient if these people were previously immunized.

ith a full course of shots, the vaccine is about 70 per cent effective—that is, about 7 out of 10 vaccinated people can expect to avoid the disease.

But, the following is also true: The two-month interval before the final shot is not absolutely necessary. An interval of only a month can still afford maximum protection.

Even a single dose can afford significant protection, says experts of the surgeon general's Advisory Committee on Influenza.

In the case of adults this can mean up to 60 per cent prevention, because most adults have previously been exposed naturally to Asian flu, and have thereby built up a small degree of basic immunity. In the case of children, even a single shot could be very valuable because, if illness were contracted, it would be relatively minor.

MISSING YOUNG GIRL

10-Year Mystery May Be Solved

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The weird mystery surrounding the disappearance of Connie Smith, young granddaughter of a former Wyoming governor, may be nearing a solution, 10 years after she vanished from a Connecticut girls' camp.

Bones found near Arizona's Grand Canyon were being examined by pathologists Saturday. Their findings, along with other evidence uncovered at the scene where the bones were found, prompted Undersheriff Clarke Cole of Coconino County, Ariz., to say in Denver the chances are "one in a million" that the body is not that of Connie.

If the findings are confirmed, Cole said, "We have a suspect. If he is in Connecticut, we'll have him in Arizona before long."

The officer refused to enlarge on the statement.

Cole said Connie's dentist, Dr. Floyd B. Ward of Spearfish, S.D., has identified dental work on a skull found in the Arizona wilderness as work he performed on the missing girl.

Hair samples taken from the skull are of the same texture as Connie's, he said. Laboratory tests are continuing.

The bones were found four years ago by a pair of hunters in a pine grove southeast of the Grand Canyon. In spring 1959, a road grader working on a dirt road 75 feet away uncovered clothing which officers believe was that of the victim.

Arizona officers estimate that the girl was 14 years old. Connie was 10 when she vanished on July 16, 1952.

The bones found in Arizona were filed away, and not until this fall did officers in Arizona and Connecticut compare notes on the Smith girl's disappearance and the Grand Canyon discovery.

If the bones are Connie's, officers still will have to penetrate a maze of challenging questions:

How did Connie get from Connecticut to Arizona?

How and where did she die?

Was she abducted, as most lawmen have believed? If so, by whom and for what purpose?

Connie's father is Peter Smith of Sundance, Wyo. Her mother died last Dec. 31 of an apparent heart attack. She is the granddaughter of former Wyoming Gov. Nels H. Smith.

requests are already coming in. "If we don't provide the food, toys and clothing many families in the Twin Cities won't have anything but another bleak day. It will mean some poor, little child won't have anything for Christmas," Martin said.

He asked that usable clothing and toys could be donated to the cause by delivering them to Hancock & Martin Equipment Company at 611 N. 8th street. "We must request that only usable items be donated. We are not equipped to repair or mend," he said.

Every year many churches donate one day's collection to the Goodfellows cause. Hundreds of individuals usually mail donations ranging from $1 each up to several hundred dollars.

While donations are usually generous, there are always many heart rendering appeals for assistance. Neighbors often write in appealing for needy cases that are often too proud to appeal for themselves.

Next week the newspaper will start publishing excerpts from letters that appeal for aid. The identity of the applicants will be kept anonymous.

ANTICOUNCIL STAND

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — The policy - making board of the Assemblies of God has adopted a resolution directing the denomination's ministers to refrain from any activity that would promote the ecumenical movement.

It is "contrary to the real Biblical doctrine of spiritual unity," the board said. The Rev. Thomas F. Zimmerman, general superintendent of the church, said the action meant keeping separate from the National and World Councils of Churches, which include most Protestant bodies.

mally accepting or rejecting the Chinese truce offer but Saturday a Foreign Ministry spokesman said Foreign Secretary M. J. Desai called in the Chinese charge d'affaires Friday and raised "several points which required clarification."

The Chinese charge d'affaires is obtaining clarification from Peking," he said.

The American aid mission in New Delhi is headed by Averill Harriman who led a similar mission to Moscow 21 years ago when Nazi Germany showed signs of overrunning all of Russia. The British mission is headed by Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys.

Diplomatic reports said they had been instructed to make the western stand of "any assistance" to Nehru and to assess speedily and on the spot the needs of the embattled country — including transport planes and even fighters and bombers.

Persistent reports in New Delhi said India was seeking F104 fighters flown by American pilots to defend the sprawling Indian cities against air attack by the Chinese Communists. Calcutta, particularly vulnerable, has a population of more than 6 million.

Diplomatic sources said behind the sweeping Anglo-American offer was the conviction that India will need massive support to bring her depleted defenses up to date even if India decides to accept the Chinese truce offer.

The sources said the West was not trying to bring neutral India into the western camp and that the West did not want to involve India in the cold war.

Stonewall Lodge No. 8 of Knights of Pythias will meet 8 p.m. Thursday in Castle Hall, 127½ St. John St., to elect officers for the coming year, it was announced by Paul Lazarus, chancellor commander.

Police Clear Burglary And Thefts

The clearing of several thefts and a burglary occupied Twin City police activities Saturday.

Monroe officers cleared the week - old burglary of the Negro American Legion Hall on Powell Avenue with the apprehension of a 17 - year - old and two Negro juveniles, while West Monroe police cleared eight theft by check counts.

Chief James C. Kelly of Monroe said his department booked Leon Swan, Negro, 17, of 1511 Griffin St., late Friday for the burglary of the Legion home. Two juveniles, aged 12 and 14, were also apprehended and have admitted taking part in the same burglary, which occurred Nov. 16, in which $8, four cartons of cigarettes and two cartons of gum were taken.

The Monroe department was also investigating the theft of a 1958 Ford from Monroe Auto Sales car lot at 1301 Louisville Ave., taken sometime Friday or Friday night. The tan and white vehicle was reported missing by the manager of the lot, Ed Lyons. Also being probed by the Monroe department was the theft of assorted boys clothing from a clothesline at the home of Mrs. E. W. Bowles, 2919 Lee Ave. The clothes were taken Friday night.

West Monroe police cleared the theft of assorted auto parts, taken from a local car dealer and garage with the apprehension of a 16 - year - old juvenile. The boy, taken into custody Friday night, has admitted taking the parts and has been released to the custody of his parents until juvenile court meets.

West Monroe Detective Capt. Charles Dortch said that eight counts of theft by check were cleared through the questioning of James A. Mabry, of St. Louis, Mo., in Baton Rouge Friday. Capt. Dortch said Mabry admits cashing a total of $220 worth of bogus checks at West Monroe supermarkets Sept. 27 - 28. He is being held in Baton Rouge on theft by check charges by authorities there, awaiting trail.

In other action, Monroe police apprehended a 19 - year - old Bastrop girl for the Ouachita Parish sheriff's department on a warrant charging her with theft by check. She was identified as Ramona June Johnston, 19, of 804 Larkramona St., Bastrop.

The Monroe department also booked a 51 - year - old St. Maurice, La., man for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, reckless driving and damage to property. George Chris Bailey, 51, was taken into custody at the intersection of Walnut Street and Louisville Avenue at 5 p.m. Saturday and held under a $500 bond.

Columbus Ship Replica Sought By Coast Guard

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Coast Guard Saturday began a search for the sailing ship Nina — the exact replica of one of Christopher Columbus' three ships — which is overdue on a trip retracing the 1492 voyage from Spain.

The 40-ton ship carries a crew of seven men including a writer from the Saturday Evening Post.

The Coast Guard here said it had sent an all-ships radio message asking merchant vessels to look for the Nina. Storms in the Atlantic last week crippled several ships.

The Nina is being navigated on the 15th century methods — including a sextant from that period. Navigators of the era figured their positions only in latitudes, never using longitudes.

A spokesman said that was making determination of a search area quite difficult.

The Nina left Palos, Spain, early last month and was due in San Salvador on Nov. 16. The ship had left Los Palmas in the Canary Islands on Oct. 28.

The original Nina was the smallest of Columbus' three ships used on his first voyage. That vessel carried a crew of 18.

MISSING YOUNG GIRL

10-Year Mystery May Be Solved

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The weird mystery surrounding the disappearance of Connie Smith, young granddaughter of a former Wyoming governor, may be nearing a solution, 10 years after she vanished from a Connecticut girls' camp.

Bones found near Arizona's Grand Canyon were being examined by pathologists Saturday. Their findings, along with other evidence uncovered at the scene where the bones were found, prompted Undersheriff Clarke Cole of Coconino County, Ariz., to say in Denver the chances are "one in a million" that the body is not that of Connie.

If the findings are confirmed, Cole said, "We have a suspect. If he is in Connecticut, we'll have him in Arizona before long."

The officer refused to enlarge on the statement.

Cole said Connie's dentist, Dr. Floyd B. Ward of Spearfish, S.D., has identified dental work on a skull found in the Arizona wilderness as work he performed on the missing girl.

Hair samples taken from the skull are of the same texture as Connie's, he said. Laboratory tests are continuing.

The bones were found four years ago by a pair of hunters in a pine grove southeast of the Grand Canyon. In spring 1959, a road grader working on a dirt road 75 feet away uncovered clothing which officers believe was that of the victim.

Arizona officers estimate that the girl was 14 years old. Connie was 10 when she vanished on July 16, 1952.

The bones found in Arizona were filed away, and not until this fall did officers in Arizona and Connecticut compare notes on the Smith girl's disappearance and the Grand Canyon discovery.

If the bones are Connie's, officers still will have to penetrate a maze of challenging questions:

How did Connie get from Connecticut to Arizona?

How and where did she die?

Was she abducted, as most lawmen have believed? If so, by whom and for what purpose?

Connie's father is Peter Smith of Sundance, Wyo. Her mother died last Dec. 31 of an apparent heart attack. She is the granddaughter of former Wyoming Gov. Nels H. Smith.

requests are already coming in. "If we don't provide the food, toys and clothing many families in the Twin Cities won't have anything but another bleak day. It will mean some poor, little child won't have anything for Christmas," Martin said.

He asked that usable clothing and toys could be donated to the cause by delivering them to Hancock & Martin Equipment Company at 611 N. 8th street. "We must request that only usable items be donated. We are not equipped to repair or mend," he said.

Every year many churches donate one day's collection to the Goodfellows cause. Hundreds of individuals usually mail donations ranging from $1 each up to several hundred dollars.

While donations are usually generous, there are always many heart rendering appeals for assistance. Neighbors often write in appealing for needy cases that are often too proud to appeal for themselves.

Next week the newspaper will start publishing excerpts from letters that appeal for aid. The identity of the applicants will be kept anonymous.

ANTICOUNCIL STAND

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — The policy - making board of the Assemblies of God has adopted a resolution directing the denomination's ministers to refrain from any activity that would promote the ecumenical movement.

It is "contrary to the real Biblical doctrine of spiritual unity," the board said. The Rev. Thomas F. Zimmerman, general superintendent of the church, said the action meant keeping separate from the National and World Councils of Churches, which include most Protestant bodies.

The Chinese charge d'affaires is obtaining clarification from Peking," he said.

The American aid mission in New Delhi is headed by Averill Harriman who led a similar mission to Moscow 21 years ago when Nazi Germany showed signs of overrunning all of Russia. The British mission is headed by Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys.

Diplomatic reports said they had been instructed to make the western stand of "any assistance" to Nehru and to assess speedily and on the spot the needs of the embattled country — including transport planes and even fighters and bombers.

Persistent reports in New Delhi said India was seeking F104 fighters flown by American pilots to defend the sprawling Indian cities against air attack by the Chinese Communists. Calcutta, particularly vulnerable, has a population of more than 6 million.

Diplomatic sources said behind the sweeping Anglo-American offer was the conviction that India will need massive support to bring her depleted defenses up to date even if India decides to accept the Chinese truce offer.

The sources said the West was not trying to bring neutral India into the western camp and that the West did not want to involve India in the cold war.

Police Clear Burglary And Thefts

The clearing of several thefts and a burglary occupied Twin City police activities Saturday.

Monroe officers cleared the week - old burglary of the Negro American Legion Hall on Powell Avenue with the apprehension of a 17 - year - old and two Negro juveniles, while West Monroe police cleared eight theft by check counts.

Chief James C. Kelly of Monroe said his department booked Leon Swan, Negro, 17, of 1511 Griffin St., late Friday for the burglary of the Legion home. Two juveniles, aged 12 and 14, were also apprehended and have admitted taking part in the same burglary, which occurred Nov. 16, in which $8, four cartons of cigarettes and two cartons of gum were taken.

The Monroe department was also investigating the theft of a 1958 Ford from Monroe Auto Sales car lot at 1301 Louisville Ave., taken sometime Friday or Friday night. The tan and white vehicle was reported missing by the manager of the lot, Ed Lyons. Also being probed by the Monroe department was the theft of assorted boys clothing from a clothesline at the home of Mrs. E. W. Bowles, 2919 Lee Ave. The clothes were taken Friday night.

West Monroe police cleared the theft of assorted auto parts, taken from a local car dealer and garage with the apprehension of a 16 - year - old juvenile. The boy, taken into custody Friday night, has admitted taking the parts and has been released to the custody of his parents until juvenile court meets.

West Monroe Detective Capt. Charles Dortch said that eight counts of theft by check were cleared through the questioning of James A. Mabry, of St. Louis, Mo., in Baton Rouge Friday. Capt. Dortch said Mabry admits cashing a total of $220 worth of bogus checks at West Monroe supermarkets Sept. 27 - 28. He is being held in Baton Rouge on theft by check charges by authorities there, awaiting trail.

In other action, Monroe police apprehended a 19 - year - old Bastrop girl for the Ouachita Parish sheriff's department on a warrant charging her with theft by check. She was identified as Ramona June Johnston, 19, of 804 Larkramona St., Bastrop.

The Monroe department also booked a 51 - year - old St. Maurice, La., man for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages, reckless driving and damage to property. George Chris Bailey, 51, was taken into custody at the intersection of Walnut Street and Louisville Avenue at 5 p.m. Saturday and held under a $500 bond.

Columbus Ship Replica Sought By Coast Guard

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Coast Guard Saturday began a search for the sailing ship Nina — the exact replica of one of Christopher Columbus' three ships — which is overdue on a trip retracing the 1492 voyage from Spain.

The 40-ton ship carries a crew of seven men including a writer from the Saturday Evening Post.

The Coast Guard here said it had sent an all-ships radio message asking merchant vessels to look for the Nina. Storms in the Atlantic last week crippled several ships.

The Nina is being navigated on the 15th century methods — including a sextant from that period. Navigators of the era figured their positions only in latitudes, never using longitudes.

A spokesman said that was making determination of a search area quite difficult.

The Nina left Palos, Spain, early last month and was due in San Salvador on Nov. 16. The ship had left Los Palmas in the Canary Islands on Oct. 28.

The original Nina was the smallest of Columbus' three ships used on his first voyage. That vessel carried a crew of 18.

Amish Jailed Over Schools

Buchanan County attorney William O'Connell represented the state. He said the Amish have a right to maintain a parochial school but must comply with state standards.

ON INDIA FRONTIER

Tibetan Refugees Flee Red Chinese

TEZPUR, India (AP) — About 200 Tibetan refugees making their second flight from the Communist Chinese headed for safety across the sacred Brahmaputra River on Friday.

They are Lhasans and Khampas who trekked out of Tibet and were settled by the Indian government near Bomdila and Rupa in the Northeast Frontier Agency more than four years ago.

Bomdila fell to the Chinese on Monday and the Tibetans, with thousands of other hill tribes people, moved on foot and in crowded trucks to the flatlands of the Assam plains.

There was near panic Friday as the refugees scrambled aboard an overcrowded train at Rangapara station north of here. The train was the first to run in three days from Tazpur, nearly half of whose 30,000 residents fled earlier in the week.

The passengers were bound for ferryboats that have carried about 26,000 refugees across the Brahmaputra since Monday. Three hundred Chinese residents of Tezpur who had been interned were taken across the river under escort.

To the north, both Indian and Chinese troops in the Himalayan hills observed the cease-fire.

But unofficial reports said Chinese patrols were probing as far south as the final slopes of the foothills on the edge of the Assam plans.

Correspondents trying to reach the foothills were turned back by the Indian army at Misamari, about 15 miles from the foothills.

Police Accuse Arkansas Man Of Booking Bets

MEMPHIS (AP) — An Arkansas man has been arrested here and accused by police of booking an average of $8,000 a week in football bets in Memphis since early last September.

Doyle Lee Campbell, 38, of Bassett, Ark., was held Saturday for grand jury action after police charged him with violating the state law on professional gambling. He pleaded innocent and posted $500 bond.

Campbell was arrested Friday after a liquor store operator grew suspicious and called police when Campbell tried to get change for a $1,000 bill. When searched by police, Campbell had three of the big bills in his possession.

Record Building Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Construction activity will set a record in 1963 for the second successive year, with outlays close to $63.3 billion, the Commerce Department predicted Sunday.

This would represent a $2.1-billion gain over the record private and public expenditures on building indicated for 1962, according to the department's annual official forecast.

At an estimated $61.2 billion this year, construction outlays have increased by $3.9 billion from 1961.

The department forecasts another good year for housing starts. It estimated that about 1,425,000 private nonfarm dwellings will be started, along with some 40,000 public housing units.

"High levels of employment, sustained high disposable personal income and a favorable mortgage market will help to strengthen the demand for new housing," the forecast said.

The favorable outlook was based on the department's assumption that over-all economic activity would continue to expand in 1963 "although the rate of growth may be very modest during the first few months."

"The acceleration of public works and highway programs and the anticipation of tax reductions to spur employment and encourage investment early in 1963 will stimulate business in general," the report said.

The department's experts assumed also that mortgage credit will continue to be plentiful and that investment funds for industrial and commercial expansion will continue in ample supply; and that construction costs will remain fairly stable with rising labor costs approximately offset by declining prices of building materials.

Housing will account for nearly $25.5 billion of the total outlays, it was estimated. Although rental vacancies reached a peak of 8.1 per cent last spring, the department said the number of vacancies has diminished and most of them are to be found in low-quality, older rental structures.

President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan said India stood for things the United States believes in—the rights of individuals and the importance of sovereignty of nations. He spoke to the American mission, led by Asst. secretary of State W. Averell Harriman, which is studying India's needs after the Chinese Communist victories in the undeclared war now suspended by a cease-fire.

Washington already has sent $5 million worth of weapons and more are coming.

ON INDIA FRONTIER

Tibetan Refugees Flee Red Chinese

TEZPUR, India (AP) — About 200 Tibetan refugees making their second flight from the Communist Chinese headed for safety across the sacred Brahmaputra River on Friday.

They are Lhasans and Khampas who trekked out of Tibet and were settled by the Indian government near Bomdila and Rupa in the Northeast Frontier Agency more than four years ago.

Bomdila fell to the Chinese on Monday and the Tibetans, with thousands of other hill tribes people, moved on foot and in crowded trucks to the flatlands of the Assam plains.

There was near panic Friday as the refugees scrambled aboard an overcrowded train at Rangapara station north of here. The train was the first to run in three days from Tazpur, nearly half of whose 30,000 residents fled earlier in the week.

The passengers were bound for ferryboats that have carried about 26,000 refugees across the Brahmaputra since Monday. Three hundred Chinese residents of Tezpur who had been interned were taken across the river under escort.

To the north, both Indian and Chinese troops in the Himalayan hills observed the cease-fire.

But unofficial reports said Chinese patrols were probing as far south as the final slopes of the foothills on the edge of the Assam plans.

Correspondents trying to reach the foothills were turned back by the Indian army at Misamari, about 15 miles from the foothills.

Police Accuse Arkansas Man Of Booking Bets

MEMPHIS (AP) — An Arkansas man has been arrested here and accused by police of booking an average of $8,000 a week in football bets in Memphis since early last September.

Doyle Lee Campbell, 38, of Bassett, Ark., was held Saturday for grand jury action after police charged him with violating the state law on professional gambling. He pleaded innocent and posted $500 bond.

Campbell was arrested Friday after a liquor store operator grew suspicious and called police when Campbell tried to get change for a $1,000 bill. When searched by police, Campbell had three of the big bills in his possession.

Record Building Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Construction activity will set a record in 1963 for the second successive year, with outlays close to $63.3 billion, the Commerce Department predicted Sunday.

This would represent a $2.1-billion gain over the record private and public expenditures on building indicated for 1962, according to the department's annual official forecast.

At an estimated $61.2 billion this year, construction outlays have increased by $3.9 billion from 1961.

The department forecasts another good year for housing starts. It estimated that about 1,425,000 private nonfarm dwellings will be started, along with some 40,000 public housing units.

"High levels of employment, sustained high disposable personal income and a favorable mortgage market will help to strengthen the demand for new housing," the forecast said.

The favorable outlook was based on the department's assumption that over-all economic activity would continue to expand in 1963 "although the rate of growth may be very modest during the first few months."

"The acceleration of public works and highway programs and the anticipation of tax reductions to spur employment and encourage investment early in 1963 will stimulate business in general," the report said.

The department's experts assumed also that mortgage credit will continue to be plentiful and that investment funds for industrial and commercial expansion will continue in ample supply; and that construction costs will remain fairly stable with rising labor costs approximately offset by declining prices of building materials.

Housing will account for nearly $25.5 billion of the total outlays, it was estimated. Although rental vacancies reached a peak of 8.1 per cent last spring, the department said the number of vacancies has diminished and most of them are to be found in low-quality, older rental structures.

MAJOR ASSAULT

Vietnamese Hit Red Stronghold

SAIGON, South Viet Nam. (AP) — The government claimed Saturday it has smashed the main Communist stronghold northeast of Saigon in a four-day operation supported by waves of American helicopters and C123 transport planes.

There were indications, however, the claim may be somewhat premature. And it was obvious from the reported casualty tolls that the bulk of the enemy force had escaped.

Fifty American and Vietnamese helicopters, believed to be the largest helicopter force ever used in action, opened the major assault on D Zone Tuesday. Eight hundred Vietnamese troops, including rangers and paratroopers, were landed 70 miles northeast of Saigon to kick off the operation. Fresh waves were poured in Wednesday and Thursday.

The operation was aimed at clearing a bleak uncharted area that has been used as haven by Communist guerrillas since the days of the Indochina war.

The government has never previously attempted a combat operation in force against this Communist fortress and the campaign was originally expected to last several weeks.

But a military communique issued Saturday — the first official report on this hitherto top secret operation—claimed the operation has been completed.

The communique claimed 10 enemy soldiers were killed, three captured and a quantity of weapons seized. It said two command posts and all the logistics and liaison networks in the area were destroyed. The communique said one government soldier was killed and another wounded.

It said enemy forces offered weak resistance. The enemy in Viet Nam traditionally melts into the jungle at the approach of any attack in force.

According to recent intelligence reports a number of Communist guerrilla units normally based in the delta area of southernmost South Viet Nam had moved into the area because of increasing military pressure in the south.

U.S. Dismantling 'Buildup'

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another step in dismantling the massive military force that was concentrated for defense of the southeastern United States is on the way.

The White House announcement Saturday that President Kennedy plans to visit military bases in Florida and Georgia Monday revealed, incidentally, that at least some of the Army troops rushed into the region at the outset of the Cuban crisis will be withdrawn, apparently in the immediate future.

The announcement from Hyannis Port said that Kennedy wanted to visit the military units before they leave the area.

"Many of these units will be returning to their home bases during the coming days," said Andrew T. Hatcher, assistant White House press secretary.

The Navy has ended the arms blockade after a four-week patrol of the shipping approaches to Cuba. The mission of the blockade force, which at times had as many as 50 ships on station, was to prevent more offensive weapons from being landed in Cuba and, later, to check the outward shipment of Soviet missiles that had been dismantled under the Kennedy-Khrushchev agreement.

Along with dispersing the blockade force, the military also ordered Air Force Air Defense Command planes that had been stationed in various bases outside the southeastern United States to return to their home bases.

However, Air Defense planes in the southeast remain on guard, along with antiaircraft missile outfits of the Army.

The President's schedule for Monday includes a call at Ft. Stewart, near Savannah, Ga. Reports from that area have indicated that the entire 1st Armored Division, except for an element sent to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., for amphibious training work, had been ployed at Ft. Stewart.

Home station for the 1st Armored is Ft. Hood, Tex. Presumably the division was prepositioned at Ft. Stewart to make it ready for immediate movement if defensive action required that.

The reference to the President's desire to visit units before they are redeployed back to home bases suggests that the 1st Armored Division is among the ground forces scheduled for withdrawal

The White House announcement also took the wraps off another hitherto secret. The spokesman said that Homestead Air Force Base, Fla., which Kennedy will visit, was an advance headquarters for the precautionary military operation in connection with the Cuban threat.

He first referred to Homestead as being the site for the major command post of the operation, but later corrected this to say it was an advance headquarters.

Adm. Robert L. Dennison, commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet, is in over-all direction of the operation, with headquarters at Norfolk, Va.

The general alert at the outset of the crisis presumably brought command posts in the eastern United States, as well as the designated command ships and special Air Force command planes up to readiness to operate as primary direction centers if necessary.

Although the naval blockade has been ended, a substantial part of the huge defensive organization remains on the ready.

In considerable degree, this results from the continuing uncertainty over Cuba, where Soviet IL28 bombers still remain. Until Russia carries out a promise to pull the nuclear-capable bombers out of Cuba, Air Force and Navy interceptor units and Army antiaircraft batteries, including both the shorter range Hawk missiles and the long range Nike Hercules missiles, will be kept in instant ready status.

Similarly, the big U.S. naval base at Guantanamo in Cuba, is keeping its beefed-up garrison of more than 7,000 Marines, plus personnel of Navy ships that operate into and out of the base.

Until the size of the garrison is reduced, Navy officials say it probably will be impossible to return any of the approximately 2,800 dependents who were brought from Guantanamo to the United States in the first days of the alert.

GOP Urges Impeachment Of Kennedy

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — State GOP Chairman Wirt Yerger Jr. Saturday called for impeachment or resignation of President Kennedy for his executive order on integrated housing.

Yerger said Kennedy must be "overwhelmingly defeated when he seeks re-election" for the sake of America. He called the Kennedy order a "dictatorial action."

The Republican official said the reason for Kennedy's order banning segregation in federal aid-supported housing was the move would not pass in Congress.

"So," Yerger said, "he (Kennedy) decided to command that his wishes be followed just as surely as though he were the king in a monarchy."

"This man must either resign as President, be impeached from office, or be defeated at the polls, Yerger said.

"In Khrushchev, Castro, and Kennedy style, President Kennedy has ignored Congress and the constitution completely and put out another of his executive orders," Yerger said.

"Imposing his will upon the people of America with the stroke of his pen seems to come easier to Kennedy than standing up to Khrushchev, Castro and other Communists throughout the world," Yerger said.

The remarks came as Yerger urged attendance at a meeting set for Nov. 29 here where Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., will speak. Goldwater is a potential candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Voting Today Is Vital For Bonn Leader

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Campaigning ended Saturday for Bavarian state elections that may decide the fate of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's West German government.

An estimated six million voters will go the polls Sunday to elect a new state legislature (landtag).

Politicians, newspapers and political observers agreed the results probably will determine the outcome of Adenauer's efforts to hold his coalition cabinet together.

Key man in the issue is Defense Minister Franz - Josef Strauss. Strauss is Bavaria's "favorite son" and his Christian Social Union (CSU) is the Bavarian wing of Adenauer's Christian Democratic Party. (CDU).

It is generally agreed that if Strauss loses much ground in the elections, Adenauer will drop him from the cabinet.

The Free Democratic Party (FDP), the junior partner in the former cabinet coalition with Adenauer, has demanded Strauss be fired in return for their continued support. Strauss' part in the government security crackdown on the news magazine Der Spiegel led to the Bonn issue.

In the bitter Bavarian campaign, the socialists and other opposition parties singled out Strauss and the Der Spiegel affair as the big issues.

In Hessen state elections this month Adenauer's CDU lost ground. The Der Spiegel issue was blamed.

In Bonn, Adenauer awaited the Bavarian election results — expected late Sunday—before meeting Tuesday morning with FDP leader Erich Mende to talk of rebuilding their cabinet coalition.

KNIFE-SLAYER SOUGHT

Baby-Sitter Found Slain In Apartment

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The savage knife-slaying of a 16-year-old baby-sitter in a third-floor apartment Friday night "could only have been done by someone familiar with the premises," Capt. Robert Duck of the homicide squad said Saturday.

Numerous persons have been questioned, but no arrests made since the body of Barbara Allen was found nude on the dining room floor of the apartment. An 8-inch kitchen knife was stuck into her chest near the heart.

Coroner Harry Mignery of Lucas County said Saturday afternoon he had found no evidence that the girl was raped, as police had at first thought.

Larry Robert Smith, 24, found the girl about 3:15 a.m. Saturday when he returned with his wife from a trip to the Detroit area. The couple had left Barbara at 7:45 p.m., Friday night to care for their children Terry, 2, and Larry Jr., 9 months. The children, unharmed, were asleep when their father returned.

Smith told police the front door of the apartment was locked throughout the night and was still locked when he found the girl's body. The killer entered the place through a rear door opening onto a porch and outside stairway.

A television set in the dining room was turned on, with volume high, when the Smiths returned.

The slain girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Allen, had done babysitting in his apartment about eight times within a month, Smith told detectives, and to his knowledge never entertained company while the Smiths were away.

Although the naval blockade has been ended, a substantial part of the huge defensive organization remains on the ready.

In considerable degree, this results from the continuing uncertainty over Cuba, where Soviet IL28 bombers still remain. Until Russia carries out a promise to pull the nuclear-capable bombers out of Cuba, Air Force and Navy interceptor units and Army antiaircraft batteries, including both the shorter range Hawk missiles and the long range Nike Hercules missiles, will be kept in instant ready status.

Similarly, the big U.S. naval base at Guantanamo in Cuba, is keeping its beefed-up garrison of more than 7,000 Marines, plus personnel of Navy ships that operate into and out of the base.

Until the size of the garrison is reduced, Navy officials say it probably will be impossible to return any of the approximately 2,800 dependents who were brought from Guantanamo to the United States in the first days of the alert.

GOP Urges Impeachment Of Kennedy

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — State GOP Chairman Wirt Yerger Jr. Saturday called for impeachment or resignation of President Kennedy for his executive order on integrated housing.

Yerger said Kennedy must be "overwhelmingly defeated when he seeks re-election" for the sake of America. He called the Kennedy order a "dictatorial action.'

The Republican official said the reason for Kennedy's order banning segregation in federal aid-supported housing was the move would not pass in Congress.

"So," Yerger said, "he (Kennedy) decided to command that his wishes be followed just as surely as though he were the king in a monarchy."

"This man must either resign as President, be impeached from office, or be defeated at the polls, Yerger said.

"In Khrushchev, Castro, and Kennedy style, President Kennedy has ignored Congress and the constitution completely and put out another of his executive orders," Yerger said.

"Imposing his will upon the people of America with the stroke of his pen seems to come easier to Kennedy than standing up to Khrushchev, Castro and other Communists throughout the world," Yerger said.

The remarks came as Yerger urged attendance at a meeting set for Nov. 29 here where Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., will speak. Goldwater is a potential candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

SPIRIT OF INVESTIGATION

PERRYVILLE, Ohio (AP) — When science teacher Edward Everstine began studying the balances that control gliders, and the principles of flight, he did it on a grand scale.

Using a plan from a book published in 1918, Everstine spent nine months building a 110-pound glider to pursue his studies.

Voting Today Is Vital For Bonn Leader

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Campaigning ended Saturday for Bavarian state elections that may decide the fate of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's West German government.

An estimated six million voters will go the polls Sunday to elect a new state legislature (landtag).

Politicians, newspapers and political observers agreed the results probably will determine the outcome of Adenauer's efforts to hold his coalition cabinet together.

Key man in the issue is Defense Minister Franz - Josef Strauss. Strauss is Bavaria's "favorite son" and his Christian Social Union (CSU) is the Bavarian wing of Adenauer's Christian Democratic Party. (CDU).

It is generally agreed that if Strauss loses much ground in the elections, Adenauer will drop him from the cabinet.

The Free Democratic Party (FDP), the junior partner in the former cabinet coalition with Adenauer, has demanded Strauss be fired in return for their continued support. Strauss' part in the government security crackdown on the news magazine Der Spiegel led to the Bonn issue.

In the bitter Bavarian campaign, the socialists and other opposition parties singled out Strauss and the Der Spiegel affair as the big issues.

In Hessen state elections this month Adenauer's CDU lost ground. The Der Spiegel issue was blamed.

KNIFE-SLAYER SOUGHT

Baby-Sitter Found Slain In Apartment

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The savage knife-slaying of a 16-year-old baby-sitter in a third-floor apartment Friday night "could only have been done by someone familiar with the premises," Capt. Robert Duck of the homicide squad said Saturday.

Numerous persons have been questioned, but no arrests made since the body of Barbara Allen was found nude on the dining room floor of the apartment. An 8-inch kitchen knife was stuck into her chest near the heart.

Coroner Harry Mignery of Lucas County said Saturday afternoon he had found no evidence that the girl was raped, as police had at first thought.

Larry Robert Smith, 24, found the girl about 3:15 a.m. Saturday when he returned with his wife from a trip to the Detroit area. The couple had left Barbara at 7:45 p.m., Friday night to care for their children Terry, 2, and Larry Jr., 9 months. The children, unharmed, were asleep when their father returned.

Smith told police the front door of the apartment was locked throughout the night and was still locked when he found the girl's body. The killer entered the place through a rear door opening onto a porch and outside stairway.

A television set in the dining room was turned on, with volume high, when the Smiths returned.

The slain girl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Allen, had done babysitting in his apartment about eight times within a month, Smith told detectives, and to his knowledge never entertained company while the Smiths were away.

New School Aid Battle Planned

WASHINGTON (AP)—Another fight for a federal school aid bill in the next session of Congress was promised Saturday by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee.

Powell said he has made passage of a school bill the chief legislative aim of his committee in the 1963 session despite an unbroken string of failures in previous attempts.

The committee staff has been preparing for weeks for the new campaign, he said, exploring various means of defusing the explosive religious issue that has proved so troublesome in the past.

One idea receiving careful consideration is the "shared time" concept, in which parish school students use public school facilities for nonreligious courses.

Used successfully in some states for years for physical education, industrial arts and home economic courses, this concept is now being tried in Allegheny County, Pennsylvania for science and technical courses.

Powell has solicited written comments from the church groups and public school systems involved in these efforts, and he had a meeting with many of them in his New York office earlier this month.

There is no thought of attempting to write a "shared time" provision into any federal school bill, he said. But he said the idea should be encouraged and spotlighted to make more local communities aware of its possibilities.

Powell indicated he has two main hopes in advancing the shared time plan. One is that the Roman Catholic Church will see that it, too, can benefit from new public school classrooms built with Federal funds and will drop its insistence on direct participation in any aid program. The other is that the church-state issue can be fought out in the states and local communities instead of in Congress.

This leave-it-to-the-states approach is also being studied for the allocation of funds under any new school bill. A bill introduced last year by Rep. Cleveland M. Bailey, D-W.Va., that embodied such an approach, has been steadily gathering support among school bill-backers.

Under Bailey's bill federal funds would be mingled directly with a state's own school funds and used for whatever educational purposes the state selected. Bailey was defeated for re-election but others are prepared to take over his bill.

JFK Verdict Awaited On Congo Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy faces an early decision on this country's policy on the Congo: should it pursue a line of further patience with Katanga leader Moise Tshombe or support drastic steps against the secessionist African?

The decision will likely come within two weeks, some specialists predicted Saturday. The United Nations is about to run out of funds for its expensive Congo operation and it hardly can play a watchdog role in the vast African republic beyond next spring.

The next few days might bring some turn in the deadlock. Paul-Henri Spaak, Belgium's foreign minister, is due at the United Nations to confer with Acting Secretary-General U Thant and with U.S. authorities on what should be done.

The Belgian will likely meet with Robert Gardiner, U Thant's chief Congo representative, and with a number of U.S. officials including Undersecretary of State George McGhee, assistant secretaries G. Mennen Williams, who is in charge of African affairs, and Harlan Cleveland, in charge of U.S.-U.N. relations, and with Edmund Gullion, the U.S. ambassador to Leopoldville.

Observers who concede there are representatives of the "soft" and the "tough" lines in the administration also say that schools agree the Congo must be reunited—and soon.

McGhee, currently the State Department's top official involved in the Congo problem, heads those who advise patience and who would be most reluctant to exert pressure on Tshombe. Cleveland and Gullion are recognized as the chief backers of a tougher line, with Williams somewhere between.

The President is reported to be concerned over the failure to solve the problem of Katanga's continued secession from the Congo. He has ordered McGhee to devote considerable part of his time to the problem—but whether this means he subscribes to McGhee's views is anybody's guess.

McGhee has been in the Congo recently and had long talks with Cyrile Adoula, the Leopoldville premier, and with Tshombe.

Los Alamos Marks 20th Anniversary

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (AP) — Sunday, Nov. 25, marks the 20th anniversary of Los Alamos as the nation's oldest atomic installation.

Twenty years ago the 54,000 acres comprising the Los Alamos area were taken over by the government for the purpose of building a demolition range. The range actually became the home for the Manhattan Project, which was to build the first atom bomb.

The government paid $44,000 for the boys school located on the property and all other improvements on the land. The 50 buildings of the boys school were soon to house the 100 scientists.

In December 1942, the first construction crews started working to convert the school to a laboratory. In April 1943, the first scientists arrived to work on their awesome task.

The work progressed rapidly although conditions were hard and in many cases primitive.

The scientists included the most famous physicists in the country. There were Enrico Fermi, Bruno Rossi, Niels Bohr, Edward Teller, Stanislaw Ulam and many others. Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer directed actual atomic weapons development.

Supplies had to be trucked up a winding, twisting road to the 7,300-foot site on the hill. Temporary buildings were built from the many logs nearby.

Physical annoyances coupled with military restrictions and rigid security controls made life hard in Los Alamos during those years.

Personnel were not allowed to travel more than 100 miles from Los Alamos.

Prominent scientists traveled under assumed names. The late Enrico Fermi was known as "Henry Farmer" and the late Niels Bohr as "Nicholas Baker."

Work continued and Los Alamos grew. By December 1944, the population was 5,700.

Finally the bomb was built. For its test site a desolate, desert area near Alamogordo was chosen—the famed Jornada del Muerto (Journey of Death). The code name was Trinity.

Early in the morning of July 16, 1945, the bomb was detonated atop a 100-foot tower. It was the world's first nuclear fission bomb, with an estimated force equivalent to 20,000 tons of TNT.

In 1947, the laboratory became a permanent installation of the thermonuclear bomb, a nuclear engine for spacecraft is being worked on, and numerous other important experiments and projects.

The town has evolved from 20 years of government ownership back to private ownership. The United States is turning it back to the 13,500 residents of the town as it had once taken it in condemnation suits.

Ex-Con Sought In Attempt To Assault Girl

FOREST, Miss. (UPI)—A Negro ex-convict, believed to be the man who attempted to rape a white teen-age girl Friday night, was sought Saturday in a wooded area near here.

Sheriff DeWitt Simmons said the man's car was found near the scene of the incident. He did not release his name because of lack of positive identification.

The girl, whose name also was withheld, was with her escort in a parked car when the attack occurred. The car was on a gravel road off Highway 80 near here.

She told officers the Negro, who was believed to be drinking, smashed the car's rear window with the butt of a shotgun and ordered them out of the car. The boy jumped the assailant who quickly knocked him down after a brief scuffle. The youth fled to summon help.

The girl said the Negro then attempted to rip her clothes off, but she was able to ward him off. She was hospitalized for shock and bruises.

The suspect, Simmons said, was released from the state penitentiary in 1960 after serving time for larceny.

It is to be directed by Joshua Logan, who recently handled the same assignment for "Mr. President."

Officers Break Up Melee At Slumber Party

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—The entire East St. Louis police night force was called out early Saturday to break up a party attended by about 150 teen-agers.

Police said the melee started out as a slumber party, but a group of boys broke in on the party causing a major disturbance.

A patrolman questioned two youths, apparently drunk, on the street. They told him they had just attended a party.

When the patrolman went to investigate the home on North Park Avenue, he found about 150 teen-agers milling about. Beer bottles were scattered around the yard, he said.

The patrolman asked the group to quiet down, but they refused. He issued a call for help.

Eight patrol cars made four trips each to the scene to pick up the youths. They rounded up about 100, with the aid of a patrol wagon.

A desk sergeant said the group became unbearably noisy.

Police said they telephoned the teen-agers parents. Some responded quickly. A number of prominent families were called, police said.

"We had more than a hundred of them here at one time, but they kept slipping out. We finally got 90 of them to give us their names," the desk sergeant said. Police said many of the boys were college freshmen home on vacation.

No arrests were made.

Accident Near Slidell Fatal

SLIDELL, La. (AP) — A two-car wreck early Saturday killed Sherry Wren, 16, of Mandeville, and injured four others on Hwy. 190 west of here, police reported.

The injured were identified as Stephanie N. Jenkins, Lacombe; Forrest Smith, Pat Aleshire, and Michael Abney, all of Mandeville. They were all taken to a hospital here.

COLD WAR STRUGGLE

JFK Tempering World Optimism

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Kennedy administration was embarked Saturday on the task of tempering free world optimism over the outcome of the Cuban showdown with the firm reminder that tough cold war struggles lie ahead.

Officials derived solid satisfaction that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's withdrawal of missiles and bombers from Cuba represented a substantial victory.

But there was concern that the American public and the Allies may have been oversold on the scope of its long range significance.

Administration policy makers were making plans to exploit the broad peace possibilities that emerged from the Cuban crisis but they were wary of raising false hopes that the tensions of the cold war would vanish overnight.

They noted there was no assurance that Khrushchev, in the face of his setback, might not decide to get tougher in Berlin or other areas.

The Kremlin leader also could very quickly launch a new "peace offensive" aimed at dividing the Allies and taking advantage of any U. S. complacency.

The "soft pedal" approach was taken Friday night by a top administration spokesman, assistant secretary of state for international affairs Harlan Cleveland.

In a Philadelphia speech, Cleveland said that any assumption that Khrushchev's backdown in Cuba signalled a general Communist retreat was nothing but "bottled-in-bond mythology."

He deplored the fact that because of the Cuban success, too many people "immediately jumped to the conclusion that we shall wake some Friday morning and discover that the horrors and threats and sweat and struggles of the past decade and a half were no more than bad dreams."

Cleveland acknowledged, as the President did this week, that the way might be opening for progress on East-West disputes but he warned against any complete Russian turnabout.

NOVELIST ADAPTS OWN BOOK

NEW YORK (AP)— Peter Feibleman, a novelist, is now trying his skill at writing for the stage.

"A Place Without Twilight," based upon a book he wrote several years ago, is to be presented on Broadway in early '63. The plot concerns a mother who accidentally causes the death of her son.

It is to be directed by Joshua Logan, who recently handled the same assignment for "Mr. President."

Officers Break Up Melee At Slumber Party

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)—The entire East St. Louis police night force was called out early Saturday to break up a party attended by about 150 teen-agers.

Police said the melee started out as a slumber party, but a group of boys broke in on the party causing a major disturbance.

A patrolman questioned two youths, apparently drunk, on the street. They told him they had just attended a party.

When the patrolman went to investigate the home on North Park Avenue, he found about 150 teen-agers milling about. Beer bottles were scattered around the yard, he said.

The patrolman asked the group to quiet down, but they refused. He issued a call for help.

Eight patrol cars made four trips each to the scene to pick up the youths. They rounded up about 100, with the aid of a patrol wagon.

A desk sergeant said the group became unbearably noisy.

Police said they telephoned the teen-agers parents. Some responded quickly. A number of prominent families were called, police said.

"We had more than a hundred of them here at one time, but they kept slipping out. We finally got 90 of them to give us their names," the desk sergeant said. Police said many of the boys were college freshmen home on vacation.

No arrests were made.

Accident Near Slidell Fatal

SLIDELL, La. (AP) — A two-car wreck early Saturday killed Sherry Wren, 16, of Mandeville, and injured four others on Hwy. 190 west of here, police reported.

The injured were identified as Stephanie N. Jenkins, Lacombe; Forrest Smith, Pat Aleshire, and Michael Abney, all of Mandeville. They were all taken to a hospital here.

COLD WAR STRUGGLE

JFK Tempering World Optimism

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Kennedy administration was embarked Saturday on the task of tempering free world optimism over the outcome of the Cuban showdown with the firm reminder that tough cold war struggles lie ahead.

Officials derived solid satisfaction that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's withdrawal of missiles and bombers from Cuba represented a substantial victory.

But there was concern that the American public and the Allies may have been oversold on the scope of its long range significance.

Administration policy makers were making plans to exploit the broad peace possibilities that emerged from the Cuban crisis but they were wary of raising false hopes that the tensions of the cold war would vanish overnight.

They noted there was no assurance that Khrushchev, in the face of his setback, might not decide to get tougher in Berlin or other areas.

The Kremlin leader also could very quickly launch a new "peace offensive" aimed at dividing the Allies and taking advantage of any U. S. complacency.

The "soft pedal" approach was taken Friday night by a top administration spokesman, assistant secretary of state for international affairs Harlan Cleveland.

In a Philadelphia speech, Cleveland said that any assumption that Khrushchev's backdown in Cuba signalled a general Communist retreat was nothing but "bottled-in-bond mythology."

He deplored the fact that because of the Cuban success, too many people "immediately jumped to the conclusion that we shall wake some Friday morning and discover that the horrors and threats and sweat and struggles of the past decade and a half were no more than bad dreams."

Cleveland acknowledged, as the President did this week, that the way might be opening for progress on East-West disputes but he warned against any complete Russian turnabout.

GUY BANISTER

Former FBI Agent Slates Speech Here

A veteran special investigator, Guy Banister, will speak on communism 6:15 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church of Monroe.

His appearance will mark the conclusion of a four - week study of the communistic threat which has been conducted on Sundays following the 5 p.m. worship service.

LONG EXPERIENCE

A former FBI agent, Banister will draw from a lifetime of investigative and fact - finding experience. He was born in Caldwell Parish and spent his early years there. From 1929 to 1934 he served on the Monroe Police Department. In 1934 he became special agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and served in that capacity until 1938 when he was appointed as a special agent in charge in Chicago for the FBI.

He also served at various times as special agent in charge at Butte, Oklahoma City, and Minneapolis. He retired in 1954.

While with the Federal Bureau he investigated and supervised activities of many special agents in anti - trust, bankruptcy, bank defalcations, bank robbery, extortion, kidnapping, murder, espionage, sabotage, and subversive cases. From 1955 to 1957, he served as secretary and assistant superintendent of the New Orleans Police Department, and was in charge of the graft investigation during that time.

The church is located at St. John and Grammont streets.

Annual Singing Program Is Set At Area Church

Singers from throughout the surrounding area will take part in singing activities today at Mt. Perry Assembly of God Church in Log Cabin Community. The church is located four miles north of Bastrop on the Crossett Highway.

The annual singing event will get under way at 10:30 a.m. and continue until 3:30 p.m. The community has sponsored the singing event for a number of years, with such groups as the Jeffress Quartet, Wonder State Trio, Craig Trio, West Sisters, Greenville Quartet, Robinettes and many others taking part.

Several new groups are expected to take part this year, including the Southerners of Monroe, under the management of S. L. Taylor.

L. L. Robinson, president of Morehouse Parish Singing Convention, will be chairman of the program.

Revival Services Open Today At Monroe Chapel

Revival services will get under way today at North Monroe Baptist Chapel, with the Rev. Thurman Davis, pastor of the Poland Baptist Church, Alexandria, as evangelist.

Rev. Davis is a graduate of Louisiana College and the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

The nursery will be open for services daily at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. The chapel is located at the corner of Sterlington Road and Ray Drive.

Music during the revival this week will be under the direction of Mike Desong, who is music director of the First Baptist Church of Sterlington. The Rev. Glenn Pippens is pastor.

West Monroe Church Adds New Building

The new $70,000 brick educational building addition to Memorial Presbyterian Church, North 4th and Mill streets in West Monroe, will be open today for inspection by members and visitors before and after morning services.

The structure, with about 6,700 square feet of space, virtually doubles the church's permanent building facilities, according to Dr. Hugh Bradhsaw, pastor.

It has 10 class rooms, including a women's parlor. Some of the rooms are multiple purpose types. The primary room will also be used for choir practice and for storage of music materials and robes.

DESIGNED

The nursery and kindergarten facilities are designed for weekday use if the demand arises in the community, the pastor said. The primary class room will accommodate about 25 students. Recommendations of the Educational Committee to provide 25 square feet of space per person in the kindergarten, primary and junior departments, was followed in the construction.

The space ratio in the nursery is slightly smaller, and is somewhat less in the pioneers department. The women's parlor will accomodate more than 50, allowing more than 10 square feet per person.

Parker and Wells were architects, and general contractor was L. C. Bassett. F. C. Patterson is chairman of the Building Finance Committee, and J. B. McDuffie, chairman of the Planning Committee.

ESTABLISHED

The church was established Nov. 3, 1946. Dr. Bradshaw has been its pastor since June, 1949. Highland Presbyterian Church of West Monroe, was organized out of Memorial in November of 1959.

Memorial will be the scene of a revival starting Dec. 2 and extending through Dec. 7. Featured speaker will be the Rev. Robert Gage, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Winnfield. Services will be held daily at 7 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., with the exception of the morning service on Sunday, which will be held at 11 a.m.

Billy Graham Film Scheduled At Church Here

A life-long ambition of Evangelist Billy Graham is achieved as he tells the dramatic story of ancient "Jerusalem," in a new film release which will be shown 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Gymnasium of the First Baptist Church of Monroe.

The film is a release of World Wide Pictures. There will be no admission charge, church officials said.

The City of Jerusalem, for 4,000 years a focal point of human history and divine intervention, has been totally destroyed on at least two occasions, and has been captured by conquering armies more than 30 times. But it has been rebuilt from the rubble of its ruins to outlive all conquerors, clinging tenaciously to its rocky foundations as if determined to await a future day of glory.

The picture was filmed in 35 MM Eastman color by the same company whose filmed document of the Graham team's 1960 African itinerary, "Africa on the Bridge," won the American Film Festival's Golden Reel Award in the "Church at Work" category.

MARTIN BROONES

Broones Sets Lecture At Church Here

How to cope effectively through prayer with problems of any kind will be explained in a public lecture by Martin Broones in Monroe at 3:00 p.m. today.

Broones, a Christian Science lecturer from Beverly Hills, California, will speak in church edifice, 224 Auburn Ave., under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist. The subject of his lecture will be "Christian Science: Religion That Heals Through Prayer."

BACKGROUND

A native of New York City, he was educated at Columbia University and later studied musical composition under John Ireland of the Royal College of Music in London. Besides composing many well - known sacred solos and musical scores for many popular light operas, he organized and was director of the first music department in the motion picture industry for Metro Goldwyn Mayer Studios in Hollywood.

He subsequently became a producer of motion pictures and radio programs, acting also as manager and producer for his wife, Charlotte Greenwood.

Active in Christian Science for many years, Broones withdrew from business in 1948 to devote his full time to the practice of Christian Science healing. He became an authorized teacher of Christian Science in 1958.

Hancock Speaks At Revival Meet

Lutheran Faith

The church is the body of Christ.

Consider it in this way—

Christ no longer walks the earth. He no longer reaches out his hand and feeds people . . . or heals people. He no longer gathers a group of people together and preaches to them.

Yet, all of these are still being done — through Christians.

These Christians are bonded together in the church . . . and the church reaches out and feeds and heals and preaches.

The church is the body of Christ on earth in our day.

If you do not attend a Church you are cordially invited to attend . . . .

GUY BANISTER

Former FBI Agent Slates Speech Here

A veteran special investigator, Guy Banister, will speak on communism 6:15 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church of Monroe.

His appearance will mark the conclusion of a four - week study of the communistic threat which has been conducted on Sundays following the 5 p.m. worship service.

LONG EXPERIENCE

A former FBI agent, Banister will draw from a lifetime of investigative and fact - finding experience. He was born in Caldwell Parish and spent his early years there. From 1929 to 1934 he served on the Monroe Police Department. In 1934 he became special agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and served in that capacity until 1938 when he was appointed as a special agent in charge in Chicago for the FBI.

He also served at various times as special agent in charge at Butte, Oklahoma City, and Minneapolis. He retired in 1954.

While with the Federal Bureau he investigated and supervised activities of many special agents in anti - trust, bankruptcy, bank defalcations, bank robbery, extortion, kidnapping, murder, espionage, sabotage, and subversive cases. From 1955 to 1957, he served as secretary and assistant superintendent of the New Orleans Police Department, and was in charge of the graft investigation during that time.

The church is located at St. John and Grammont streets.

West Monroe Church Adds New Building

The new $70,000 brick educational building addition to Memorial Presbyterian Church, North 4th and Mill streets in West Monroe, will be open today for inspection by members and visitors before and after morning services.

The structure, with about 6,700 square feet of space, virtually doubles the church's permanent building facilities, according to Dr. Hugh Bradhsaw, pastor.

It has 10 class rooms, including a women's parlor. Some of the rooms are multiple purpose types. The primary room will also be used for choir practice and for storage of music materials and robes.

DESIGNED

The nursery and kindergarten facilities are designed for weekday use if the demand arises in the community, the pastor said. The primary class room will accommodate about 25 students. Recommendations of the Educational Committee to provide 25 square feet of space per person in the kindergarten, primary and junior departments, was followed in the construction.

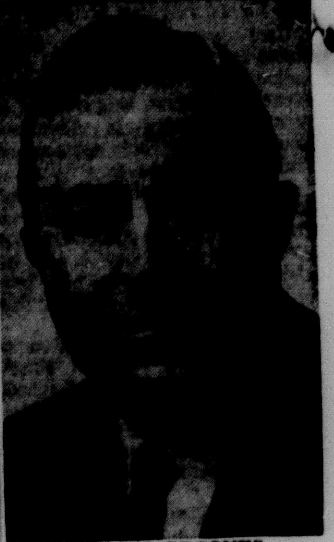
The space ratio in the nursery is slightly smaller, and is somewhat less in the pioneers department. The women's parlor will accomodate more than 50, allowing more than 10 square feet per person.

Parker and Wells were architects, and general contractor was L. C. Bassett. F. C. Patterson is chairman of the Building Finance Committee, and J. B. McDuffie, chairman of the Planning Committee.

ESTABLISHED

The church was established Nov. 3, 1946. Dr. Bradshaw has been its pastor since June, 1949. Highland Presbyterian Church of West Monroe, was organized out of Memorial in November of 1959.

Memorial will be the scene of a revival starting Dec. 2 and extending through Dec. 7. Featured speaker will be the Rev. Robert Gage, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Winnfield. Services will be held daily at 7 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., with the exception of the morning service on Sunday, which will be held at 11 a.m.



MARTIN BROONES

Broones Sets Lecture At Church Here

How to cope effectively through prayer with problems of any kind will be explained in a public lecture by Martin Broones in Monroe at 3:00 p.m. today.

Broones, a Christian Science lecturer from Beverly Hills, California, will speak in church edifice, 224 Auburn Ave., under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist. The subject of his lecture will be "Christian Science: Religion That Heals Through Prayer."

BACKGROUND

A native of New York City, he was educated at Columbia University and later studied musical composition under John Ireland of the Royal College of Music in London. Besides composing many well - known sacred solos and musical scores for many popular light operas, he organized and was director of the first music department in the motion picture industry for Metro Goldwyn Mayer Studios in Hollywood.

He subsequently became a producer of motion pictures and radio programs, acting also as manager and producer for his wife, Charlotte Greenwood.

Active in Christian Science for many years, Broones withdrew from business in 1948 to devote his full time to the practice of Christian Science healing. He became an authorized teacher of Christian Science in 1958.

Several new groups are expected to take part this year, including the Southerners of Monroe, under the management of S. L. Taylor.

L. L. Robinson, president of Morehouse Parish Singing Contion, will be chairman of the program.

Billy Graham Film Scheduled At Church Here

A life-long ambition of Evangelist Billy Graham is achieved as he tells the dramatic story of ancient "Jerusalem," in a new film release which will be shown 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Gymnasium of the First Baptist Church of Monroe.

The film is a release of World Wide Pictures. There will be no admission charge, church officials said.

The City of Jerusalem, for 4,000 years a focal point of human history and divine intervention, has been totally destroyed on at least two occasions, and has been captured by conquering armies more than 30 times. But it has been rebuilt from the rubble of its ruins to outlive all conquerors, clinging tenaciously to its rocky foundations as if determined to await a future day of glory.

The picture was filmed in 35 MM Eastman color by the same company whose filmed document of the Graham team's 1960 African itinerary, "Africa on the Bridge," won the American Film Festival's Golden Reel Award in the "Church at Work" category.

Lutheran Faith

The church is the body of Christ.

Consider it in this way—

Christ no longer walks the earth. He no longer reaches out his hand and feeds people . . . or heals people. He no longer gathers a group of people together and preaches to them.

Yet, all of these are still being done — through Christians.

These Christians are banded together in the church . . . and the church reaches out and feeds and heals and preaches.

The church is the body of Christ on earth in our day.

If you do not attend a Church you are cordially invited to attend . . . .

NON-AGGRESSION PACT

Pakistan Studies Red China Offer

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP)—Informed sources said Saturday Red China has offered to sign a nonaggression treaty with Pakistan, a defense partner of the Western powers which is irritated now by U.S. and British arms aid to India.

Parliamentary quarters reported the offer is under study by the government of President Mohammed Ayub Khan. Foreign Minister Mohammed Ali refused comment, but said he has accepted an invitation from Premier Chou En-lai to visit China soon.

A Foreign Office spokesman subsequently announced: "If such a proposal is placed before the minister (Ali) in Peking, it would be seriously examined."

A Karachi English-language newspaper, Daily Dawn, said the proposed pact includes an offer of Chinese Communist help for this Moslem nation against aggression from any quarter, while not requiring that the Pakistanis cut their ties with the West.

Pakistanis consider their prime danger is from the Indians, rival claimants to the border state of Kashmir. They dismiss the stagnated India-China war as a local border affair and view morosely the buildup of India's military strength.

Ayub Khan told the National Assembly Wednesday "the Hindu imperialism" of India is a greater danger to Pakistan than even international communism's permanent threat to peace. He said Pakistan would drop its alliances with the West if it found them of no use.

The president received a letter of unannounced import from Chou that day and had an hour's talk with the Communist Chinese ambassador to Pakistan, Ting Maz-yu.

By the Daily Dawn's account, the Chinese raised no objection to Pakistan remaining a member of the pro-Western Southeast Asia Treaty Organization and the Central Treaty Organization.

Pakistan is a charter member of both. It signed up for SEATO in 1954 and CENTO, originally the Baghdad Pact, in 1955.

Chiefs of U.S. and British missions now surveying India's arms situation are expected to visit Pakistan soon for conciliatory talks. The chiefs are W. Averell Harriman, U.S. assistant secretary of state, and Duncan Sandys, British Commonwealth secretary.

In Washington, the State Department declined comment on the reported offer.

A SEATO official at the alliance headquarters in Bangkok, Thailand, said "We will just have to wait and see what develops. Secretary-general Pote Sarasin declined comment.

Gaullist Win Is Expected In Elections

PARIS (UPI)—The triumphant De Gaulle bandwagon Saturday rolled toward the second round of France's parliamentary general elections with most observers predicting it would score another victory.

Communist gains also were expected in Sunday's polling for the National Assembly.

Crippling losses were forecast for the creaky alliance of old-time parties whose revolt against President Charles de Gaulle two months ago touched off a political crisis and resulted in the present elections.

The only issue really in doubt was whether De Gaulle's union for the New Republic (UNR) would obtain an absolute majority in the new National Assembly (lower house).

De Gaulle and his wife left Paris Saturday afternoon for their country home at Colombey-les-deux-Eglises where they will vote as usual.

In the first round last Sunday the UNR, originally expected to lose heavily, scored an overwhelming upset victory by winning nearly one-third of the popular votes.

Under the French voting system only those candidates who win an absolute majority of votes in their own constituency are elected in the first round.

There are 465 assembly seats for metropolitan France. The results of 96 of these were decided last Sunday and 46 of them went to the UNR.

Run-off ballots are being held Sunday in the remaining 369 voting districts. A simple plurality alone is necessary this time. Voting also is being held in seven of the 17 constituencies in overseas departments and territories.

The absolute majority of the 482-man National Assembly is 242. The most conservative estimates were that the UNR would win at least 188 seats. If last Sunday's De Gaulle landslide gain further momentum, the UNR was thought to stand a good chance of winning the absolute majority.

In addition, it will be able to count on the support of a breakaway wing of the independents (conservatives), once France's strongest right-wing party, which has plumped for De Gaulle.

The Communists, who had 10 seats in the last National Assembly, were the only party besides the UNR to increase its vote last Sunday. The Communists won 10 seats in the first round of voting and were expected to end up with 35-50.

The heaviest losers were expected to be the parties which rebelled against De Gaulle—the Socialists, Radical Socialists, and Catholic Popular Republicans (MRP) and Independents.

ECUMENICAL COUNCIL

Theology Dispute Forced Into Open

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council's dispute over a thesis on Scriptural theology may prove a blessing in disguise, a Christian unity expert said Saturday night.

"Because this thing has been forced into the open, the bishops here will be led by the hand through a Bible class," said a key member of the Vatican secretariat for Christian unity.

The thesis expands on Catholic teaching that Scripture and tradition are the sources of God's revealed word. Many prelates complained that its phrasing and tone lacked the pastoral spirit needed in the Christian unity movement, failed to include modern theologians' views and overstressed the old Protestant Reformation bugaboo about Roman Catholic emphasis on tradition instead of on Scripture.

The divine revelation thesis divided the council. It caused Pope John XXIII to halt discussion three days ago and order the document reworked by a special commission.

Saturday the Pope named the staff of that commission. Cardinals known for their broad views on renewal of Catholicism appeared to tip the balance. In addition to conservatives Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini, archbishop of Palermo, and Michael Cardinal Browne, Irish-born Vatican curia member, Pope John named four of the so-called progressives:

Achille Cardinal Lienart, bishop of Lille, France; Joseph Cardinal Frings, archbishop of Cologne, Germany; Albert Gregory Cardinal Meyer, archbishop of Chicago, and Joseph Cardinal Lefebvre, archbishop of Bourges, France.

They will work with the council's theological commission and Christian unity secretariat, together totaling some 70 members and representing a cross-section of progressives and conservatives.

Named co-chairman of the special commission were Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani, conservative leader and president of the theological commission, and Augustin Cardinal Bea, a progressive who is a renowned Biblical scholar and who heads the Christian unity secretariat.

The general conservative view is that what the Church has concluded about the Bible through centuries of past study is definitive and needs no re-examination.

Progressives, on the other hand, hold that modern disciplines such as archeology, comparative history and word studies can shed new light on the intentions and meanings of writers of the ancient Scripture writers.

Key Attorney Withdraws In Walker Case

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Robert Morris, a key attorney for former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker during his court-ordered mental test, said Saturday he has withdrawn from the case as civil liberties counsel, considering his role completed.

Morris, a Dallas lawyer previously said he would terminate his role in the Walker case when court action on the former Army officer's psychiatric examination had ended.

A federal judge in Oxford, Miss., ruled Wednesday that Walker was mentally competent to stand trial on federal charges of seditious conspiracy and inciting an insurrection evolving from the integration riots at the Unversity of Mississippi.

Morris, president of the Defenders of American Liberties, said in a statement that the Walker case has set a precedent that "is most dangerous to the civil liberties of virtually everyone else in the country."

Walker was arrested and charged Oct. 1 after riots occurred at the college the night of Sept. 30, following the arrival of James H. Meredith.

British, French Chiefs To Meet

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan will visit President Charles de Gaulle of France early next month before flying the Atlantic for a conference with President Kennedy, government officials reported Saturday night.

The major purpose of both meetings is to examine the world situation in the aftermath of the Cuban crisis.

Several Thousand Soviet Troops May Leave Cuba

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—An extensive dismantling of nonnuclear Soviet military bases in Cuba is now expected by U.S. officials to follow Soviet Premier Khrushchev's withdrawal of weapons with nuclear capability.

Russian diplomats are reported to have told U.S. representatives in recent days that several thousand more Soviet troops will be removed from the Caribbean island.

Russia, it is believed, may also disarm and abandon 24 surface-to-air missile sites which could offer formidable opposition to U.S. reconnaissance planes flying patrols over Prime Minister Fidel Castro's land. But evidently because Russians man the antiaircraft installations they have not been used against American planes in the last 10 days despite angry and explicit warnings by Castro that surveillance flights would be fired on.

Both the United States and Russia, Washington authorities say, are now trying to restore their relations to more normal, precrisis conditions. This may lead to efforts by both powers in the U.N. Security Council this week to take the waning crisis off the docket.

President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk, it is understood, would be willing to inform the Security Council that the United States has a policy of noninvasion toward Cuba under present conditions but will continue strict watch over the island in the absence of international inspection arrangements, which Castro has blocked.

Khrushchev pulled out big nuclear missiles from Cuba and agreed to permit U.S. warships to look over the deckloads of missile-carrying Soviet ships. Last Tuesday he promised to take out 30 or so IL28 jet bombers under a similar compromise inspection system.

White House, State Department and Pentagon planners are now looking into possibilities for some different approach to the inspection problem. Castro blocked Khrushchev's promise of U.N. inspection. One concept which has been talked about is the formation of a Caribbean, or some similar, zone free of nuclear weapons, or offensive weapons, which would be brought under a local system of international inspection.

The Caribbean nations, including Cuba and the United States, would be responsible for this. There is some feeling that Cuba might accept it but a number of other countries in the area are said to be against it.

U.S. officials profess to be satisfied that Khrushchev has removed or will remove the weapons specified — the big missiles and the bombers. They do not know what he might have sneaked into Cuba that aerial surveillance would never discover — or what might be hidden in the country's many caves. Thus, they say, pressure for inspection within the country must be continued. This pressure now will be brought to bear more on Cuba than on Russia since U.S.-Soviet tensions are easing off.

Russia is understood to be sending a large number of ships to Cuba now to remove the IL28s and Soviet troops. Washington is waiting for evidence that will show whether the Soviet withdrawal extends to other military installations also.

In any event Castro would be left with a powerful Caribbean force. He has a relatively large army with a great variety of Russian equipment including 300 or more tanks. He has about 100 MIG fighters, some of them quite modern. He has, in other words, a large defensive capacity for a small nation.

9th Traffic Death Noted In Richland

RAYVILLE (Special) — Richland Parish's ninth traffic death of 1962 has been recorded.

Dead is Elvin B. Lowery, about 45, of East Gadsen, Ala., who was killed at approximately 11:10 p.m. Friday when struck by an auto as he walked along U.S. Hwy. 80 between Start and Crew Lake.

Richland authorities said James K. Snee, 26, of Baton Rouge, attempted to pass a truck and struck Lowery with the left front side of his auto.

Authorities said Snee was blameless in the accident. Lowery, an apparent hitchhiker, was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. J. C. Ellington, coroner.

Snee had been visiting relatives in Rayville, authorities said. Lowery's body was taken to Mulhearn Funeral Home.

Pakistan Studies Red China Offer

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP)—Informed sources said Saturday Red China has offered to sign a nonaggression treaty with Pakistan, a defense partner of the Western powers which is irritated now by U.S. and British arms aid to India.

Parliamentary quarters reported the offer is under study by the government of President Mohammed Ayub Khan. Foreign Minister Mohammed Ali refused comment, but said he has accepted an invitation from Premier Chou En-lai to visit China soon.

A Foreign Office spokesman subsequently announced: "If such a proposal is placed before the minister (Ali) in Peking, it would be seriously examined."

A Karachi English-language newspaper, Daily Dawn, said the proposed pact includes an offer of Chinese Communist help for this Moslem nation against aggression from any quarter, while not requiring that the Pakistanis cut their ties with the West.

Pakistanis consider their prime danger is from the Indians, rival claimants to the border state of Kashmir. They dismiss the stagnated India-China war as a local border affair and view morosely the buildup of India's military strength.

Ayub Khan told the National Assembly Wednesday "the Hindu imperialism" of India is a greater danger to Pakistan than even international communism's permanent threat to peace. He said Pakistan would drop its alliances with the West if it found them of no use.

The president received a letter of unannounced import from Chou that day and had an hour's talk with the Communist Chinese ambassador to Pakistan, Ting Maz-yu.

By the Daily Dawn's account, the Chinese raised no objection to Pakistan remaining a member of the pro-Western Southeast Asia Treaty Organization and the Central Treaty Organization.

Pakistan is a charter member of both. It signed up for SEATO in 1954 and CENTO, originally the Baghdad Pact, in 1955.

Chiefs of U.S. and British missions now surveying India's arms situation are expected to visit Pakistan soon for conciliatory talks. The chiefs are W. Averell Harriman, U.S. assistant secretary of state, and Duncan Sandys, British Commonwealth secretary.

In Washington, the State Department declined comment on the reported offer.

A SEATO official at the alliance headquarters in Bangkok, Thailand, said "We will just have to wait and see what develops. Secretary-general Pote Sarasin declined comment.

Key Attorney Withdraws In Walker Case

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Robert Morris, a key attorney for former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker during his court-ordered mental test, said Saturday he has withdrawn from the case as civil liberties counsel, considering his role completed.

Morris, a Dallas lawyer previously said he would terminate his role in the Walker case when court action on the former Army officer's psychiatric examination had ended.

A federal judge in Oxford, Miss., ruled Wednesday that Walker was mentally competent to stand trial on federal charges of seditious conspiracy and inciting an insurrection evolving from the integration riots at the Unversity of Mississippi.

Morris, president of the Defenders of American Liberties, said in a statement that the Walker case has set a precedent that "is most dangerous to the civil liberties of virtually everyone else in the country."

Walker was arrested and charged Oct. 1 after riots occurred at the college the night of Sept. 30, following the arrival of James H. Meredith.

Several Thousand Soviet Troops May Leave Cuba

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—An extensive dismantling of nonnuclear Soviet military bases in Cuba is now expected by U.S. officials to follow Soviet Premier Khrushchev's withdrawal of weapons with nuclear capability.

Russian diplomats are reported to have told U.S. representatives in recent days that several thousand more Soviet troops will be removed from the Caribbean island.

Russia, it is believed, may also disarm and abandon 24 surface-to-air missile sites which could offer formidable opposition to U.S. reconnaissance planes flying patrols over Prime Minister Fidel Castro's land. But evidently because Russians man the antiaircraft installations they have not been used against American planes in the last 10 days despite angry and explicit warnings by Castro that surveillance flights would be fired on.

Both the United States and Russia, Washington authorities say, are now trying to restore their relations to more normal, precrisis conditions. This may lead to efforts by both powers in the U.N. Security Council this week to take the waning crisis off the docket.

President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk, it is understood, would be willing to inform the Security Council that the United States has a policy of noninvasion toward Cuba under present conditions but will continue strict watch over the island in the absence of international inspection arrangements, which Castro has blocked.

Khrushchev pulled out big nuclear missiles from Cuba and agreed to permit U.S. warships to look over the deckloads of missile-carrying Soviet ships. Last Tuesday he promised to take out 30 or so IL28 jet bombers under a similar compromise inspection system.

White House, State Department and Pentagon planners are now looking into possibilities for some different approach to the inspection problem. Castro blocked Khrushchev's promise of U.N. inspection. One concept which has been talked about is the formation of a Caribbean, or some similar, zone free of nuclear weapons, or offensive weapons, which would be brought under a local system of international inspection.

The Caribbean nations, including Cuba and the United States, would be responsible for this. There is some feeling that Cuba might accept it but a number of other countries in the area are said to be against it.

U.S. officials profess to be satisfied that Khrushchev has removed or will remove the weapons specified — the big missiles and the bombers. They do not know what he might have sneaked into Cuba that aerial surveillance would never discover — or what might be hidden in the country's many caves. Thus, they say, pressure for inspection within the country must be continued. This pressure now will be brought to bear more on Cuba than on Russia since U.S.-Soviet tensions are easing off.

Russia is understood to be sending a large number of ships to Cuba now to remove the IL28s and Soviet troops. Washington is waiting for evidence that will show whether the Soviet withdrawal extends to other military installations also.

In any event Castro would be left with a powerful Caribbean force. He has a relatively large army with a great variety of Russian equipment including 300 or more tanks. He has about 100 MIG fighters, some of them quite modern. He has, in other words, a large defensive capacity for a small nation.

ECUMENICAL COUNCIL

Theology Dispute Forced Into Open

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council's dispute over a thesis on Scriptural theology may prove a blessing in disguise, a Christian unity expert said Saturday night.

"Because this thing has been forced into the open, the bishops here will be led by the hand through a Bible class," said a key member of the Vatican secretariat for Christian unity.

The thesis expands on Catholic teaching that Scripture and tradition are the sources of God's revealed word. Many prelates complained that its phrasing and tone lacked the pastoral spirit needed in the Christian unity movement, failed to include modern theologians' views and overstressed the old Protestant Reformation bugaboo about Roman Catholic emphasis on tradition instead of on Scripture.

The divine revelation thesis divided the council. It caused Pope John XXIII to halt discussion three days ago and order the document reworked by a special commission.

Saturaday the Pope named the staff of that commission. Cardinals known for their broad views on renewal of Catholicism appeared to tip the balance. In addition to conservatives Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini, archbishop of Palermo, and Michael Cardinal Browne, Irish-born Vatican curia member, Pope John named four of the so-called progressives:

Achille Cardinal Lienart, bishop of Lille, France; Joseph Cardinal Frings, archbishop of Cologne, Germany; Albert Gregory Cardinal Meyer, archbishop of Chicago, and Joseph Cardinal Lefebvre, archbishop of Bourges, France.

They will work with the council's theological commission and Christian unity secretariat, together totalling some 70 members and representing a cross-section of progressives and conservatives.

Named co-chairman of the special commission were Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani, conservative leader and president of the theological commission, and Augustin Cardinal Bea, a progressive who is a renowned Biblical scholar and who heads the Christian unity secretariat.

The general conservative view is that what the Church has concluded about the Bible through centuries of past study is definitive and needs no re-examination.

Progressives, on the other hand, hold that modern disciplines such as archeology, comparative history and word studies can shed new light on the intentions and meanings of writers of the ancient Scripture writers.

British, French Chiefs To Meet

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan will visit President Charles de Gaulle of France early next month before flying the Atlantic for a conference with President Kennedy, government officials reported Saturday night.

The major purpose of both meetings is to examine the world situation in the aftermath of the Cuban crisis.

Gaullist Win Is Expected In Elections

PARIS (UPI)—The triumphant De Gaulle bandwagon Saturday rolled toward the second round of France's parliamentary general elections with most observers predicting it would score another victory.

Communist gains also were expected in Sunday's polling for the National Assembly.

Crippling losses were forecast for the creaky alliance of old-time parties whose revolt against President Charles de Gaulle two months ago touched off a political crisis and resulted in the present elections.

The only issue really in doubt was whether De Gaulle's union for the New Republic (UNR) would obtain an absolute majority in the new National Assembly (lower house).

De Gaulle and his wife left Paris Saturday afternoon for their country home at Colombey-les-deux-Eglises where they will vote as usual.

In the first round last Sunday the UNR, originally expected to lose heavily, scored an overwhelming upset victory by winning nearly one-third of the popular votes.

Under the French voting system only those candidates who win an absolute majority of votes in their own constituency are elected in the first round.

There are 465 assembly seats for metropolitan France. The results of 96 of these were decided last Sunday and 46 of them went to the UNR.

Run-off ballots are being held Sunday in the remaining 369 voting districts. A simple plurality alone is necessary this time. Voting also is being held in seven of the 17 constituencies in overseas departments and territories.

The absolute majority of the 482-man National Assembly is 242. The most conservative estimates were that the UNR would win at least 188 seats. If last Sunday's De Gaulle landslide gain further momentum, the UNR was thought to stand a good chance of winning the absolute majority.

In addition, it will be able to count on the support of a breakaway wing of the independents (conservatives), once France's strongest right-wing party, which has plumped for De Gaulle.

The Communists, who had 10 seats in the last National Assembly, were the only party besides the UNR to increase its vote last Sunday. The Communists won 10 seats in the first round of voting and were expected to end up with 35-50.

The heaviest losers were expected to be the parties which rebelled against De Gaulle—the Socialists, Radical Socialists, and Catholic Popular Republicans (MRP) and Independents.

9th Traffic Death Noted In Richland

RAYVILLE (Special) — Richland Parish's ninth traffic death of 1962 has been recorded.

Dead is Elvin B. Lowery, about 45, of East Gadsen, Ala., who was killed at approximately 11:10 p.m. Friday when struck by an auto as he walked along U.S. Hwy. 80 between Start and Crew Lake.

Richland authorities said James K. Snee, 26, of Baton Rouge, attempted to pass a truck and struck Lowery with the left front side of his auto.

Authorities said Snee was blameless in the accident. Lowery, an apparent hitchhiker, was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. J. C. Ellington, coroner.

Snee had been visiting relatives in Rayville, authorities said. Lowery's body was taken to Mulhearn Funeral Home.

It's Syrup Cooking Time On The Farm

Monroe Morning World
SUNDAY FEATURES
Section B, Page One November 25, 1962
Editorials Spotlight Sports

Several years ago when fall came and sugar cane stood in the fields laden with sweet succulence, mills were fired up on many farms to process the juice into syrup, which was in heavy demand. There are few farm syrup mills left in the area. One of the holdouts is on a plantation south of Monroe. Here is an account of the syrup maker and the mill.

The wholesome sweetness of fall was in the air for several days recently on Refugio Plantation, eight miles south of Monroe.

During that time aromatic vapors rose from a small shed on the edge of a pecan orchard which borders Columbia Highway.

O. S. McDonald was presiding over the annual syrup making operations there as he has for many years.

McDonald, who will be 67 on Nov. 29, said, "I don't recall more than two or three years of my lifetime that I haven't been making syrup."

BORN AT JONESBORO

He was born and raised at Jonesboro, and his father bought Refugio Plantation, which has 540 acres, in 1918, while he was serving in the Navy.

McDonald has been operating the farm since 1927, and owns it jointly with a brother and two sisters.

Source of the raw material used in syrup making was two acres of CP 29116 sugar cane, a variety which originated at Canal Point, Florida, and was developed by Louisiana State University researchers. It is especially adapted as a source of syrup producing nectar.

The first cane was cut while the mill was being repaired and readied for cooking operations. Juice extraction is started only a few minutes before cooking time.

After gas fed fires have heated the cooking pan, or evaporator to a certain level, a batch of syrup is run off every 10 or 15 minutes. It takes a skilled syrup maker to know when to draw off the thick, sweet fluid to get it at the peak of goodness and avoid it being burned.

"I consider myself a good syrup maker," said McDonald, as he peered through the rising steam vapors that filled the small shed.

JUICE RATIO

"It takes five to six gallons of juice to make a gallon of syrup," he continued. "And I have made as much as 625 gallons an acre off of cane, but this year, because of the dryness, there is less water to be cooked out. But it makes a better, sweeter syrup."

There are several tests to determine when syrup is ready to be drained from the evaporating pan, but the way it drips from one of the wooden gates used in regulating flow, and its color appearance, are two of the most used guides.

"As it gets nearer to being done," McDonald explained, "the bubbles get smaller and the syrup turns a golden yellow."

Daily production ranges from 150 to 200 gallons. On one day recently, 200 gallons of finished syrup came from his mill.

Annual production rates vary. Several years ago he maintained about five acres of cane, but more recently he has reduced that to two acres.

As he tested the savory liquid and gave directions to others around the cooking pan, McDonald recalled, "I used to make around 2,500 to 2,600 gallons a year. Last year I just about had a failure. Wet weather drowned out the cane, and the stubbles in the field soured, and I didn't have a seed stock to replace them. On an average year I turn out about 1,500 gallons."

PREFERENCE

Some people have a special liking for cane juice, as evidenced in the fall when cane stalks are sold around the area to those who chew on short segments to extract the sweet nectar.

Passersby who are attracted by the beehive of activity and the flavorful aromas being wafted on the air, stop at the mill to observe operations. Some buy syrup to enhance hotcakes and biscuits, and others show preference for the fresh green colored juice which flows to the cooking pan from a nearby extractor mill.

The veteran syrup maker likes to drink some of the fresh cane juice, and offers it to some of his friends who stop by the mill.

"It's a good tonic," he said.

At the peak of the cooking operations there are eight or nine persons helping, hauling fresh cane to the extractor, grinding, moving bagasse (the stalk residue), cooking, and filling cans and jars.

VETERAN WORKERS

Two negro workers who have helped in the syrup making for many years are Rosie Lee Adams and Jimmie Summerlin.

Among the white workers at the mill are Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Deramus.

Work at the mill starts around 7 a.m. daily, "but," said McDonald, "it takes until about 8:30 a.m. to get the pan cleaned and enough juice squeezed out."

It also takes several minutes for the pan to heat sufficiently so batches can be run off frequently.

The shed which houses the cooking equipment is 24 feet by 16 feet in size, and of wood frame construction with a metal roof.

The rectangular shaped evaporator pan is made of 18 gauge galvanized metal. It is 16 feet long, four feet wide, and 12 inches deep. A quarter section of it is separated from the rest by a partition, and this is the area where the juice flows for the final minutes of cooking.

The pan is gas heated and banked all around the base with brick and clay. The underpan heating area leads to a clay and brick flue at the end and extending outside of the shed. The 12-inch diameter flue pipe extends up about 14 feet.

CLAY REPLACED

The bricks are used over and over in the flue system, but the clay is replaced every year. This year McDonald obtained the proper type red clay at an area about 12 or 15 miles from Monroe, he said.

The milling operation starts at a point about 30 feet from the shed, where grinding and extracting rollers are mounted on a framework about four feet above the ground. From that point juice flows through a plastic pipe to a strainer barrel, and from there it enters the cooking pan.

At the end where it enters one worker strains it to remove residue which forms in the early stages of cooking. As the syrup in the finishing section of the pan is run off, more partly cooked juice is allowed to enter the area.

This part of the operation is precise. McDonald places a wooden gate across the pan behind the syrup which will be run out into a receiving vat. As the finished syrup flows out, he moves the gate behind it and opens a valve releasing the partly cooked juice into the portion of the pan. However it can not pass the wooden gate which separates it from the finished product.

TO AVOID BURNING

McDonald explained that this is done so the pan will not burn because of a short absence of liquid in it. A wooden spigot plug is used to control the flow of freshly cooked syrup.

The receiving vat has a release spigot near the base. From here the finished product is run into a container and then placed in jars and cans.

This completes the trip from field to cooker to container, but for the sweet product the travel is far from over. A lot of mileage will be chalked up before all of the cans and jars arrive at their destinations, on the tables of homes throughout the area and in a number of states.

"I ship syrup all over the country," said McDonald. "I've sent it to as high as 26 states in one year. Some has already been sent this year to Tennessee and California, and some to Arkansas and Texas. I sell quite a bit in Texas."

REPLANTS CANE

To keep a source of syrup making material, McDonald replants cane about every three years. Cane stalks chopped about two to two and one-half feet in length in the fall are stored until planting time in the spring.

In addition to the plantation proper, McDonald leases 120 acres. Row crops are grown on the farm, as well as livestock. Partners in the farm with him are a brother, W. W. McDonald Jr., of Jonesboro, and two sisters, Mrs. C. C. Shultz, a teacher at Ouachita Parish High School, and Miss Rosa Belle McDonald, principal at Lexington School here. The two sisters live on the farm.

McDonald is married and has a son, Oscar S. McDonald Jr., of Houston, Texas, and a daughter, Mrs. S. E. (Joan) Hodges, of Dallas, Texas.

He raises, in partnership with his brother and a nephew, purebred quarterhorses, and expects a "good crop of colts next year."

"I guess I'm about the only one on this side of the river in Ouachita Parish who makes syrup on the farm to any extent," McDonald said.

Farm centered syrup mills are a vanishing element in this section of Louisiana, but the sweetness from the Refugio Plantation operation will receive pleasant notice at breakfast tables for some time after the fires have gone out under the cooking pan.

It's Syrup Cooking Time On The Farm

Several years ago when fall came and sugar cane stood in the fields laden with sweet succulence, mills were fired up on many farms to process the juice into syrup, which was in heavy demand. There are few farm syrup mills left in the area. One of the holdouts is on a plantation south of Monroe. Here is an account of the syrup maker and the mill.

The wholesome sweetness of fall was in the air for several days recently on Refugio Plantation, eight miles south of Monroe.

During that time aromatic vapors rose from a small shed on the edge of a pecan orchard which borders Columbia Highway.

O. S. McDonald was presiding over the annual syrup making operations there as he has for many years.

McDonald, who will be 67 on Nov. 29, said, "I don't recall more than two or three years of my lifetime that I haven't been making syrup."

BORN AT JONESBORO

He was born and raised at Jonesboro, and his father bought Refugio Plantation, which has 540 acres, in 1918, while he was serving in the Navy.

McDonald has been operating the farm since 1927, and owns it jointly with a brother and two sisters.

Source of the raw material used in syrup making was two acres of CP 29116 sugar cane, a variety which originated at Canal Point, Florida, and was developed by Louisiana State University researchers. It is especially adapted as a source of syrup producing nectar.

The first cane was cut while the mill was being repaired and readied for cooking operations. Juice extraction is started only a few minutes before cooking time.

After gas fed fires have heated the cooking pan, or evaporator to a certain level, a batch of syrup is run off every 10 or 15 minutes. It takes a skilled syrup maker to know when to draw off the thick, sweet fluid to get it at the peak of goodness and avoid it being burned.

"I consider myself a good syrup maker," said McDonald, as he peered through the rising steam vapors that filled the small shed.

JUICE RATIO

"It takes five to six gallons of juice to make a gallon of syrup," he continued. "And I have made as much as 625 gallons an acre off of cane, but this year, because of the dryness, there is less water to be cooked out. But it makes a better, sweeter syrup."

There are several tests to determine when syrup is ready to be drained from the evaporating pan, but the way it drips from one of the wooden gates used in regulating flow, and its color appearance, are two of the most used guides.

"As it gets nearer to being done," McDonald explained, "the bubbles get smaller and the syrup turns a golden yellow."

Daily production ranges from 150 to 200 gallons. On one day recently, 200 gallons of finished syrup came from his mill.

Annual production rates vary. Several years ago he maintained about five acres of cane, but more recently he has reduced that to two acres.

As he tested the savory liquid and gave directions to others around the cooking pan, McDonald recalled, "I used to make around 2,500 to 2,600 gallons a year. Last year I just about had a failure. Wet weather drowned out the cane, and the stubbles in the field soured, and I didn't have a seed stock to replace them. On an average year I turn out about 1,500 gallons."

PREFERENCE

Some people have a special liking for cane juice, as evidenced in the fall when cane stalks are sold around the area to those who chew on short segments to extract the sweet nectar.

Passersby who are attracted by the beehive of activity and the flavorful aromas being wafted on the air, stop at the mill to observe operations. Some buy syrup to enhance hotcakes and biscuits, and others show preference for the fresh green colored juice which flows to the cooking pan from a nearby extractor mill.

The veteran syrup maker likes to drink some of the fresh cane juice, and offers it to some of his friends who stop by the mill.

"It's a good tonic," he said.

At the peak of the cooking operations there are eight or nine persons helping, hauling fresh cane to the extractor, grinding, moving bagasse (the stalk residue), cooking, and filling cans and jars.

R. D. DERAMUS checks operation of unit which extracts juice from sugar cane at the syrup mill on Refugio Plantation.

FRESH SUGAR CANE juice flows from extractor through strainer on its way to evaporator pan and transformation into syrup.

VETERAN WORKERS

Two negro workers who have helped in the syrup making for many years are Rosie Lee Adams and Jimmie Summerlin.

Among the white workers at the mill are Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Deramus.

Work at the mill starts around 7 a.m. daily, "but," said McDonald, "it takes until about 8:30 a.m. to get the pan cleaned and enough juice squeezed out."

It also takes several minutes for the pan to heat sufficiently so batches can be run off frequently.

The shed which houses the cooking equipment is 24 feet by 16 feet in size, and of wood frame construction with a metal roof.

The rectangular shaped evaporator pan is made of 18 gauge galvanized metal. It is 16 feet long, four feet wide, and 12 inches deep. A quarter section of it is separated from the rest by a partition, and this is the area where the juice flows for the final minutes of cooking.

The pan is gas heated and banked all around the base with brick and clay. The underpan heating area leads to a clay and brick flue at the end and extending outside of the shed. The 12-inch diameter flue pipe extends up about 14 feet.

CLAY REPLACED

The bricks are used over and over in the flue system, but the clay is replaced every year. This year McDonald obtained the proper type red clay at an area about 12 or 15 miles from Monroe, he said.

The milling operation starts at a point about 30 feet from the shed, where grinding and extracting rollers are mounted on a framework about four feet above the ground. From that point juice flows through a plastic pipe to a strainer barrel, and from there it enters the cooking pan.

McDonald holds two jars of fresh sugar cane syrup.

At the end where it enters one worker strains it to remove residue which forms in the early stages of cooking. As the syrup in the finishing section of the pan is run off, more partly cooked juice is allowed to enter the area.

This part of the operation is precise. McDonald places a wooden gate across the pan behind the syrup which will be run out into a receiving vat. As the finished syrup flows out, he moves the gate behind it and opens a valve releasing the partly cooked juice into the portion of the pan. However it can not pass the wooden gate which separates it from the finished product.

TO AVOID BURNING

McDonald explained that this is done so the pan will not burn because of a short absence of liquid in it. A wooden spigot plug is used to control the flow of freshly cooked syrup.

The receiving vat has a release spigot near the base. From here the finished product is run into a container and then placed in jars and cans.

This completes the trip from field to cooker to container, but for the sweet product the travel is far from over. A lot of mileage will be chalked up before all of the cans and jars arrive at their destinations, on the tables of homes throughout the area and in a number of states.

"I ship syrup all over the country," said McDonald. "I've sent it to as high as 26 states in one year. Some has already been sent this year to Tennessee and California, and some to Arkansas and Texas. I sell quite a bit in Texas."

REPLANTS CANE

To keep a source of syrup making material, McDonald replants cane about every three years. Cane stalks chopped about two to two and one-half feet in length in the fall are stored until planting time in the spring.

In addition to the plantation proper, McDonald leases 120 acres. Row crops are grown on the farm, as well as livestock. Partners in the farm with him are a brother, W. W. McDonald Jr., of Jonesboro, and two sisters, Mrs. C. C. Shultz, a teacher at Ouachita Parish High School, and Miss Rosa Belle McDonald, principal at Lexington School here. The two sisters live on the farm.

McDonald is married and has a son, Oscar S. McDonald Jr., of Houston, Texas, and a daughter, Mrs. S. E. (Joan) Hodges, of Dallas, Texas.

He raises, in partnership with his brother and a nephew, purebred quarterhorses, and expects a "good crop of colts next year."

"I guess I'm about the only one on this side of the river in Ouachita Parish who makes syrup on the farm to any extent," McDonald said.

Farm centered syrup mills are a vanishing element in this section of Louisiana, but the sweetness from the Refugio Plantation operation will receive pleasant notice at breakfast tables for some time after the fires have gone out under the cooking pan.

No Worse Teacher

Earl Warren, chief justice of the Supreme court of the United States, has offered a proposal that is likely to make most right-thinking people shudder. The chief justice suggested that we need schools to teach a new profession, whose members would advise all about ethics of right and wrong, presumably for fees.

Warren apparently has forgotten all about the Ten Commandments of the Bible and the ministerial profession in which right and wrong are taught from a moral viewpoint and not from the standpoint of what might be the most advantageous socially, financially or politically.

Most Americans would rather do right than wrong, be fair than unfair, help rather than hurt their fellow men. Most contribute to charities, are kind to animals and treat their families with love and respect. Those who do not obviously prefer not to, for it is certain that in this religious and enlightened land of ours they have had the opportunity to learn right from wrongs.

Chief Justice Warren's actions on the supreme court have done anything except convince people that his advice generally is good.

Almost uniformly, he has ruled in favor of communists and communist activities in the United States, holding any restriction of their operations to be unconstitutional. Say what one will, it is impossible to find a person who comes nearer to knowing right from wrong than one who observes the Ten Commandments. Communists claim there is no Supreme Being and that, therefore, the Ten Commandments are null and void. In upholding them, Warren seems to support their plan for discarding the Bible and the things it stands for. If he does that, he discards the greatest plan for teaching the difference between right and wrong that the world has ever known.

Warren also has ruled invariably in favor of forced integration, setting up a situation which is repugnant not only to most normal human beings but to virtually every kind of animal — a situation in which a creature is not allowed to choose its associates. Warren must recognize that nature exists and that a forced violation of nature's processes is both wrong and harmful.

Thirdly, the chief justice has toed the line of socialism in his decisions, which means taking away the rights of individuals. When individuals lose their right of freedom, they also lose the right to think as they choose.

Apparently, the chief justice feels there are some hard and close decisions many of us must make in situations where right and wrong cannot be made out clearly. A paid counselor would hear our problems, suck his pipe a while and then tell us what course to take, with a final "Ten dollars, please." But what reason is there to think his training, which may have been based purely on animalistic theories, is better than ours, which may have had its origin in the Ten Commandments.

The morality of Americans is learned. Parents start us on the way to being not only ethical but honest-thinking adults. Churches help us through our lifetimes. Experience teaches us there are penalties for damaging our fellows, even when the law does not step in. Conscience, indescribable, mysterious and powerful, wells up in most of us and is beyond the power of any academy to instill.

A new profession, dealing in instant righteousness might relieve some of us of the pain of facing choices, but we would be weaker and poorer for it. The more we shunned making our own decisions, the more we would have need for the services of professional "deciders," until finally we would reach the point of not knowing whether to come in out of the rain without paying $10 to an adviser to tell us.

Steeped in socialism as he is, Warren must believe that few individuals are able to think for themselves. In all probability, he holds to the theory that most people are not capable of doing their own thinking, that they need professional thinkers and that the duty of these professional thinkers would be to train the common herd along the lines of socialism.

The philosophies of the principal religions in this land hold that man has a free will and that he has it for a purpose. This sometimes troublesome gift cannot be delegated to professional thinkers, although the socialists want to do just that.

In this land of the free and the home of the brave we already have so many people telling us what to do that we are in danger of losing our precious heritages.

Most of us don't want anyone to do our thinking for us and, even if we did, Chief Justice Warren would be far down on our list.

National Culture Center

In most other countries of the world, the capital is the center of national culture and of all the glitter associated with the identity of the country: thus, London, Berlin, Paris and so on are where one goes is he wants to get the "feel" of a country.

The city of Washington, of course, was created, and while its marble edifices are the repository of many reminders of the nation's history and leaders it has never been thought of as particularly a cultural center. That part of the nation's culture, as distinguished from government itself, which one finds in other capitals is lacking there. The city has one playhouse. New York is the center of things.

For this reason, President Kennedy's plea for contributions to erect a $30,000,000 National Culture Center for the performing arts on a 13-acre site on the banks of the Potomac should be well received. It was a dream of George Washington's that America's national identity should be evidenced in something more than government functions. Recent Presidents have since revived and backed the idea, but it has been left largely to Americans distinguished in the arts to really push the plan.

Best of all, no federal handouts are associated with the proposed center: that in itself is a tribute to the people, not the least of whose characteristics is doing wothwhile things themselves. The government will own the land, but nothing else. It was donated by Act of Congress in 1958 with the stipulation that donations build the center.

The center will, initially, consist of three halls: a 2,750-capacity hall for symphonies; another seating 1,200 for the theater, and a third of 2,500 capacity for opera, ballet and musical comedy. There is plenty of room for other structures.

Modern theater, Greek tragedy, lectures, ballets, symphonies, jazz concerts and, not least, folk singing, are some of the activities envisioned. Outstanding performers will make tours and many programs will be filmed and taped so that they will be available all over the country.

Communities will be encouraged to promote native talent for a chance to break into national recognition. This is one of the most attractive features of the center, but there will be no shortage of foreign artists who, heretofore, have had to be content with makeshift arrangements.

Third — We are blessed with the freedom to worship God in this beautiful country of ours, as we see fit.

Fourth — Again we should thank God to be able to express our ways in the different atmospheres that confront us in our everyday living, being in America gives us that privilege.

Fifth — We should give thanks to our Heavenly Father for this great country, where we are privileged to raise and harvest anything for the well-being of all mankind without anyone telling us what we should raise or how much.

Sixth — We should praise our God for giving us the freedom to exchange ideas among our friends and neighbors, which couldn't happen anywhere but in the United States.

Seventh — We should appreciate our greatest heritage of being able to go and enjoy as well as see the finest arts that America can offer such as musicals, operas, concerts, art shows, symphonies, etc. without criticism or conviction.

Eighth — In this wonderful country, we should express our love to God in living in a democratic country for the benefit of all.

Ninth — We should be proud we live in a country like America which offers love and devotion instead of hate, wrong and condemnation for those who want to live a good life.

Tenth and lastly — We should be thankful to be able to express our rights in this great government of ours, ruled by three of the legislature and not by communism.

On Bonds And Bias

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

This is November 20, 1962, Bond Election Day. Who, Sir, wrote your editorial this morning? Was it Bobby Kennedy or General Bull Moose? It smacks so of Big Brotherism and What's-Good-for-Me-is-Good-for Youism that I must ask the question.

Big Brother, I have news for you. In a Democracy any time a proposition is put before the public it is put there for public investigation and will draw opposition from some quarter. You can thank your lucky stars that the opposition on this issue was based on fact and free from selfish interests — that it was motivated by principle, not personal greed — that it was instituted by citizens who feel a genuine need for fiscal responsibility in all phases of government and a need for real progress not dictated by opportunism. You are lucky your Opposition observed the Marquis of Queensbury Rules on this one, Big Brother. No one's honesty was impugned, no motives were questioned, no reputations attacked — By the Opposition.

You newspapers are quick to holler long and loud about such things as Freedom of the Press. Let a poor citizen, armed with nothing but logic and stuck with a principle, open his mouth to question the Great Cause you support and you jump down his throat with your entire editorial policy. Even as this letter is being written the bond issue is being voted on so it cannot influence votes — isn't meant to, but I say shame on you, Big Brother. Big Bully. Big Bully Brother. You probably win so throw your weight around and criticize some more we who question — we who stand on principle — we who just don't count!

It is my sincere hope you support with equal vigor the inevitably upcoming School Bond Issue and Utilities Bond Issue. Both of these will represent at the same time true progress and necessity. Even I shall support them. Even as I support them, however, I will remember your promise that extravagance would only cost me two mills.

Honoring Madison

To the Editor:

On December 31 of this year, Colonel George T. Madison will end 32 years of dedicated service on the State Board of Education.

Since it has been my privilege to serve as president of the University of Southwestern Louisiana during twenty-two of those years, I know from my own observation how great a public service Colonel Madison has rendered to the citizens of this state.

Louisiana, especially public education in Louisiana, has been most fortunate to have had a man of Colonel Madison's caliber serve in a position of public trust.

Colonel Madison's long and honorable tenure on the Board should be an inspiration to all the citizens of our state.

1963-64 Tax Cuts

Kennedy To Propose Slashes For Individuals And Business

President Kennedy will propose to the new Congress soon after it convenes in January a tax package including big cuts in the federal taxes we pay as individuals and businessmen and also major moves to close loopholes in our structure. This is set. Only a sudden intensification of world crisis could upset this schedule.

The over-all tax reductions easily could top $10 billion, possibly approach $12 billion — making this one of the largest tax reductions in U.S. history.

The reforms — which would be aimed at broadening the base of taxation in our country by taxing types of income now exempt from levy — would offset part of this revenue loss to the Treasury, but as Treasury Secretary Dillon said flatly 10 days ago, "The net reduction after the reforms and rate cuts have been taken into account will be a significant one."

Individuals would get the giant share of the cuts and there would be tax savings for individuals in every income bracket.

Corporations would get substantial cuts too on top of the $2 billion annual tax reductions they have been given this year via the liberalized depreciation rules and the 7 per cent investment credit for firms buying new machinery or equipment.

The cuts would come in two steps — the biggest reductions in 1963, the balance in 1964.

The first part of the tax cut would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1963, the second part of the reduction would apply in 1964.

The two-step approach would be designed to (1) help minimize the budget deficit resulting from the reduction, considered imperative to win congressional backing for the proposals; (2) spread out the tax reductions to give the economy a needed stimulant in 1963, another stimulant in 1964 and to pave the way for 1956-66, when the post-World War II babies will be reaching marrying age and giving the economy a great "natural" stimulant just by getting together and setting up new households; (3) prevent a too strong stimulant at one time in 1963 and thus avert putting inflationary pressures on prices and wages; and (4) provide the new Congress with ample opportunity to consider the whole package of tax reduction-reform over a prolonged period.

None of this will be firm until, say, mid-December. Treasury experts are still working around the clock on details, arguing the merits of the two-step approach, etc. Kennedy hasn't yet made up his mind. But the above is the tax pattern which is emerging.

President Kennedy's commitment to propose "across-the-board, top-to-bottom" tax cuts in January is unqualified and since he made this pledge Aug. 13, leading members of his administration have repeatedly re-emphasized the promise. While details of the proposals are not being openly discussed, the reduction part of the package is hardly a secret either. I began reporting its outline last spring. Specifically:

The tax rate on corporations would be reduced from the present 52 per cent level to the pre-Korean level of 47 per cent.

The top tax rate on individuals would be slashed from the present punitive 91 per cent level to 65 per cent. This would cost the Treasury very little, for few taxpayers get into the top bracket; their tax lawyers and accountants don't let them get into it.

The bottom tax rate on individuals would be sliced from the present 20 per cent level to 15 per cent. This is where the big tax savings would come for this basic tax rate provides the overwhelming percentage of the Treasury's take.

Rates would be cut proportionately within the new 15-65 percentage to give all individual income groups tax savings.

The corporation tax cut would amount to $2.5 billion a year and the individual tax cut to $9 billion or even more a year, if and when the reductions are voted in their entirety.

This would be great tax reduction, designed not just to give our economy a shot in the arm but to eliminate the drag our tax structure now exerts on business whenever it perks up. And if Congress follows through, this could be the financial medicine which would pull our economy out of its long cycle of sluggish growth and into a new era of powerful, sustained expansion.

Estes Case Flop

No New Agriculture Regulations To Prevent Repetition

For a scandal that once threatened to rival Teapot Dome, the Billie Sol Estes case seems short of solid results.

Estes, to be sure, faces eight years imprisonment after his conviction in Tyler, Texas, on fraud charges — provided his appeals are unavailing.

But so far as the Federal Government is concerned, the case has largely passed by and subsided.

Until mid-November the Agriculture Department had not issued a single new regulations or made a solitary organizational change designed to prevent a recurrence of the Estes case. Basically, it held to secretary Orville Freeman's insistence that the Federal Government never lost a dime from the Texan's manipulations.

On November 15, Freeman abolished a string of commodity offices, including the one at Dallas which handled the Estes case in its early stages. Theoretically, the new system will assit in pinpointing responsibility for Department mistakes — something unsettled in the Estes affair to this day.

Two veteran Congressional investigators — Senator John L. McClellan (D) Arkansas, and Representative L. R. Fountain (D) North Carolina, conducted massive probes into Estes' complex string of business deals and his generosity toward people in high places.

Neither committee has yet published a report on what it found out. McClellan's committee adjourned with plans to call Estes himself — and has yet to set a date to resume.

The Senate and the House each voted twice on major farm bills last summer. Not a line in any of this legislation remotely bore on the type of cotton allotment hanky-panky Estes allegedly indulged in.

It has been argued that the Estes scandals were used as ammunition to defeat the Administration's farm bill in the House and replace it with a more moderate one. This notion is debatable: there's a strong chance the bill would have been beaten anyway.

The November Congressional elections were surprising in retrospect for almost complete lack of any mention of Estes except in the west Texas race between Rep. J. T. Rutherford (D) and Ed Foreman. Rutherford's lack of prompt statement about accepting contributions from Estes is widely held to be a factor in his defeat after four terms.

Earlier, Rep. H. Carl Andersen (R) Minn., was defeated in the GOP primary after his opponent lost no opportunity to remind the voters Andersen, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, had sold some mine stock to Estes under questionable circumstances.

Four officials of the Agriculture Department were fired — or not prevented from resigning — for accepting haberdashery from Estes.

The Agriculture Department, focus of the uproar of criticism that arose after the scandal broke last April, insists that its existing regulations are sufficient to prevent any more Estes-style cotton deals or smoke them out promplty after they are committed.

The Department officials explain, in a somewhat discouraged way, that Estes' Federal indictments are not related to the cotton allotments, but to his alleged fraud in selling mortgages on fictitious fertilizer tanks to a group of private financial houses. These deals do not involve the Agriculture Department.

They also claim that the illegality of Estes allotment deals — which closely involve the Department — is not yet setted.

Estes enlarged his cotton allotment holdings by selling land to farmers whose property had been taken over for roads or reservoirs. He had an understanding the land, with the allotment transferred to it by the farmers, would revert to him if the payments were not kept up.

The Department maintains this practice did not constitute a bona fide sale of the land to the farmers, but the issue is still being fought by Estes' attorneys.

Estes also had a Government contract to store surplus grain, and the Department says there are no shortages beyond normal shrinkage. A Government Accounting Office investigation turned up only minor losses.

Opponents of all Government farm programs seized on the Estes case to demonstrate their thesis that the complex system of allotments, price supports and direct subsidies inevitably invites corruption. The only way out, they say, is to follow the philosophy of former Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson and "get the Government off the farms."

All but a handful of these critics, however, admit it would take several years to achieve this goal, even if all the farm organizations, the Administration and Congress were for it. Any sudden halt to the price support system would send market prices plummeting for wheat and a number of other products, severely dislocating the farm economy of most of the states.

In the meantime, there will be abuses of the system. Some of them will even be perfectly legal, because it would require a superhuman team of lawyers to devise a farm law that plugged every possible loophole in advance.

Meanwhile, Estes stands convicted on one charge and several others are still hanging over him. Perhaps for a while that will serve as a deterrent to would-be imitators.

Arrest Of Three Cubans Planning Sabotage Arouses Issue

The recent arrest of three Cubans from Castro's Communist country, who allegedly planned to make a horror of Christmas by bombing shopping crowds, pushes into the forefront the much-debated question: Should the Communist Party be outlawed? It is a reminder that when it suits their purpose, Communists are terrorists. At the present time, moreover, every member of the Communist Party who walks the streets in freedom is violating the law.

Ever since 1950, when the Internal Security Act was passed by Congress, all members of the Communist Party were required to register with the Justice Department. It took until June 1961 for the Supreme Court to pass on the constitutionality of the law — but the party ignored it. On October 20, 1961, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy issued his final registration order, setting a deadline of November 20, 1961. This, too, was ignored.

New deadlines were established, first for November 30, then for December 20. Not a single Communist obeyed it. Not until March 15, 1962, were two Communist leaders, General Secretary Gus Hall and National Secretary Benjamin Davis, indicted. How long it will be before the Supreme Court rules on these cases is anybody's guess.

Meanwhile, the Attorney General has asked the Subversive Activities Control Board to order 10 members of the Communist National Committee to register. SACB hearings will be held, then the cases will go to the courts. Other legislation to curb Communist activity has suffered the same fate. Under the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959, Communists were barred from holding leadership positions in unions. One man, Artie Brown — an official of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union — was convicted and sentenced to five years imprisonment. He is out on bail pending an appeal to the higher courts. If the Supreme Court rules that the law is constitutional, the Justice Department will be compelled to run his tortuous course in every case.

While this sabotage of the law goes on, the Communist Party has been stepping up its propaganda activities, particularly among young people. In his annual report, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover notes:

"Tons of printed propaganda were distributed throughout the nation; new front groups were organized . . . The central theme of the aggressive campaign was the fraudulent claim that the Communist Party USA was bearing the brunt of the assault on American rights."

And he adds: "Most successful of all its efforts was its speaking campaign, especially before college groups. From late October 1961, through May 1962, leaders of the Communist Party USA made 48 speeches before groups of college students. . . The party established a lecture and information bureau and early in 1962 sent a letter to college newspaper editors offering speakers on Communism. . ."

The Communist Party and its leaders, though openly violating the law, were given a forum before college students in an effort to gain support and win new recruits. As a result, the Communist Party has tripled in size during the past 12 months, and it is still growing.

From these new recruits come the spies and saboteurs needed to do the Soviet Union's dirty work in the United States. This is not scare talk but fact. And the law enforcement agencies are hamstrung in their efforts to take action against what the Supreme Court has ruled is a foreign-dominated party dedicated to the overthrow of the American government.

The chief justice suggested that we need schools to teach a new profession, whose members would advise all about ethics of right and wrong, presumably for fees.

Warren apparently has forgotten all about the Ten Commandments of the Bible and the ministerial profession in which right and wrong are taught from a moral viewpoint and not from the standpoint of what might be the most advantageous socially, financially or politically.

Most Americans would rather do right than wrong, be fair than unfair, help rather than hurt their fellow men. Most contribute to charities, are kind to animals and treat their families with love and respect. Those who do not obviously prefer not to, for it is certain that in this religious and enlightened land of ours they have had the opportunity to learn right from wrongs.

Chief Justice Warren's actions on the supreme court have done anything except convince people that his advice generally is good.

Almost uniformly, he has ruled in favor of communists and communist activities in the United States, holding any restriction of their operations to be unconstitutional. Say what one will, it is impossible to find a person who comes nearer to knowing right from wrong than one who observes the Ten Commandments. Communists claim there is no Supreme Being and that, therefore, the Ten Commandments are null and void. In upholding them, Warren seems to support their plan for discarding the Bible and the things it stands for. If he does that, he discards the greatest plan for teaching the difference between right and wrong that the world has ever known.

Warren also has ruled invariably in favor of forced integration, setting up a situation which is repugnant not only to most normal human beings but to virtually every kind of animal — a situation in which a creature is not allowed to choose its associates. Warren must recognize that nature exists and that a forced violation of nature's processes is both wrong and harmful.

Thirdly, the chief justice has toed the line of socialism in his decisions, which means taking away the rights of individuals. When individuals lose their right of freedom, they also lose the right to think as they choose.

Apparently, the chief justice feels there are some hard and close decisions many of us must make in situations where right and wrong cannot be made out clearly. A paid counselor would hear our problems, suck his pipe a while and then tell us what course to take, with a final "Ten dollars, please." But what reason is there to think his training, which may have been based purely on animalistic theories, is better than ours, which may have had its origin in the Ten Commandments.

The morality of Americans is learned. Parents start us on the way to being not only ethical but honest-thinking adults. Churches help us through our lifetimes. Experience teaches us there are penalties for damaging our fellows, even when the law does not step in. Conscience, indescribable, mysterious and powerful, wells up in most of us and is beyond the power of any academy to instill.

A new profession, dealing in instant righteousness might relieve some of us of the pain of facing choices, but we would be weaker and poorer for it. The more we shunned making our own decisions, the more we would have need for the services of professional "deciders," until finally we would reach the point of not knowing whether to come in out of the rain without paying $10 to an adviser to tell us.

Steeped in socialism as he is, Warren must believe that few individuals are able to think for themselves. In all probability, he holds to the theory that most people are not capable of doing their own thinking, that they need professional thinkers and that the duty of these professional thinkers would be to train the common herd along the lines of socialism.

The philosophies of the principal religions in this land hold that man has a free will and that he has it for a purpose. This sometimes troublesome gift cannot be delegated to professional thinkers, although the socialists want to do just that.

In this land of the free and the home of the brave we already have so many people telling us what to do that we are in danger of losing our precious heritages.

Most of us don't want anyone to do our thinking for us and, even if we did, Chief Justice Warren would be far down on our list.

National Culture Center

In most other countries of the world, the capital is the center of national culture and of all the glitter associated with the identity of the country: thus, London, Berlin, Paris and so on are where one goes is he wants to get the "feel" of a country.

The city of Washington, of course, was created, and while its marble edifices are the repository of many reminders of the nation's history and leaders it has never been thought of as particularly a cultural center. That part of the nation's culture, as distinguished from government itself, which one finds in other capitals is lacking there. The city has one playhouse. New York is the center of things.

For this reason, President Kennedy's plea for contributions to erect a $30,000,000 National Culture Center for the performing arts on a 13-acre site on the banks of the Potomac should be well received. It was a dream of George Washington's that America's national identity should be evidenced in something more than government functions. Recent Presidents have since revived and backed the idea, but it has been left largely to Americans distinguished in the arts to really push the plan.

Best of all, no federal handouts are associated with the proposed center: that in itself is a tribute to the people, not the least of whose characteristics is doing wothwhile things themselves. The government will own the land, but nothing else. It was donated by Act of Congress in 1958 with the stipulation that donations build the center.

The center will, initially, consist of three halls: a 2,750-capacity hall for symphonies; another seating 1,200 for the theater, and a third of 2,500 capacity for opera, ballet and musical comedy. There is plenty of room for other structures.

Modern theater, Greek tragedy, lectures, ballets, symphonies, jazz concerts and, not least, folk singing, are some of the activities envisioned. Outstanding performers will make tours and many programs will be filmed and taped so that they will be available all over the country.

Communities will be encouraged to promote native talent for a chance to break into national recognition. This is one of the most attractive features of the center, but there will be no shortage of foreign artists who, heretofore, have had to be content with makeshift arrangements.

What U.S. Stands For

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

There are several things our great country stands for.

First — I think it stands for liberty, where people are free and are not governed by a dictator, but by the preamble and the Constitution of the United States, as well as the Bill of Rights, where Justice and Righteousness prevail.

Second — Let us consider next our love for this great country, we are privileged to live in and by showing respect and loyalty for out beautiful flag, we fought for and died for to bring peace to the world.

Third — We are blessed with the freedom to worship God in this beautiful country of ours, as we see fit.

Fourth — Again we should thank God to be able to express our ways in the different atmospheres that confront us in our everyday living, being in America gives us that privilege.

Fifth — We should give thanks to our Heavenly Father for this great country, where we are privileged to raise and harvest anything for the well-being of all mankind without anyone telling us what we should raise or how much.

Sixth — We should praise our God for giving us the freedom to exchange ideas among our friends and neighbors, which couldn't happen anywhere but in the United States.

Seventh — We should appreciate our greatest heritage of being able to go and enjoy as well as see the finest arts that America can offer such as musicals, operas, concerts, art shows, symphonies, etc. without criticism or conviction.

Eighth — In this wonderful country, we should express our love to God in living in a democratic country for the benefit of all.

Ninth — We should be proud we live in a country like America which offers love and devotion instead of hate, wrong and condemnation for those who want to live a good life.

Tenth and lastly — We should be thankful to be able to express our rights in this great government of ours, ruled by three of the legislature and not by communism.

On Bonds And Bias

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

This is November 20, 1962, Bond Election Day. Who, Sir, wrote your editorial this morning? Was it Bobby Kennedy or General Bull Moose? It smacks so of Big Brotherism and What's-Good - for - Me - is - Good-for-Youism that I must ask the question.

Big Brother, I have news for you. In a Democracy any time a proposition is put before the public it is put there for public investigation and will draw opposition from some quarter. You can thank your lucky stars that the opposition on this issue was based on fact and free from selfish interests — that it was motivated by principle, not personal greed — that it was instituted by citizens who feel a genuine need for fiscal responsibility in all phases of government and a need for real progress not dictated by opportunism. You are lucky your Opposition observed the Marquis of Queensbury Rules on this one, Big Brother. No one's honesty was impugned, no motives were questioned, no reputations attacked — By the Opposition.

You newspapers are quick to holler long and loud about such things as Freedom of the Press. Let a poor citizen, armed with nothing but logic and stuck with a principle, open his mouth to question the Great Cause you support and you jump down his throat with your entire editorial policy. Even as this letter is being written the bond issue is being voted on so it cannot influence votes — isn't meant to, but I say shame on you, Big Brother. Big Bully. Big Bully Brother. You probably win so throw your weight around and criticize some more we who question — we who stand on principle — we who just don't count!

It is my sincere hope you support with equal vigor the inevitably upcoming School Bond Issue and Utilities Bond Issue. Both of these will represent at the same time true progress and necessity. Even I shall support them. Even as I support them, however, I will remember your promise that extravagance would only cost me two mills.

Honoring Madison

To the Editor:

On December 31 of this year, Colonel George T. Madison will end 32 years of dedicated service on the State Board of Education.

Since it has been my privilege to serve as president of the University of Southwestern Louisiana during twenty-two of those years, I know from my own observation how great a public service Colonel Madison has rendered to the citizens of this state.

Louisiana, especially public education in Louisiana, has been most fortunate to have had a man of Colonel Madison's caliber serve in a position of public trust.

Colonel Madison's long and honorable tenure on the Board should be an inspiration to all the citizens of our state.

Kennedy To Propose Slashes For Individuals And Business

President Kennedy will propose to the new Congress soon after it convenes in January a tax package including big cuts in the federal taxes we pay as individuals and businessmen and also major moves to close loopholes in our structure. This is set. Only a sudden intensification of world crisis could upset this schedule.

The over - all tax reductions easily could top $10 billion, possibly approach $12 billion — making this one of the largest tax reductions in U.S. history.

The reforms — which would be aimed at broadening the base of taxation in our country by taxing types of income now exempt from levy — would offset part of this revenue loss to the Treasury, but as Treasury Secretary Dillon said flatly 10 days ago, "The net reduction after the reforms and rate cuts have been taken into account will be a significant one."

Individuals would get the giant share of the cuts and there would be tax savings for individuals in every income bracket.

Corporations would get substantial cuts too on top of the $2 billion annual tax reductions they have been given this year via the liberalized depreciation rules and the 7 per cent investment credit for firms buying new machinery or equipment.

The cuts would come in two steps — the biggest reductions in 1963, the balance in 1964.

The first part of the tax cut would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1963, the second part of the reduction would apply in 1964.

The two-step approach would be designed to (1) help minimize the budget deficit resulting from the reduction, considered imperative to win congressional backing for the proposals; (2) spread out the tax reductions to give the economy a needed stimulant in 1963, another stimulant in 1964 and to pave the way for 1956-66, when the post - World War II babies will be reaching marrying age and giving the economy a great "natural" stimulant just by getting together and setting up new households; (3) prevent a too strong stimulant at one time in 1963 and thus avert putting inflationary pressures on prices and wages; and (4) provide the new Congress with ample opportunity to consider the whole package of tax reduction-reform over a prolonged period.

None of this will be firm until, say, mid-December. Treasury experts are still working around the clock on details, arguing the merits of the two-step approach, etc. Kennedy hasn't yet made up his mind. But the above is the tax pattern which is emerging.

President Kennedy's commitment to propose "across - the-board, top-to-bottom" tax cuts in January is unqualified and since he made this pledge Aug. 13, leading members of his administration have repeatedly re-emphasized the promise. While details of the proposals are not being openly discussed, the reduction part of the package is hardly a secret either. I began reporting its outline last spring. Specifically:

The tax rate on corporations would be reduced from the present 52 per cent level to the pre-Korean level of 47 per cent.

The top tax rate on individuals would be slashed from the present punitive 91 per cent level to 65 per cent. This would cost the Treasury very little, for few taxpayers get into the top bracket; their tax lawyers and accountants don't let them get into it.

The bottom tax rate on individuals would be sliced from the present 20 per cent level to 15 per cent. This is where the big tax savings would come for this basic tax rate provides the overwhelming percentage of the Treasury's take.

Rates would be cut proportionately within the new 15-65 percentage to give all individual income groups tax savings.

The corporation tax cut would amount to $2.5 billion a year and the individual tax cut to $9 billion or even more a year, if and when the reductions are voted in their entirety.

This would be great tax reduction, designed not just to give our economy a shot in the arm but to eliminate the drag our tax structure now exerts on business whenever it perks up. And if Congress follows through, this could be the financial medicine which would pull our economy out of its long cycle of sluggish growth and into a new era of powerful, sustained expansion.

Estes Case Flop

No New Agriculture Regulations To Prevent Repetition

For a scandal that once threatened to rival Teapot Dome, the Billie Sol Estes case seems short of solid results.

Estes, to be sure, faces eight years imprisonment after his conviction in Tyler, Texas, on fraud charges — provided his appeals are unavailing.

But so far as the Federal Government is concerned, the case has largely passed by and subsided.

Until mid - November, the Agriculture Department had not issued a single new regulations or made a solitary organizational change designed to prevent a recurrence of the Estes case. Basically, it held to secretary Crville Freeman's insistence that the Federal Government never lost a dime from the Texan's manipulations.

On November 15, Freeman abolished a string of commodity offices, including the one at Dallas which handled the Estes case in its early stages. Theoretically, the new system will assit in pinpointing responsibility for Department mistakes — something unsettled in the Estes affair to this day.

Two veteran Congressional investigators — Senator John L. McClellan (D) Arkansas, and Representative L. R. Fountain (3) North Carolina, conducted massive probes into Estes' complex string of business deals and his generosity toward people in high places.

Neither committee has yet published a report on what it found out. McClellan's committee adjourned with plans to call Estes himself — and has yet to set a date to resume.

The Senate and the House each voted twice on major farm bills last summer. Not a line in any of this legislation remotely bore on the type of cotton allotment hanky - panky Estes allegedly indulged in.

It has been argued that the Estes scandals were used as ammunition to defeat the Administration's farm bill in the House and replace it with a more moderate one. This notion is debatable: there's a strong chance the bill would have been beaten anyway.

The November Congressional elections were surprising in retrospect for almost complete lack of any mention of Estes except in the west Texas race between Rep. J. T. Rutherford (D) and Ed Foreman. Rutherford's lack of prompt statement about accepting contributions from Estes is widely held to be a factor in his defeat after four terms.

Earlier, Rep. H. Carl Andersen (R) Minn., was defeated in the GOP primary after his opponent lost no opportunity to remind the voters Andersen, a member of the House Agriculture Committee, had sold some mine stock to Estes under questionable circumstances.

Four officials of the Agriculture Department were fired — or not prevented from resigning — for accepting haberdashery from Estes.

The Agriculture Department, focus of the uproar of criticism that arose after the scandal broke last April, insists that its existing regulations are sufficient to prevent any more Estes-style cotton deals or smoke them out promplty after they are committed.

The Department officials explain, in a somewhat discouraged way, that Estes' Federal indictments are not related to the cotton allotments, but to his alleged fraud in selling mortgages on fictitious fertilizer tanks to a group of private financial houses. These deals do not involve the Agriculture Department.

They also claim that the illegality of Estes allotment deals—which closely involve the Department — is not yet setted.

Estes enlarged his cotton allotment holdings by selling land to farmers whose property had been taken over for roads or reservoirs. He had an understanding the land, with the allotment transferred to it by the farmers, would revert to him if the payments were not kept up.

The Department maintains this practice did not constitute a bona fide sale of the land to the farmers, but the issue is still being fought by Estes' attorneys.

Estes also had a Government contract to store surplus grain, and the Department says there are no shortages beyond normal shrinkage. A Government Accounting Office investigation turned up only minor losses.

Opponents of all Government farm programs seized on the Estes case to demonstrate their thesis that the complex system of allotments, price supports and direct subsidies inevitably invites corruption. The only way out, they say, is to follow the philosophy of former Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson and "get the Government off the farms."

All but a handful of these critics, however, admit it would take several years to achieve this goal, even if all the farm organizations, the Administration and Congress were for it. Any sudden halt to the price support system would send market prices plummeting for wheat and a number of other products, severely dislocating the farm economy of most of the states.

In the meantime, there will be abuses of the system. Some of them will even be perfectly legal, because it would require a superhuman team of lawyers to devise a farm law that plugged every possible loophole in advance.

Meanwhile, Estes stands convicted on one charge and several others are still hanging over him. Perhaps for a while that will serve as a deterrent to would - be imitators.

Arrest Of Three Cubans Planning Sabotage Arouses Issue

The recent arrest of three Cubans from Castro's Communist country, who allegedly planned to make a horror of Christmas by bombing shopping crowds, pushes into the forefront the much-debated question: Should the Communist Party be outlawed? It is a reminder that when it suits their purpose, Communists are terrorists. At the present time, moreover, every member of the Communist Party who walks the streets in freedom is violating the law.

Ever since 1950, when the Internal Security Act was passed by Congress, all members of the Communist Party were required to register with the Justice Department. It took until June 1961 for the Supreme Court to pass on the constitutionality of the law—but the party ignored it. On October 20, 1961, Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy issued his final registration order, setting a deadline of November 20, 1961. This, too, was ignored.

New deadlines were established, first for November 30, then for December 20. Not a single Communist obeyed it. Not until March 15, 1962, were two Communist leaders, General Secretary Gus Hall and National Secretary Benjamin Davis, indicted. How long it will be before the Supreme Court rules on these cases is anybody's guess.

Meanwhile, the Attorney General has asked the Subversive Activities Control Board to order 10 members of the Communist National Committee to register. SACB hearings will be held, then the cases will go to the courts. Other legislation to curb Communist activity has suffered the same fate. Under the Labor - Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959, Communists were barred from holding leadership positions in unions. One man, Artie Brown — an official of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union — was convicted and sentenced to five years imprisonment. He is out on bail pending an appeal to the higher courts. If the Supreme Court rules that the law is constitutional, the Justice Department will be compelled to run his tortuous course in every case.

While this sabotage of the law goes on, the Communist Party has been stepping up its propaganda activities, particularly among young people. In his annual report, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover notes:

"Tons of printed propaganda were distributed throughout the nation; new front groups were organized . . . The central theme of the aggressive campaign was the fraudulent claim that the Communist Party USA was bearing the brunt of the assault on American rights."

And he adds: "Most successful of all its efforts was its speaking campaign, especially before college groups. From late October 1961, through May 1962, leaders of the Communist Party USA made 48 speeches before groups of college students. . . The party established a lecture and information bureau and early in 1962 sent a letter to college newspaper editors offering speakers on Communism. . ."

The Communist Party and its leaders, though openly violating the law, were given a forum before college students in an effort to gain support and win new recruits. As a result, the Communist Party has tripled in size during the past 12 months, and it is still growing.

From these new recruits come the spies and saboteurs needed to do the Soviet Union's dirty work in the United States. This is not scare talk but fact. And the law enforcement agencies are hamstrung in their efforts to take action against what the Supreme Court has ruled is a foreign-dominated party dedicated to the overthrow of the American government.

A Look Behind the Headlines

'ust 20 Years Ago America's Worst Fire

Story Of Cocoanut Grove Horror

EDITOR'S NOTE: Just 20 years go one of America's worst fires wept the packed Cocoanut Grove ightclub in Boston. Within mintes the gay party atmosphere inide the club changed to a scene f stark horror rarely matched n the history of American dissters. Here is the story of that orror and the costly benefits to umanity that came out of it.

By ROBERT P. SALMON

BOSTON (AP)—It began, this uilding that was to become Boson's plushiest nightclub, as a gaage in 1916.

All that remains now on the pot where it stood is a parking ot. There is no marker to recall he Cocoanut Grove or the caastrophe that occured there.

When it was built it had doors ig enough to drive trucks hrough. But on the chilly night of Nov. 28, 1942, hundreds of bod-es blocked the club's only two unlocked exits. Nine other doors were locked. A 12th had been bricked up.

DEATH HORRORS

Yet, out of the death and horror came, practically overnight, a revolutionary treatment for burn victims. And the public shock and indignation which resulted from disclosure of unbelievable laxity in fire protection brought about a sweeping revision in fire laws, changes that have probably saved countless lives in the past 20 years.

More blood plasma was used in 12 Boston hospitals that night and the following day than was needed for American servicemen wounded in the attack on Pearl Harbor just one year before.

Fire victims were being brought into Boston City Hospital at the rate of one every 11 seconds. That was faster than air-raid blitz casualties were taken to any one hospital in London.

One horribly burned Coast Guardsman needed 100 pints of blood before he was out of danger. He underwent innumerable skin grafting operations for third-degree burns over 65 per cent of his body. His eventual recovery was a near-miracle and still stands as a monument to the medical profession.

One young woman spent eight months in a hospital, lying face down, unable to move. It was 18 months before she could sit naturally. It was years before she was healthy again emotionally.

Ten persons were indicted in the fire's aftermath. Only two were convicted. The nightclub owner, Barnett (Barney) Welansky, was sentenced to 1-12 years in prison for manslaughter. Contractor Samuel Rudnick, who reconstructed the old garage into the Cocoanut Grove, received a two-year term for conspiracy to violate the city's building laws.

A Fire Department Lieutenant who had inspected the club eight days before the holocaust—turning in a report of "good" fire precautions in the building—was one of eight persons either acquitted or otherwise freed.

The nightclub, Boston's largest and most popular in wartime 1942, had two unlocked doors. One was a revolving door that had no supplementary side exists. The other door opened inward.

A dozen theories were advanced for the cause of the fire. The most widely accepted was that a teen-age busboy had dropped a match into highly flamable imitation palm fronds in a downstairs lounge as he tried to see better to change a light bulb.

Yet the final, official ruling was: "Cause unknown." And it still is.

LARGE CROWD

Some 1,000 customers were in the Grove that Saturday night. The club's seating capacity was 750. Among those present, and later to die, was Charles (Buck) Jones, a top cowboy actor.

According to accounts later pieced together by investigating officials, a young couple sitting directly beneath the palm noticed a small fire flare immediately in the fake tree.

"I'll get my coat and let's get out of here," the girl said to her fiance. She was thinking of her new $800 leopard-skin coat — checked upstairs in the lobby. At the top of the stairs she poked her head into the ladies powder room and called: "Hey, girls, don't get excited, but there's a little fire downstairs. You'd better start getting out."

But it wasn't a "little fire" anymore.

The flames had leaped from the palm tree to fabric decorating the ceiling. Racing along over the heads of the diners and drinkers, the flames moved upstairs. Within five minutes fire raged everywhere in the huge nightclub.

Thick smoke rolled along behind the flames. Carbon monoxide gas — unseen but deadly — also followed in the flames' wake.

One man shouted, "You've got a fire downstairs!" to the club's steward.

BALL OF FLAME

The steward saw a ball of flame leap across the ceiling and tried to fold back the revolving doors. But it was too late. They had jammed from men and women—mostly men—trying frantically to push and claw their way out the main entrance. Nearly 200 persons died in heaps behind the revolving door as smoke and gas overcame them.

Then, every light in the club went out. Near panic now was utter panic.

One couple crawled—it was impossible to move any other way—into the kitchen downstairs. The man at length touched something wooden. He raised his hand higher, felt a door handle and pulled down on it.

"This is the ice box," a voice said from inside. "Jump in quick. It's fireproof."

The girl with the leopard-skin coat crawled for what seemed miles. Suddenly she was in the street. She could feel air. Then someone fell on her. It wasn't someone. It was a body, being tossed across the sidewalk into the gutter. A second body landed on her. Then a third. She fainted.

One man was trying to get through a window of broken glass brick. He was half in, half out when flames belched through from the club into the street. The man was charred before firemen could reach him.

Nearby a man appeared from the club stark naked except for a felt hat. He began to run along the sidewalk, then collapsed and died.

A middle-Aged woman wearing glasses suddenly dashed back into the building. "The money, the money," she screamed. The club's cashier, she had remembered $2,200 in receipts. Her body was found the next day, 50 feet from her cash register.

Hundreds of firemen, police, servicemen, Civil Defense workers and volunteers were at the scene in the midst of the city's theatrical section within minutes. A wartime disaster plan was put into immediate use.

Doctors met each hospital arrival with a shot of morphine. A secret government experiment for burns suddenly became a treatment.

From New Jersey sped two young chemists. They brought with them a new "mystery serum"—penicillin.

For years the treatment for burns had been tannic acid. But on the night of Nov. 28, 1942, the treatment was revolutionized at Massachusetts General Hospital. The burns weren't even cleaned. Petroleum jelly was smeared on and covered with gauze bandages. Each victim was given oxygen and plasma. Each was X-rayed for pneumonia and each dosed with sulfathiozene to arrest possible lung damage from inhalation of superheated air and smoke.

Everything possible was done that night 20 years ago. But still nearly 500 persons died.

Twenty-one months later Clifford Johnson, the young Coast Guardsman who needed the 100 pints of blood and whose recovery was almost unbelieveable, was discharged from a hospital, the last survivor to go home.

Johnson, who had married his nurse, returned to Sumner, Mo., with his bride and became a farmer.

Six years ago, while driving his pickup truck, Johnson was in an accident. The truck caught fire, and Johnson perished in the flames, an ironic and tragic fate for one who survived the Cocoanut Grove holocaust.

BOOKS

Poor To Prosperous But Disillusioned

CAPE COD LIGHTER. By John O'Hara. Random House. $5.95.

There are 23 stories in this collection, ranging from a couple that are so short they almost evaporate, to a novella. And in most of them there is a polished, skillful communication with the reader, giving him a sense of "having been there."

O'Hara has been batting out these stories at a great rate. It was only a year ago that "Assembly," containing 26 stories, was published. And in between there has been a novel about a little heel who became a big heel in Hollywood, titled "The Big Laugh."

As in "Assembly," the author demonstrates in this volume that he can reach from the shadowy depths of meager, mundane life to the decadent futility of the upper middle class.

For example "The Bucket of Blood" is a story about a small-time crook who settled down in a small city to the routine of an obscure saloon. And in contrast, there is "Appearances," one of those marriage dramas in the fashionable suburbs, full of regretful betrayals, which is matched by another called "The Lesson."

Or take "Claude Emerson, Reporter" as an example of the under-horizon view of what goes on among people, and then turn to "Your Fah Neefah Neeface" as a nostalgic collection of things that might have been.

Here, as in "Assembly," O'Hara has given a virtuoso performance about city life—particularly in its disillusioning aspects. The author never gives a sign that nature or rustic simplicity have been a part of his existence. He concentrates on the dialogues that he hears in the smaller and larger rabbit warrens of the sorry human animal.

Bavarians Go To Polls In Voting Sunday

May Decide How Adenauer Rule To Be In Future

By JOHN BAUSMAN

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Sunday is election date for the beer-loving Bavarians, and the way they vote may help decide how Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Cabinet will line up in the future.

It is a state election, but it has a bearing on national affairs as well as on critical questions concerning the condition of democracy in West Germany.

This has come about largely through the "Spiegel affair" which has stirred West Germany and upset one Adenauer Cabinet.

The "Spiegel affair" started Oct. 26 when federal authorities seized in Hamburg and Bonn the editorial offices of Der Spiegel—The Mirror—a much-read news magazine.

Publisher Rudolf Augstein and six staff members were arrested. Two were quickly released. One editor, Conrad Ahlers, and his wife were jailed in Spain where they had gone for vacation.

The editors, the government announced, were under suspicion of treason in publishing defense secrets. No details were given or specific charges filed. As permitted by German law, the men were simply held in custody for investigation.

LONG TIME

For a long time the muckraking, skillfully edited weekly had attacked Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss, a political power in both Bavaria and Bonn, and often considered a possible future chancellor.

One series of Spiegel articles brought a parliamentary investigation of a building firm promotion by Strauss. Parliament cleared the minister, but the scar remained.

The magazine kept up the attack and implied further business scandals in the Defense Ministry. Six weeks ago it gave a scathing report on the effectiveness of Strauss' proud creation, the West German Bundeswehr or armed forces.

The open feud prompted suspicion that he was behind the Spiegel arrests.

The action hit Germans in a sensitive area. Was freedom of the press in danger? Was German democracy threatened?

The German past makes Germans touchy about such questions.

Newspapers, mostly distant from Der Spiegel's editorial policy, rallied to insist on the magazine's right to publish. They provided editorial facilites until federal investigators finished combing Der Spiegel's files.

Students demonstrated against arrests carried out at night and smacking of old Gestapo tactics. Placards asked: "Are we back to the days when one can't be sure that an early morning knock at the door is only the baker delivering breakfast rolls?"

Opposition Socialists asked pointed questions in Parliament. The Spiegel affair was discussed everywhere and offered material for the popular political cabarets.

While publisher Augstein wrote editorials from jail, the murky details of who was responsible for his arrest became more complex. Under parliamentary prodding Strauss disclosed he had personally taken a hand in securing the arrest of Ahlers in Spain—an arrest acknowledged to be "a little outside the law."

GENERALLY

German lawyers generally feel Augstein eventually will get a fair hearing in court. The question whether authorities exceeded their legal rights, they feel, will be cleared up in the numerous court actions already started and guaranteed to keep lawyers busy for months to come.

But there is still concern over the government attitude. Did the law allow Chancellor Adenauer to state as he did in Parliament that Augstein had committed treason for profit — before any court considered such a verdict?

Surveying the muddle, the influential and independent Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung said: "This could have all been avoided with a few clear, uncontestable, honest sentences at the right time, a little more caution and some respect for public opinion.

"Things have gone so far that the fate of the federal government and Chancellor Adenauer is in the hands of a state parliamentary election in Bavaria."

Authorities Claim U.S. Is Oversold On Vitamin Pills

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Good nutrition is not a high wire act with disaster on either side.

It's actually a broad sidewalk—maybe even a highway. Unless you're sick or suffering from the emotional staggers, there's not much chance of stumbling over the curb into bad health.

Yet many Americans try desperately to walk a narrow center line. Others, seeking health insurance, swallow innumerable vitamin pills and kindred products. Food fads sweep the United States. Vitamin makers sell an estimated $400 million of their wares each year.

Both the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the American Medical Association say Americans are being oversold on vitamin and mineral pills—and just plain hoodwinked on the new generation of exotic health foods.

They point to a kitchen survey of U.S. diet, made by the Department of Agriculture in 1955, and to often-reviewed recommended allowances set by the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences.

EXPERTS INSIST

The experts insist that good nutrition is easy to come by at the dinner table — and well-nigh impossible to avoid.

Vitamins and minerals are the subtle bargainers in the transactions of life—the millions and millions of small deals that daily keep your body in business. You need them to cash in on the currency of life—the protein, fats and carbohydrates that are turned into body tissue and energy.

Some essentials are added to staple foods, to insure that Americans get enough of them. Bread and flour and other products are enriched with vitamins—some of which were lost in food processing. B vitamins and iron are added to breakfast cereals. Vitamin D is added to milk, mostly for children, vitamin A is added to margarine and iodine is added to table salt. Fluorine is added to water.

These have the endorsement of both the National Academy's Food and Nutrition Board and the AMA's Council on Food and Nutrition.

A vitamin is deemed necessary by experts when its lack in diet causes disease.

Not enough vitamin C can cause bleeding, scurvy and other weakening of the body's soft tissues—the gums for instance. Not enough vitamin D can cause the deformed bones of rickets in children. Not enough vitamin B1 (Thiamine) can cause mental, nerve, skin and other symptoms collectively called pellagra. Not enough vitamin A can strike the bones and vision.

Not enough iodine can lead to goiter, and not enough calcium to poor bone growth. One researcher found that chlorine eliminated from diet halted the body's use of all minerals.

Generally these deficiencies are rare in the United States—occurring among deprived families, or some old people who live alone and neglect themselves, or among alcoholics who forget to eat.

Just as vitamin deficiencies can cause disease, too much of a vitamin can also cause disease and in rare cases, it does.

Two much vitamin D can cause loss of appetite, nausea, headache, frequent and heavy urination. These symptoms are most often seen in children, but only rarely.

Adults don't need extra vitamin D. They get all they need—produced in their own body tissues whenever they are exposed to sunlight. Growing children with s rapidly building skeleton need heavier doses of vitamin D.

Vitamins A and D are soluble in fat so your body stores them. But many vitamins are short-lived in the body.

Notable among these is vitamin C. It's available in vegetables and especially in citrus fruits. You need vitamin C in your diet on a fairly regular basis.

The food faddists create a far worse problem than the comparatively gentle confusion wrought by many vitamin claims.

The American Medical Association estimates that there are some 10 million Americans who buy so-called wonder foods — and $500 million a year is spent on mixtures of vitamins, minerals, exotic herbs, seaweed and dried vegetables.

The food faddist comes in various shapes and sizes, and so do the food fads. One claims to cure all with one power-packed vitamin pill. Another offers three times the minimum daily requirement in iodine in a one-dollar jar of pills. You can get the same thing in your table salt, which you need anyway.

What most people forget is that you need vitamins and minerals only in relation to your food intake. You can take all the vitamins and minerals you want and still starve to death.

The food faddist has a far more dangerous counterpart — the food quack. The food quack lives on a profitable diet of half truths and gullible people. He is an artist in food fantasy. For protection, you might consider some facts about common food fallacies, compiled by the AMA.

Neither oysters, nor any other food effects sexual potency.

Neither onion nor garlic cures a cold or purifies the flood.

The body can handle both alkaline and acid foods—without help from the food quack.

Yogurt is a tasty, if somewhat more expensive, form of milk. It has no more vitamins, calcium, nor calories than ordinary whole milk.

Milk and cheese do not cause constipation. They have little residue because they are so easily digested. Diets low in bulk can be constipating.

You don't have to eat seaweed or kelp for iodine. You can best get it from seafood, or salt, and in some places from vegetables.

There is no such thing—not fish nor nutmeg—as brain food, "any more than there is a little-toe food or a left-ear food," says the AMA.

The list could be longer. There are as many fallacies as there are people willing to believe them.

The Food and Drug Administration is considering new regulations to limit the ridiculous, the wasteful and the harmful. But it is not an easy problem to solve, because there are legitimate needs for vitamins and minerals above the diet.

But there is little need for most Americans to spend the millions of dollars they squander on extra supplements each year.

Secrecy's Fling In Scotland

THE EDINBURGH CAPER. By St. Clair McElway. Holt, Rinehart. $4.

The author—narrator of this bit of japery has cast it into the form of an all-night conversation with a general and a major who, after checking into the files of the Central Intelligence Agency, drop in to inquire about the author's oddball adventures in Scotland.

Why would the CIA files have anything related to his Scottish vacation? Well, it seems that while the author was bobbing around Edinburgh in the summer of 1959, there were reports that Eisenhower might be planning a secret meeting with Krushchev, and what better spot could there be than his castle in Scotland? And somehow it appeared that the Queen of England and her consort might be coming back from Canada to this same scene.

McElway, being an imaginative man in a cloak-and-dagger situation, developed a very cloak-and-dagger response to every trivial thing that crossed his path. Naturally, he tipped off some incredulous intelligence officers.

He came to feel that a very Scottish couple named Cameron, who were cordial and hospitable to him, were such obvious types that they must be secret agents; but were they Russian agents intent upon kidnapping Eisenhower, or were they British agents trying to prevent this? Why did McElway keep seeing automobile license plates bearing letters that matched the initials of his associates back in New York — was this a practical joke staged elaborately by his friends in the CIA? Why did obscure people seem to be giving him esoteric tips — code words?

Sure, this is a wacky story in some fascinating settings. McElway is droll. You can can take his script as a spoof of the military intelligence pattern, or something else.

Navy Man Faces War On His Own

HARM'S WAY. By James Bassett. World. $5.95.

There are war novels about the slogging infantry, and war novels about men and women caught up in the holocaust of combat. This one is about the Navy in the Pacific at the time of Pearl Harbor and for a year afterward. It is full of action. It is dramatic. And it has a heartbeat in it.

The hero is Rockwell (Rock) Torrey. At the time of Pearl Harbor he was a silver eagle captain in command of a cruiser called "Old Swayback." A dedicated Navy careerist whose marriage had broken up, he was a lonely man devoted to the cause. But when his old tub was torpedoed he had to take a staff job with little hope for advancement.

But things were looking up. He discovered a certain Navy nurse, and then came a combat assignment as a two-star admiral. First there was a sorry, drudging assignment to establish a forward base, and finally a thrilling, chilling thrust of his meager task force against hopeless odds, on the chance that the Japanese could be slowed down in their relentless advance.

Of course there were complications. His son, whom he scarcely knew, was a green torpedo boat commander who had to be sacrificed in the gamble of war, at the Rock's orders. And there were villians — a sorry one who was a psychotic chief of staff under the Rock's command, and a craven one who was a namby-pamby superior officer. But the Navy nurse kept giving him strength for the task.

Bassett has written an action story that contains a lot of gripping incidents. It is exciting, has an authentic ring, and is very moving. More important, its dramatis personnae are living people, not cardboard figures.

Kuwait Oasis Of 'Luxury'

By WEBB MCKINLEY

KUWAIT (AP)—Kuwait is an oasis of luxurious neutrality amid the current hysteria of the Arab world.

With its oil wells pumping riches into its coffers, this little country wants only to be left out of the epic word battles occupying its stronger neighbors.

Iraq's Abdel Karim Kassem still vows he will annex Kuwait to his own troubled country. Saudi Arabian, Jordanian and Sudanese troops still maintain an Arab League emergency force here to prevent him.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic and his republican allies in revolutionary Yemen threaten to make war against the Saudis. Jordanian air force officers defect to the U.A.R.

In the midst of this frenzy, the Kuwaitis are quietly trying to reduce their protective forces to mere tokens. They have asked in unpublicized Arab League meetings that the 2,500 Saudis, 1,500 Jordanians and 104 Sudanese reduce their forces here to 100 each.

NO LONGER

They no longer fear Kassem, and they want to disengage from any other involvements in the Arab cold war.

"Our policy toward current Arab events," said Sheik Sabah El Ahmed, minister of information, "is one of strict neutrality."

More than any other nation, Kuwait would have much to lose by taking sides.

Its 322,000 residents, including only about 120,000 Kuwaitis, will enjoy this year a national income of nearly a half billion dollars. Huge amounts go to the royal family, but enough is left over to make this the most complete welfare state in the capitalist world.

Even a casual visitor can get free hospitalization and, in the event of an emergency toothache, dental care. A student gets free education, plus free food, clothing and medical treatment from kindergarten through high school. If he finishes only in the upper 80 per cent of his secondary school science course or in the upper 70 per cent of an arts course, he's eligible for advanced schooling abroad with all expenses paid. If a Kuwaiti turns up jobless, the government may set him up in a small shop or help him buy a taxi.

Kassem speeches about oppressed Kuwaitis get the horselaugh here.

Unusual System Of Control

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP)—Voters in this smallest South American nation will decide whether to keep their unique chief executive system — the nine-man Council of Government.

The question is on the ballot in an election called to elect a council, a 31-member Senate, a 99-seat House of Representatives and a host of municipal officers.

Most observers believe the electors will vote down the amendment that would revere to the one-man presidential power abandoned in 1952. Uruguay seems to like its collective executive power.

There are two dominant parties—the Blanco party, returned to power in 1958 after nine years on the outside, and the Colorado party.

Whichever party wins, Uruguay undoubtedly will keep its pro-Western, anti-Communist international stand. Candidates of both parties have followed this line. And the two parties command about 90 per cent of the vote in Uruguay.

He approved this month a permanent constitution, passed earlier by a constituent assembly, setting up a National Assembly. General elections are scheduled in January.

A Look Behind the Headlines

Just 20 Years Ago America's Worst Fire

Story Of Cocoanut Grove Horror

EDITOR'S NOTE: Just 20 years ago one of America's worst fires swept the packed Cocoanut Grove nightclub in Boston. Within minutes the gay party atmosphere inside the club changed to a scene of stark horror rarely matched in the history of American disasters. Here is the story of that horror and the costly benefits to humanity that came out of it.

By ROBERT P. SALMON

BOSTON (AP)—It began, this building that was to become Boston's plushiest nightclub, as a garage in 1916.

All that remains now on the spot where it stood is a parking lot. There is no marker to recall the Cocoanut Grove or the catastrophe that occured there.

When it was built it had doors big enough to drive trucks through. But on the chilly night of Nov. 28, 1942, hundreds of bodies blocked the club's only two unlocked exits. Nine other doors were locked. A 12th had been bricked up.

DEATH HORRORS

Yet, out of the death and horror came, practically overnight, a revolutionary treatment for burn victims. And the public shock and indignation which resulted from disclosure of unbelievable laxity in fire protection brought about a sweeping revision in fire laws, changes that have probably saved countless lives in the past 20 years.

More blood plasma was used in 12 Boston hospitals that night and the following day than was needed for American servicemen wounded in the attack on Pearl Harbor just one year before.

Fire victims were being brought into Boston City Hospital at the rate of one every 11 seconds. That was faster than air-raid blitz casualties were taken to any one hospital in London.

One horribly burned Coast Guardsman needed 100 pints of blood before he was out of danger. He underwent innumerable skin grafting operations for third-degree burns over 65 per cent of his body. His eventual recovery was a near-miracle and still stands as a monument to the medical profession.

One young woman spent eight months in a hospital, lying face down, unable to move. It was 18 months before she could sit naturally. It was years before she was healthy again emotionally.

Ten persons were indicted in the fire's aftermath. Only two were convicted. The nightclub owner, Barnett (Barney) Welansky, was sentenced to 1-12 years in prison for manslaughter. Contractor Samuel Rudnick, who reconstructed the old garage into the Cocoanut Grove, received a two-year term for conspiracy to violate the city's building laws.

A Fire Department Lieutenant who had inspected the club eight days before the holocaust—turning in a report of "good" fire precautions in the building—was one of eight persons either acquitted or otherwise freed.

The nightclub, Boston's largest and most popular in wartime 1942, had two unlocked doors. One was a revolving door that had no supplementary side exists. The other door opened inward.

A dozen theories were advanced for the cause of the fire. The most widely accepted was that a teen-age busboy had dropped a match into highly flamable imitation palm fronds in a downstairs lounge as he tried to see better to change a light bulb.

Yet the final, official ruling was: "Cause unknown." And it still is.

LARGE CROWD

Some 1,000 customers were in the Grove that Saturday night. The club's seating capacity was 750. Among those present, and later to die, was Charles (Buck) Jones, a top cowboy actor.

According to accounts later pieced together by investigating officials, a young couple sitting directly beneath the palm noticed a small fire flare immediately in the fake tree.

"I'll get my coat and let's get out of here," the girl said to her fiance. She was thinking of her new $800 leopard-skin coat — checked upstairs in the lobby. At the top of the stairs she poked her head into the ladies powder room and called: "Hey, girls, don't get excited, but there's a little fire downstairs. You'd better start getting out."

But it wasn't a "little fire" anymore.

The flames had leaped from the palm tree to fabric decorating the ceiling. Racing along over the heads of the diners and drinkers, the flames moved upstairs. Within five minutes fire raged everywhere in the huge nightclub.

Thick smoke rolled along behind the flames. Carbon monoxide gas — unseen but deadly — also followed in the flames' wake.

One man shouted, "You've got a fire downstairs!" to the club's steward.

BALL OF FLAME

The steward saw a ball of flame leap across the ceiling and tried to fold back the revolving doors. But it was too late. They had jammed from men and women—mostly men—trying frantically to push and claw their way out the main entrance. Nearly 200 persons died in heaps behind the revolving door as smoke and gas overcame them.

Then, every light in the club went out. Near panic now was utter panic.

One couple crawled—it was impossible to move any other way—into the kitchen downstairs. The man at length touched something wooden. He raised his hand higher, felt a door handle and pulled down on it.

"This is the ice box," a voice said from inside. "Jump in quick. It's fireproof."

The girl with the leopard-skin coat crawled for what seemed miles. Suddenly she was in the street. She could feel air. Then someone fell on her. It wasn't someone. It was a body, being tossed across the sidewalk into the gutter. A second body landed on her. Then a third. She fainted.

One man was trying to get through a window of broken glass brick. He was half in, half out when flames belched through from the club into the street. The man was charred before firemen could reach him.

Nearby a man appeared from the club stark naked except for a felt hat. He began to run along the sidewalk, then collapsed and died.

A middle-Aged woman wearing glasses suddenly dashed back into the building. "The money, the money," she screamed. The club's cashier, she had remembered $2,200 in receipts. Her body was found the next day, 50 feet from her cash register.

Hundreds of firemen, police, servicemen, Civil Defense workers and volunteers were at the scene in the midst of the city's theatrical section within minutes. A wartime disaster plan was put into immediate use.

Doctors met each hospital arrival with a shot of morphine. A secret government experiment for burns suddenly became a treatment.

From New Jersey sped two young chemists. They brought with them a new "mystery serum"—penicillin.

For years the treatment for burns had been tannic acid. But on the night of Nov. 28, 1942, the treatment was revolutionized at Massachusetts General Hospital. The burns weren't even cleaned. Petroleum jelly was smeared on and covered with gauze bandages. Each victim was given oxygen and plasma. Each was X-rayed for pneumonia and each dosed with sulfathiozene to arrest possible lung damage from inhalation of superheated air and smoke.

Everything possible was done that night 20 years ago. But still nearly 500 persons died.

Twenty-one months later Clifford Johnson, the young Coast Guardsman who needed the 100 pints of blood and whose recovery was almost unbelieveable, was discharged from a hospital, the last survivor to go home.

Johnson, who had married his nurse, returned to Sumner, Mo., with his bride and became a farmer.

Six years ago, while driving his pickup truck, Johnson was in an accident. The truck caught fire, and Johnson perished in the flames, an ironic and tragic fate for one who survived the Cocoanut Grove holocaust.

BOOKS

Poor To Prosperous But Disillusioned

CAPE COD LIGHTER. By John O'Hara. Random House. $5.95.

There are 23 stories in this collection, ranging from a couple that are so short they almost evaporate, to a novella. And in most of them there is a polished, skillful communication with the reader, giving him a sense of "having been there."

O'Hara has been batting out these stories at a great rate. It was only a year ago that "Assembly," containing 26 stories, was published. And in between there has been a novel about a little heel who became a big heel in Hollywood, titled "The Big Laugh."

As in "Assembly," the author demonstrates in this volume that he can reach from the shadowy depths of meager, mundane life to the decadent futility of the upper middle class.

For example "The Bucket of Blood" is a story about a small-time crook who settled down in a small city to the routine of an obscure saloon. And in contrast, there is "Appearances," one of those marriage dramas in the fashionable suburbs, full of regretful betrayals, which is matched by another called "The Lesson."

Or take "Claude Emerson, Reporter" as an example of the under-horizon view of what goes on among people, and then turn to "Your Fah Neefah Neeface" as a nostalgic collection of things that might have been.

Here, as in "Assembly," O'Hara has given a virtuoso performance about city life—particularly in its disillusioning aspects. The author never gives a sign that nature or rustic simplicity have been a part of his existence. He concentrates on the dialogues that he hears in the smaller and larger rabbit warrens of the sorry human animal.

Bavarians Go To Polls In Voting Sunday

May Decide How Adenauer Rule To Be In Future

By JOHN BAUSMAN

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — Sunday is election date for the beer-loving Bavarians, and the way they vote may help decide how Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Cabinet will line up in the future.

It is a state election, but it has a bearing on national affairs as well as on critical questions concerning the condition of democracy in West Germany.

This has come about largely through the "Spiegel affair" which has stirred West Germany and upset one Adenauer Cabinet.

The "Spiegel affair" started Oct. 26 when federal authorities seized in Hamburg and Bonn the editorial offices of Der Spiegel—The Mirror—a much-read news magazine.

Publisher Rudolf Augstein and six staff members were arrested. Two were quickly released. One editor, Conrad Ahlers, and his wife were jailed in Spain where they had gone for vacation.

The editors, the government announced, were under suspicion of treason in publishing defense secrets. No details were given or specific charges filed. As permitted by German law, the men were simply held in custody for investigation.

LONG TIME

For a long time the muckraking, skillfully edited weekly had attacked Defense Minister Franz Josef Strauss, a political power in both Bavaria and Bonn, and often considered a possible future chancellor.

One series of Spiegel articles brought a parliamentary investigation of a building firm promotion by Strauss. Parliament cleared the minister, but the scar remained.

The magazine kept up the attack and implied further business scandals in the Defense Ministry. Six weeks ago it gave a scathing report on the effectiveness of Strauss' proud creation, the West German Bundeswehr or armed forces.

The open feud prompted suspicion that he was behind the Spiegel arrests.

The action hit Germans in a sensitive area. Was freedom of the press in danger? Was German democracy threatened?

The German past makes Germans touchy about such questions.

Newspapers, mostly distant from Der Spiegel's editorial policy, rallied to insist on the magazine's right to publish. They provided editorial facilites until federal investigators finished combing Der Spiegel's files.

Students demonstrated against arrests carried out at night and smacking of old Gestapo tactics. Placards asked: "Are we back to the days when one can't be sure that an early morning knock at the door is only the baker delivering breakfast rolls?"

Opposition Socialists asked pointed questions in Parliament. The Spiegel affair was discussed everywhere and offered material for the popular political cabarets.

While publisher Augstein wrote editorials from jail, the murky details of who was responsible for his arrest became more complex. Under parliamentary prodding Strauss disclosed he had personally taken a hand in securing the arrest of Ahlers in Spain—an arrest acknowledged to be "a little outside the law."

GENERALLY

German lawyers generally feel Augstein eventually will get a fair hearing in court. The question whether authorities exceeded their legal rights, they feel, will be cleared up in the numerous court actions already started and guaranteed to keep lawyers busy for months to come.

But there is still concern over the government attitude. Did the law allow Chancellor Adenauer to state as he did in Parliament that Augstein had committed treason for profit — before any court considered such a verdict?

Surveying the muddle, the influential and independent Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung said: "This could have all been avoided with a few clear, uncontestable, honest sentences at the right time, a little more caution and some respect for public opinion.

"Things have gone so far that the fate of the federal government and Chancellor Adenauer is in the hands of a state parliamentary election in Bavaria."

Authorities Claim U.S. Is Oversold On Vitamin Pills

By JOHN BARBOUR
Associated Press Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Good nutrition is not a high wire act with disaster on either side.

It's actually a broad sidewalk—maybe even a highway. Unless you're sick or suffering from the emotional staggers, there's not much chance of stumbling over the curb into bad health.

Yet many Americans try desperately to walk a narrow center line. Others, seeking health insurance, swallow innumerable vitamin pills and kindred products. Food fads sweep the United States. Vitamin makers sell an estimated $400 million of their wares each year.

Both the U.S. Food and Drug Administration and the American Medical Association say Americans are being oversold on vitamin and mineral pills—and just plain hoodwinked on the new generation of exotic health foods.

They point to a kitchen survey of U.S. diet, made by the Department of Agriculture in 1955, and to often-reviewed recommended allowances set by the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Academy of Sciences.

EXPERTS INSIST

The experts insist that good nutrition is easy to come by at the dinner table — and well-nigh impossible to avoid.

Vitamins and minerals are the subtle bargainers in the transactions of life—the millions and millions of small deals that daily keep your body in business. You need them to cash in on the currency of life—the protein, fats and carbohydrates that are turned into body tissue and energy.

Some essentials are added to staple foods, to insure that Americans get enough of them. Bread and flour and other products are enriched with vitamins—some of which were lost in food processing. B vitamins and iron are added to breakfast cereals. Vitamin D is added to milk, mostly for children, vitamin A is added to margarine and iodine is added to table salt. Fluorine is added to water.

These have the endorsement of both the National Academy's Food and Nutrition Board and the AMA's Council on Food and Nutrition.

A vitamin is deemed necessary by experts when its lack in diet causes disease.

Not enough vitamin C can cause bleeding, scurvy and other weakening of the body's soft tissues—the gums for instance. Not enough vitamin D can cause the deformed bones of rickets in children. Not enough vitamin B1 (Thiamine) can cause mental, nerve, skin and other symptoms collectively called pellagra. Not enough vitamin A can strike the bones and vision.

Not enough iodine can lead to goiter, and not enough calcium to poor bone growth. One researcher found that chlorine eliminated from diet halted the body's use of all minerals.

Generally these deficiencies are rare in the United States—occurring among deprived families, or some old people who live alone and neglect themselves, or among alcoholics who forget to eat.

Just as vitamin deficiencies can cause disease, too much of a vitamin can also cause disease and in rare cases, it does.

Two much vitamin D can cause loss of appetite, nausea, headache, frequent and heavy urination. These symptoms are most often seen in children, but only rarely.

Adults don't need extra vitamin D. They get all they need—produced in their own body tissues whenever they are exposed to sunlight. Growing children with a rapidly building skeleton need heavier doses of vitamin D.

Vitamins A and D are soluble in fat so your body stores them. But many vitamins are short-lived in the body.

Notable among these is vitamin C. It's available in vegetables and especially in citrus fruits. You need vitamin C in your diet on a fairly regular basis.

The food faddists create a far worse problem than the comparatively gentle confusion wrought by many vitamin claims.

The American Medical Association estimates that there are some 10 million Americans who buy so-called wonder foods — and $500 million a year is spent on mixtures of vitamins, minerals, exotic herbs, seaweed and dried vegetables.

The food faddist comes in various shapes and sizes, and so do the food fads. One claims to cure all with one power-packed vitamin pill. Another offers three times the minimum daily requirement in iodine in a one-dollar jar of pills. You can get the same thing in your table salt, which you need anyway.

What most people forget is that you need vitamins and minerals only in relation to your food intake. You can take all the vitamins and minerals you want and still starve to death.

The food faddist has a far more dangerous counterpart — the food quack. The food quack lives on a profitable diet of half truths and gullible people. He is an artist in food fantasy. For protection, you might consider some facts about common food fallacies, compiled by the AMA:

Neither oysters, nor any other food effects sexual potency.

Neither onion nor garlic cures a cold or purifies the flood.

The body can handle both alkaline and acid foods—without help from the food quack.

Yogurt is a tasty, if somewhat more expensive, form of milk. It has no more vitamins, calcium, nor calories than ordinary whole milk.

Milk and cheese do not cause constipation. They have little residue because they are so easily digested. Diets low in bulk can be constipating.

You don't have to eat seaweed or kelp for iodine. You can best get it from seafood, or salt, and in some places from vegetables.

There is no such thing—not fish nor nutmeg—as brain food, "any more than there is a little-toe food or a left-ear food," says the AMA.

The list could be longer. There are as many fallacies as there are people willing to believe them.

The Food and Drug Administration is considering new regulations to limit the ridiculous, the wasteful and the harmful. But it is not an easy problem to solve, because there are legitimate needs for vitamins and minerals above the diet.

But there is little need for most Americans to spend the millions of dollars they squander on extra supplements each year.

Eight Completions Are Reported In Oil, Gas Activity

Shallow wells in Monroe Gas Rock sand of the Monroe Gas Field in Ouachita and Union Parishes continued to healdline drilling last week in the 14 parishes of the Monroe Oil & Gas District.

Five of the eight completions reported in the northeast Louisiana area to District Manager Duncan S. Cook were to approximately 2300 feet, about the level of the popular Monroe Field pay sand.

Four of the finals were in Union Parish in the Monroe Field while Ouachita Parish recorded one completion, in the Calhoun Field. J. C. Trahan's B. H. Moore No. 1, located in section 25-18-3E, drilled to 2340 feet.

Other finals included three in Rapides Parish, the Big Island Field.

New locations totalled 16, with Concordia Parish accounting for four of them, Avoyelles, Ouachita and Union, three each, Rapides Parish, two, and Catahoula, one. All the home parish locations were in the Monroe Field.

A single Ouachita Parish well was among a total of 20 actively drilling or testing over the area at week's end. In the Cheniere Field, it was Douglas Whitaker's Cadeville SUO Johnston No. 1, drilling at 7748 feet. Reports on active rigs also included five in Tensas Parish, four in LaSalle, two each in Avoyelles, Caldwell, Concordia and Franklin, and Rapides, Union and Ouachita had one each.

Employment In Program Is Outlined

By B. N. TIMMONS
World Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON (Special) — The Area Redevelopment Administration said Saturday 9,048 man-months of employment have been generated by projects already approved in Louisiana under the accelerated public works program.

Area administrator William L. Batt said Louisiana has been allocated $4,596,000 of which $4,117,000 is for state and local projects and the remainder for federal works in the state. The state total is 3.01 per cent of the $144,385,000 allocated so far under the program since its inception Oct. 21.

Batt said results so far are "most encouraging" in terms of "putting people back to work as fast as possible on useful projects in areas of high unemployment or underemployment."

Recommendations on allocating the remaining $235 million appropriated by Congress just before adjournment will be forwarded to the White House next week, Batt said.

Batt noted that in the areas of Louisiana eligible for assistance under the accelerated program there are 51,000 unemployed persons, or about 2.62 per cent of the 1,945,000 jobless in all of the nation's eligible areas.

The allocation breakdown by parishes in Louisiana is: Allen, $46,000; East Carroll, $299,000; Jackson, $11,000; Lafayette, $50,000; Madison, $47,000; Natchitoches, $32,000; Vernon, $150,000; Avoyelles, $226,000; Jefferson, $2,672,000; Orleans, $806,000; Rapides, $16,000; Red River, $6,000; Sabine, $6,000, Tensas, $33,000, and Webster, $23,000. The city of Hammond received $308,000.

Grain Futures Market Drops Earlier Gains

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market dropped into a narrow trading range most of last week and prices finished little changed from a week earlier on the Board of Trade.

Brokers said the lifting of the Cuban blockade on Russia's promise to withdraw the jet bombers and the cease fire between Communist China and India left the market without any speculative factors on which traders could extend commitments toward the bullish side, at least.

As a result, most of them evened up both long and short positions and remained close to shore thereafter. Most of the transactions then were limited to small prices changes either way. Resting orders increased but generally were placed within close range of current levels with the result that small bulges attracted profit selling while small declines ran into short covering.

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday, many speculators were absent from the market after evening up positoons on Wednesday for the remainder of the week.

With the threat of hostilities reduced, particularly over Cuba, brokers said the trade probably would revert largely to the usual statistics of domestic and export demand, impoundings in the government price support loan and sales from surplus stocks into commercial channels.

One report on the latter induced some pressure in the corn pit. It followed word that government corn sales during the crop year might run as high as 900 million bushels in order for the Department of Agriculture to recover costs of benefits or the 1962 acreage control program.

Wheat closed ½-1⅞ cents a bushel lower than a week ago, December $2.04⅜-¼; corn unchanged to ⅝ lower, December $1.06½-¾; oats 1 cent higher to ¼ lower, December 67¾ cents; rye unchanged to 1¼ lower, December $1.21⅝-¾; soybeans ⅛-1⅜ higher, January $2.46⅞-¾.

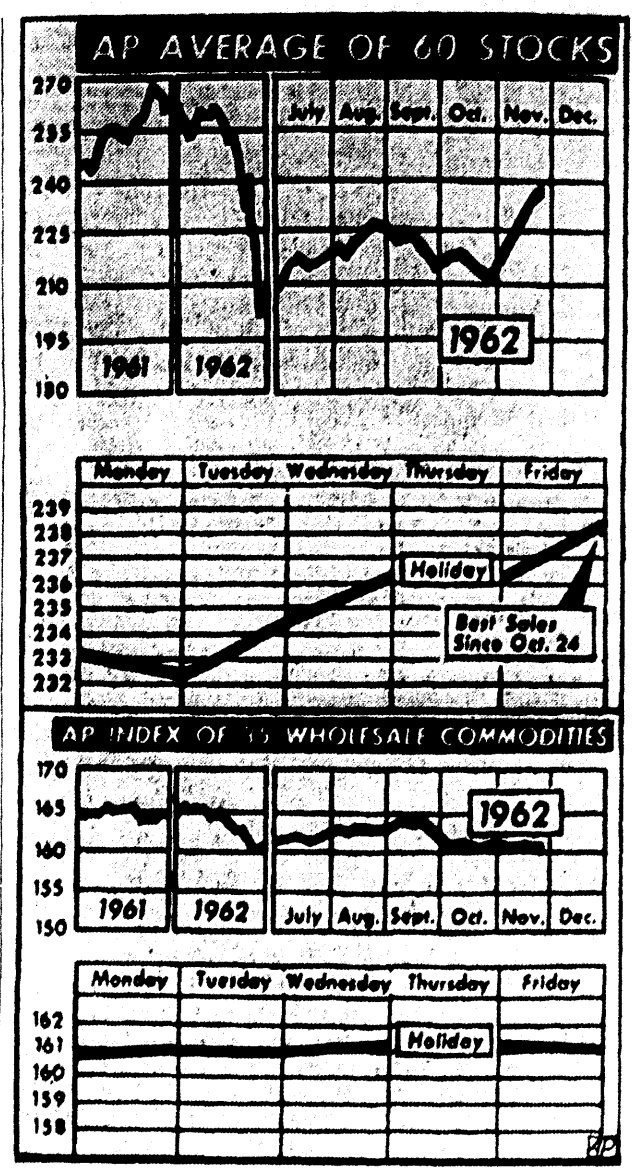
U.S. Minting Silver Dollars For Yule Rush

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you like your pockets to jingle jangle jingle—and a lot of people do—then silver dollars are for you.

Eva Adams, director of the mint, said Saturday the mint has been sending silver dollars to federal reserve banks across the nation in preparation for the Christmas rush—A silver dollar fits neatly in the toe of a Christmas stocking.

She said that where the silver dollar's popularity once was restricted mainly to Western states it now is in demand all across the nation.

During the fiscal year ended last June 30, Mrs. Adams said, the mint shipped 33 million silver dollars to federal reserve banks—& million more than in fiscal 1961 and 14 million more than in 1960.



FOR THE FOURTH straight week The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved higher, closing Friday at 238.2 from 233.1 a week ago as indicated in the above chart. The commodity index rose slightly this week to 161.0 from 160.9 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto)

FOR COMING YEAR

Another Decline Seen In Drilling

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Another decline in drilling operations is indicated for the oil industry this year.

It will be the fifth decline in six years, compared to only one in the 13-year period ending with 1956.

Drilling slumps of the past normally have been interpreted as reflecting bad times for oilmen.

An industry effort to eliminate the drilling of unnecessary wells, however, is minimizing such interpretations for 1962.

The industry's top spokesman, in fact, sees signs of progress even while forecasting another another drilling decline for 1963.

L. F. McCollum, chairman of the American Petroleum Institute (API), says development and service wells drilled this year are down slightly from 1961

"And this improvement will become even more apparent in the years to come," he predicted.

The efforts to eliminate wells which are not essential to the efficient production of oil from a reservoir have gained momentum the past year

They are, in part, an indirect result of cost-cutting programs and efficiency measures.

McCollum told this year's meeting it is encouraging to see a growing awareness of the need for wider well spacing and the elimination of any wells notstrictly needed to get oil out of reserve.

He commended progress made by conservation bodies in such states as Texas, Lousiana, and Oklahoma

"But they still have not gone far enough in eliminating the economic waste caused by drilling too many unnecessary wells," he said.

The domestic industry drilled a record 58,259 wells in 1956. Last year's completions totaled only 46,725.

McCollum expects about 46,000 completions next year. He expressed hope the total will include fewer development wells but increased exploratory activity aimed at finding new reservoirs.

A weekly survey made by the Oil and Gas Journal indicates 1962 completions through Nov. 10 totaled 39,392, compared to 39,869 the same 1961 period.

Wildcat or exploratory wells totaled 7,652, compared to 7,800 a year earlier. The industry drilled 9,050 wildcats in 1961, compared to a record 10,952 in 1956.

Cotton Futures Market Steady For Past Week

NEW YORK (AP)—Price of cotton futures showed little variation on the domestic market this week and closed 15 cents a bale lower to $1.90 a bale higher.

A week earlier the market had been 20 cents a bale lower to $1.45 a bale higher.

Observers said the market lacked new incentives. Sustaining factors were limited to light commission house buying and short covering, while offerings came through hedge selling and commission house liquidation.

Helping to depress buying was a Census Bureau report. It showed mills used about 823,00 bales during the five-week period from Sept. 30 to Nov. 3.

This equaled a daily rate of 32,900, compared with 33,000 in September. Although the loss was slight, a gain had been expected.

For the first 13 weeks of the present season, consumption totaled 2,176,000 bales, compared with 2,256,000 in the comparable period last season.

Exports by this country for the 43,000 bales, the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau reported. This compares with 77,600 one week earlier and 65,000 in the comparable week a year ago.

For the season through Sept. 20 exports were 626,000 bales, compared with 1,460,000 bales in the same period of 1961.

Officials Say Sawmill Fire Loss $750,000

JACKSON, Ala. (UPI) — Fire swept through the M.W.K. Smith Lumber Company sawmill before dawn Saturday, causing an estimated $750,000 damage.

However, quick work by firemen and area volunteer fire fighters kept the blaze from spreading to adjacent property worth about $2 million and two neighboring sawmills.

Fire Chief George W. Skipper said the blaze was reported about 4:30 a.m. and raged out of control for nearly three hours.

The sawmill, located just south of the business district here, was one of the firm's three plants in south Alabama. The firm, in operation for more than 25 years was one of the largest lumber manufacturing operations in the area.

Company officials said the loss was partially covered by insurance.

Mart Shows More Gains In Past Week

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rebound continued for the fourth straight week as trading was vigorous, despite the Thanksgiving Day holiday.

The upsurge in stock prices left security analysts as confused as some of them were during the black days of last May when the market sank week after week to the dramatic crash of "Black Monday," then worked lower until nearly the end of June.

At that time it was "lack of confidence," the experts said; now it's renewed confidence.

The cease fire on the military front between the Chinese Communists and the troops of India, as well as Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's offer to give up Soviet jet bombers, and the end of the U.S. naval blockade of Cuba removed most of Wall Street's worries about international affairs.

At the same time, an impressive list of improved dividends and a brighter economic outlook for 1963 than expressed earlier this year gave investors some solid meat and potatoes to chew on.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week advanced 13.87 to 644.87.

This brought the total rise since the low of the Cuban crisis on Oct. 26 to 75.85. Since the year's low of 535.76 was reached June 26, the Dow industrials have won back 109.11 of the total 199.15 lost since the historic high of 734.91 last December.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks this week gained 5.1 at 238.2. Both The AP and the Dow industrial averages were at their highest levels since May 21, seven days before "Black Monday."

Shortened to four days by Thursday's market holiday, the trading week generated volume of 18,471,945 shares compared with 23,787,955 for the full five-day trading week preceding it.

As the week began, there was not a well known market analyst who did not anticipate a period of "consolidation" of the previous vigorous, three-week rally.

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK ENHANCED

Business Advances Mark Period Of Thanksgiving

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Some thanks-deserving business developments highlighted Thanksgiving week.

The economic outlook was enhanced by reports of improvement in home construction, durable goods orders, personal income and orders for machine tools.

And income tax payers on both personal and corporate levels were cheered by the recommendation by the President's Advisory Committee on Labor-Management policy of a $10-billion tax cut.

The stock market advance kept rolling along at a good clip, and the week provided a springboard for the Christmas buying season, which many merchants expect to be record-breaking.

The Commerce Department released these indications of a more robust economy in October

Work got under way on 129,100 privately owned houses and apartment units. This translates into an annual rate of 1,497 units, a gain of 17 per cent from September and 4 per cent from October 1961.

Bolstered by an improvement in demand for steel, durable goods orders reached a new high of $16.6 billion with a 3 per cent gain over September. Durable goods held even.

A record annual rate of $445.6 billion was attained by personal income with a $2.1 rise last month. Dividends from investments showed a gain of $300 million and interest $200 million over September.

The National Machine Tool Builders Association reported orders for new machine tools—a key economic barometer—jumped to $61.15 million in October from $50.1 million in September.

With investors' confidence strengthened by an improving economic outlook and an easing of international crises, the stock market pushed its advance through the fourth consecutive week, rising to the highest level in six months. It accomplished this despite a holiday, which usually has been an interruption in an upward trend.

Spectacular parades staged by department stores in major cities served as the kickoff of the Christmas shopping season. Retailers were optimistic not only about the holiday period, but a survey by the National Retail Merchants Association showed a majority of merchants expecting higher sales and profits in the first half of 1963.

President Kennedy acted to provide what he called "a needed boost to the economy" by ordering that $327.6 million in dividends on National Service Life insurance and U.S. government life insurance policies be paid in January. Otherwise, the payments would have been spread out through all of next year.

While there were reports that orders for steel were on the upbeat from nonautomotive users as well as automakers, production dipped during the week to 1,782,000 tons.

U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's biggest producer, disclosed that it is laying off low-level management personnel as a cost-cutting means. While the company wouldn't go into detail, one industry source estimated about 1,000 persons would be sliced from the payroll.

The holiday cut into automobile production but manufacturers were planning to build more cars in the fourth quarter than ever before in that period.

Output during the week was estimated at 137,000 cars, down from 162,703 the previous week but above the 124,292 turned out a year ago. The fourth-quarter schedule is 2.05 million units, which would exceed the 1955 record by 100,000.

Eight Completions Are Reported In Oil, Gas Activity

Shallow wells in Monroe Gas Rock sand of the Monroe Gas Field in Ouachita and Union Parishes continued to healdline drilling last week in the 14 parishes of the Monroe Oil & Gas District.

Five of the eight completions reported in the northeast Louisiana area to District Manager Duncan S. Cook were to approximately 2300 feet, about the level of the popular Monroe Field pay sand.

Four of the finals were in Union Parish in the Monroe Field while Ouachita Parish recorded one completion, in the Calhoun Field. J. C. Trahan's B. H. Moore No. 1, located in section 25-18-3E, drilled to 2340 feet.

Other finals included three in Rapides Parish, the Big Island Field.

New locations totalled 16, with Concordia Parish accounting for four of them, Avoyelles, Ouachita and Union, three each, Rapides Parish, two, and Catahoula, one. All the home parish locations were in the Monroe Field.

A single Ouachita Parish well was among a total of 20 actively drilling or testing over the area at week's end. In the Cheniere Field, it was Douglas Whitaker's Cadeville SUO Johnston No. 1, drilling at 7748 feet. Reports on active rigs also included five in Tensas Parish, four in LaSalle, two each in Avoyelles, Caldwell, Concordia and Franklin, and Rapides, Union and Ouachita had one each.

Employment In Program Is Outlined

By B. N. TIMMONS
World Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON (Special) — The Area Redevelopment Administration said Saturday 9,048 man-months of employment have been generated by projects already approved in Louisiana under the accelerated public works program.

Area administrator William L. Batt said Louisiana has been allocated $4,596,000 of which $4,117,000 is for state and local projects and the remainder for federal works in the state. The state total is 3.01 per cent of the $144,385,000 allocated so far under the program since its inception Oct. 24.

Batt said results so far are "most encouraging" in terms of "putting people back to work as fast as possible on useful projects in areas of high unemployment or underemployment."

Recommendations on allocating the remaining $235 million appropriated by Congress just before adjournment will be forwarded to the White House next week, Batt said.

Batt noted that in the areas of Louisiana eligible for assistance under the accelerated program there are 51,000 unemployed persons, or about 2.62 per cent of the 1,945,000 jobless in all of the nation's eligible areas.

The allocation breakdown by parishes in Louisiana is: Allen, $46,000; East Carroll, $299,000; Jackson, $11,000; Lafayette, $50,000; Madison, $47,000; Natchitoches, $32,000; Vernon, $150,000; Avoyelles, $226,000; Jefferson, $2,672,000; Orleans, $806,000; Rapides, $16,000; Red River, $6,000; Sabine, $6,000, Tensas, $33,000, and Webster, $23,000. The city of Hammond received $308,000.

Grain Futures Market Drops Earlier Gains

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market dropped into a narrow trading range most of last week and prices finished little changed from a week earlier on the Board of Trade.

Brokers said the lifting of the Cuban blockade on Russia's promise to withdraw the jet bombers and the cease fire between Communist China and India left the market without any speculative factors on which traders could extend commitments toward the bullish side, at least.

As a result, most of them evened up both long and short positions and remained close to shore thereafter. Most of the transactions then were limited to small prices changes either way. Resting orders increased but generally were placed within close range of current levels with the result that small bulges attracted profit selling while small declines ran into short covering.

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday, many speculators were absent from the market after evening up positoons on Wednesday for the remainder of the week.

With the threat of hostilities reduced, particularly over Cuba, brokers said the trade probably would revert largely to the usual statistics of domestic and export demand, impoundings in the government price support loan and sales from surplus stocks into commercial channels.

One report on the latter induced some pressure in the corn pit. It followed word that government corn sales during the crop year might run as high as 900 million bushels in order for the Department of Agriculture to recover costs of benefits or the 1962 acreage control program.

Wheat closed ½-1⅞ cents a bushel lower than a week ago, December $2.04⅜-¼; corn unchanged to ⅝ lower, December $1.06½-¾; oats 1 cent higher to ¼ lower, December 67¾ cents; rye unchanged to 1¼ lower, December $1.21⅝-¾; soybeans ⅛-1⅜ higher, January $2.46⅝-¾.

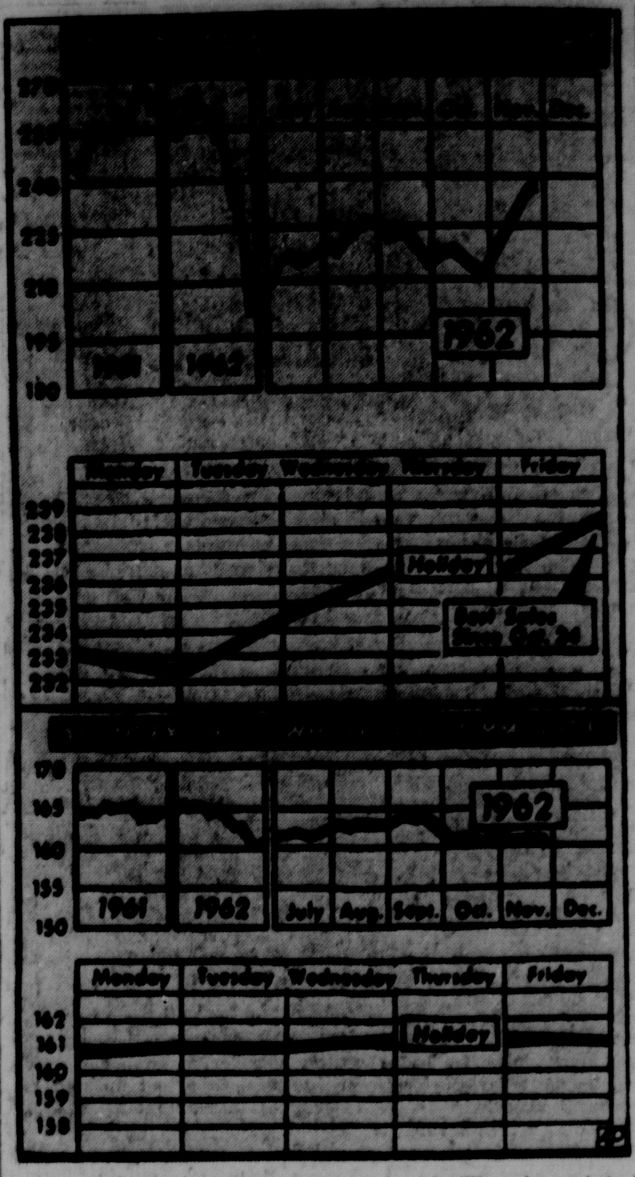
U.S. Minting Silver Dollars For Yule Rush

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you like your pockets to jingle jangle jingle—and a lot of people do—then silver dollars are for you.

Eva Adams, director of the mint, said Saturday the mint has been sending silver dollars to federal reserve banks across the nation in preparation for the Christmas rush—A silver dollar fits neatly in the toe of a Christmas stocking.

She said that where the silver dollar's popularity once was restricted mainly to Western states it now is in demand all across the nation.

During the fiscal year ended last June 30, Mrs. Adams said, the mint shipped 33 million silver dollars to federal reserve banks—& million more than in fiscal 1961 and 14 million more than in 1960.



FOR THE FOURTH straight week The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved higher, closing Friday at 238.2 from 233.1 a week ago as indicated in the above chart. The commodity index rose slightly this week to 161.0 from 160.9 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto)

FOR COMING YEAR

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Another decline in drilling operations is indicated for the oil industry this year.

It will be the fifth decline in six years, compared to only one in the 13-year period ending with 1956.

Drilling slumps of the past normally have been interpreted as reflecting bad times for oilmen.

An industry effort to eliminate the drilling of unnecessary wells, however, is minimizing such interpretations for 1962.

The industry's top spokesman, in fact, sees signs of progress even while forecasting another another drilling decline for 1963.

L. F. McCollum, chairman of the American Petroleum Institute (API), says development and service wells drilled this year are down slightly from 1961

"And this improvement will become even more apparent in the years to come," he predicted.

The efforts to eliminate wells which are not essential to the efficient production of oil from a reservoir have gained momentum the past year.

They are, in part, an indirect result of cost-cutting programs and efficiency measures.

McCollum told this year's meeting it is encouraging to see a growing awareness of the need for wider well spacing and the elimination of any wells notstrictly needed to get oil out of reserve.

He commended progress made by conservation bodies in such states as Texas, Louisiana, and Oklahoma.

"But they still have not gone far enough in eliminating the economic waste caused by drilling too many unnecessary wells," he said.

The domestic industry drilled a record 58,259 wells in 1956. Last year's completions totaled only 46,725.

McCollum expects about 46,000 completions next year. He expressed hope the total will include fewer development wells but increased exploratory activity aimed at finding new reservoirs.

A weekly survey made by the Oil and Gas Journal indicates 1962 completions through Nov. 10 totaled 39,392, compared to 39,869 the same 1961 period.

Wildcat or exploratory wells totaled 7,652, compared to 7,800 a year earlier. The industry drilled 9,050 wildcats in 1961, compared to a record 10,952 in 1956.

Cotton Futures Market Steady For Past Week

NEW YORK (AP)—Price of cotton futures showed little variation on the domestic market this week and closed 15 cents a bale lower to $1.90 a bale higher.

A week earlier the market had been 20 cents a bale lower to $1.45 a bale higher.

Observers said the market lacked new incentives. Sustaining factors were limited to light commission house buying and short covering, while offerings came through hedge selling and commission house liquidation.

Helping to depress buying was a Census Bureau report. It showed mills used about 823,00 bales during the five-week period from Sept. 30 to Nov. 3.

This equaled a daily rate of 32,900, compared with 33,000 in September. Although the loss was slight, a gain had been expected.

For the first 13 weeks of the present season, consumption totaled 2,176,000 bales, compared with 2,256,000 in the comparable period last season.

Exports by this country for the 43,000 bales, the New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau reported. This compares with 77,600 one week earlier and 65,000 in the comparable week a year ago.

For the season through Sept. 20 exports were 626,000 bales, compared with 1,460,000 bales in the same period of 1961.

Officials Say Sawmill Fire Loss $750,000

JACKSON, Ala. (UPI) — Fire swept through the M.W.K. Smith Lumber Company sawmill before dawn Saturday, causing an estimated $750,000 damage.

However, quick work by firemen and area volunteer fire fighters kept the blaze from spreading to adjacent property worth about $2 million and two neighboring sawmills.

Fire Chief George W. Skipper said the blaze was reported about 4:30 a.m. and raged out of control for nearly three hours.

The sawmill, located just south of the business district here, was one of the firm's three plants in south Alabama. The firm, in operation for more than 25 years was one of the largest lumber manufacturing operations in the area.

Company officials said the loss was partially covered by insurance.

Mart Shows More Gains In Past Week

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market rebound continued for the fourth straight week as trading was vigorous, despite the Thanksgiving Day holiday.

The upsurge in stock prices left security analysts as confused as some of them were during the black days of last May when the market sank week after week to the dramatic crash of "Black Monday," then worked lower until nearly the end of June.

At that time it was "lack of confidence," the experts said; now it's renewed confidence.

The cease fire on the military front between the Chinese Communists and the troops of India, as well as Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's offer to give up Soviet jet bombers, and the end of the U.S. naval blockade of Cuba removed most of Wall Street's worries about international affairs.

At the same time, an impressive list of improved dividends and a brighter economic outlook for 1963 than expressed earlier this year gave investors some solid meat and potatoes to chew on.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week advanced 13.87 to 644.87.

This brought the total rise since the low of the Cuban crisis on Oct. 26 to 75.85. Since the year's low of 535.76 was reached June 26, the Dow industrials have won back 109.11 of the total 199.15 lost since the historic high of 734.91 last December.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks this week gained 5.1 at 238.2. Both The AP and the Dow industrial averages were at their highest levels since May 21, seven days before "Black Monday."

Shortened to four days by Thursday's market holiday, the trading week generated volume of 18,471,945 shares compared with 23,787,955 for the full five-day trading week preceding it.

As the week began, there was not a well known market analyst who did not anticipate a period of "consolidation" of the previous vigorous, three-week rally.

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK ENHANCED

Business Advances Mark Period Of Thanksgiving

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Some thanks-deserving business developments highlighted Thanksgiving week.

The economic outlook was enhanced by reports of improvement in home construction, durable goods orders, personal income and orders for machine tools.

And income tax payers on both personal and corporate levels were cheered by the recommendation by the President's Advisory Committee on Labor-Management policy of a $10-billion tax cut.

The stock market advance kept rolling along at a good clip, and the week provided a springboard for the Christmas buying season, which many merchants expect to be record-breaking.

The Commerce Department released these indications of a more robust economy in October:

Work got under way on 129,100 privately owned houses and apartment units. This translates into an annual rate of 1,497 units, a gain of 17 per cent from September and 4 per cent from October 1961.

Bolstered by an improvement in demand for steel, durable goods orders reached a new high of $16.6 billion with a 3 per cent gain over September. Durable goods held even.

A record annual rate of $445.6 billion was attained by personal income with a $2.1 rise last month. Dividends from investments showed a gain of $300 million and interest $200 million over September.

The National Machine Tool Builders Association reported orders for new machine tools—a key economic barometer—jumped to $61.15 million in October from $50.1 million in September.

With investors' confidence strengthened by an improving economic outlook and an easing of international crises, the stock market pushed its advance through the fourth consecutive week, rising to the highest level in six months. It accomplished this despite a holiday, which usually has been an interruption in an upward trend.

Spectacular parades staged by department stores in major cities served as the kickoff of the Christmas shopping season. Retailers were optimistic not only about the holiday period, but a survey by the National Retail Merchants Association showed a majority of merchants expecting higher sales and profits in the first half of 1963.

President Kennedy acted to provide what he called "a needed boost to the economy" by ordering that $327.6 million in dividends on National Service Life insurance and U.S. government life insurance policies be paid in January. Otherwise, the payments would have been spread out through all of next year.

While there were reports that orders for steel were on the upbeat from nonautomotive users as well as automakers, production dipped during the week to 1,782,000 tons.

U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's biggest producer, disclosed that it is laying off low-level management personnel as a cost-cutting means. While the company wouldn't go into detail, one industry source estimated about 1,000 persons would be sliced from the payroll.

The holiday cut into automobile production but manufacturers were planning to build more cars in the fourth quarter than ever before in that period.

Output during the week was estimated at 137,000 cars, down from 162,703 the previous week but above the 124,292 turned out a year ago. The fourth-quarter schedule is 2.05 million units, which would exceed the 1955 record by 100,000.

CHECK SORTING BY NYMBOLS

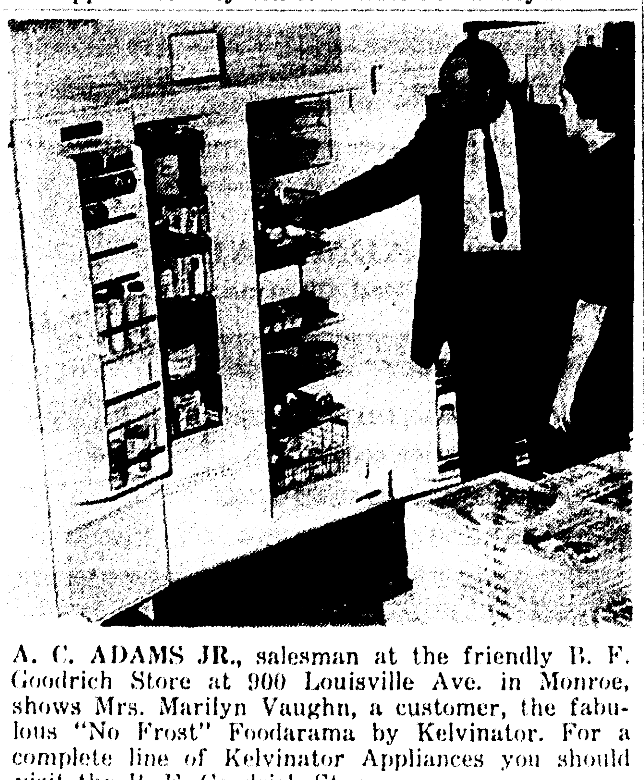
NEW YORK (AP) — What is a nymbol?

It's a number and symbol belonging to a collection of malformed printed characters.

It also is magnetic, is printed on some type of bank document and knows how to talk back to electronic computers.

When you see it along the bottom of a check, you can properly call it a nymbol. Bankers, more austerely, refer to the characters in a row of nymbols as magnetic ink character recognition numbers and symbols.

BEN PARNELL, manager of Massey's Service Center, calls attention to the outstanding features of the Kelvinator appliances which are handled at 801 Jackson. Massey's is one of the oldest appliance stores in the Twin City area and has always carried famous name brands for the home. Service for the appliances they sell is a must at Massey's.



A. C. ADAMS JR., salesman at the friendly B. F. Goodrich Store at 900 Louisville Ave. in Monroe, shows Mrs. Marilyn Vaughn, a customer, the fabulous "No Frost" Foodarama by Kelvinator. For a complete line of Kelvinator Appliances you should visit the B. F. Goodrich Store soon.

WANDERING CONSTITUTIONS

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — For more than 30 years, the original copy of Kentucky's constitution has been missing.

Some historians figure it will turn up in a musty file of papers. Others say it was destroyed.

The only copy of the constitution, adopted in 1891, is a typewritten document apparently copied from the original.

Also, the constitution of 1850 has disappeared from sight. The state has copies of its first two constitutions, adopted in 1792 and 1799, but they were missing for a number of years before they were returned, secretly, to the governor in 1948.

Soviets Get New Council For Industry

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union established a new and powerful Economic Council Saturday to give a push to Soviet industry and construction. A rising economic brain, a Jew, was named to head it.

At the same time, Soviet deputy Premier Vladimir Novikov was demoted to minister rank in Premier Khrushchev's shakeup of top economic administrators.

The 52-year-old deputy Premier Veniamin Dymshits, who rocketed into prominence within the past year, takes over the Economic Council to become the effective czar of Soviet industry.

Dymshits raised Soviet eyebrows last July when he was named deputy premier and was appointed head of the State Planning Committee replacing Novikov.

He is the first Jew to reach such heights since Lazar M. Kaganovich held his post in the Kremlin leadership. Kagavonich was ousted for opposing Khrushchev's rise to power.

The council he has been chosen to head will take over the year-to-year planning tasks of the State Planning Committee. It also takes charge of administering the regional economic councils that run Soviet industry.

Dymshits has a long career in construction behind him. He helped build some of the Soviet Union's largest iron and steel mills and other heavy industries.

Novikov's downfall apparently was triggered by Khrushchev's dissatisfaction with his running of the State Planning Committee.

The premier bitterly complained last week that he had had a number of sharp arguments with the planning organ's experts over various capital construction projects Khrushchev wanted to push through.

Novikov, 56, is an industrial executive who worked in the Soviet Defense Ministry during World War II. He later was deputy minister of machine-building and ran the Leningrad Economic Council set up in 1957 under Khrushchev's sweeping economic decentralization reforms.

Announcement of the new shakeups by the Soviet Council of Ministers came on the heels of a call from Khrushchev for drastic Communist party and government reorganization at the meeting of the party's Central Committee during the past week. The meeting closed Friday.

Ike, Wife Begin Augusta Vacation Stay

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) —Former President Eisenhower, accompanied by his wife Mamie, began a three-week vacation Saturday at a favorite haunt, the Augusta National Golf Club.

The former president and the former first lady have the use of quarters built specially for them at the club during his presidency He can step from his front door onto the famous golf course, home of the Masters Tournament.

The Eisenhowers arrived by train Saturday morning. The former president, dressed in a dark blue suit with matching top coat and hat, greeted a crowd of 300 well-wishers who gathered at the station to meet him.

He shook hands with a number of persons, including many of his Augusta friends, and then followed his almost unvaried custom of traveling immediately to the golf club by car.

Eisenhower was officially greeted by Maj. Gen. Eugene Salet, commander of nearby Ft. Gordon. His old friend, Cliff Roberts, who is head of the Augusta National, also was on hand.

Eisenhower has only one major engagement during his stay—participation in a closed circuit television broadcast on Nov. 29 to promote a national arts performing center.

The former president and Mrs. Eisenhower will both speak from here. President and Mrs. Kennedy will speak from Washington during the same telecast.

Will Is Eaten, Ruling Issued

ROME (UPI) — When Luigi Peveri ate his father's will he did not make himself ineligible to share in the family estate, the Italian Supreme Court ruled Saturday.

The court was told Peveri was the first in the family to arrive for a formal reading of his late father's will. He looked at it and, apparently not liking what he saw, ate it.

The court ruled he had not eaten himself out of a share in the inheritance.

At the same time, Soviet deputy Premier Vladimir Novikov was demoted to minister rank in Premier Khrushchev's shakeup of top economic administrators.

The 52-year-old deputy Premier Veniamin Dymshits, who rocketed into prominence within the past year, takes over the Economic Council to become the effective czar of Soviet industry.

Dymshits raised Soviet eyebrows last July when he was named deputy premier and was appointed head of the State Planning Committee replacing Novikov.

He is the first Jew to reach such heights since Lazar M. Kaganovich held his post in the Kremlin leadership. Kagavonich was ousted for opposing Khrushchev's rise to power.

The council he has been chosen to head will take over the year-to-year planning tasks of the State Planning Committee. It also takes charge of administering the regional economic councils that run Soviet industry.

Dymshits has a long career in construction behind him. He helped build some of the Soviet Union's largest iron and steel mills and other heavy industries.

Novikov's downfall apparently was triggered by Khrushchev's dissatisfaction with his running of the State Planning Committee.

The premier bitterly complained last week that he had had a number of sharp arguments with the planning organ's experts over various capital construction projects Khrushchev wanted to push through.

Novikov, 56, is an industrial executive who worked in the Soviet Defense Ministry during World War II. He later was deputy minister of machine-building and ran the Leningrad Economic Council set up in 1957 under Khrushchev's sweeping economic decentralization reforms.

Announcement of the new shake-ups by the Soviet Council of Ministers came on the heels of a call from Khrushchev for drastic Communist party and government reorganization at the meeting of the party's Central Committee during the past week. The meeting closed Friday.

Ike, Wife Begin Augusta Vacation Stay

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) —Former President Eisenhower, accompanied by his wife Mamie, began a three-week vacation Saturday at a favorite haunt, the Augusta National Golf Club.

The former president and the former first lady have the use of quarters built specially for them at the club during his presidency. He can step from his front door onto the famous golf course, home of the Masters Tournament.

The Eisenhowers arrived by train Saturday morning. The former president, dressed in a dark blue suit with matching top coat and hat, greeted a crowd of 300 well-wishers who gathered at the station to meet him.

He shook hands with a number of persons, including many of his Augusta friends, and then followed his almost unvaried custom of traveling immediately to the golf club by car.

Eisenhower was officially greeted by Maj. Gen. Eugene Salet, commander of nearby Ft. Gordon. His old friend, Cliff Roberts, who is head of the Augusta National, also was on hand.

Eisenhower has only one major engagement during his stay—participation in a closed circuit television broadcast on Nov. 29 to promote a national arts performing center.

The former president and Mrs. Eisenhower will both speak from here. President and Mrs. Kennedy will speak from Washington during the same telecast.

Will Is Eaten, Ruling Issued

ROME (UPI) — When Luigi Peveri ate his father's will he did not make himself ineligible to share in the family estate, the Italian Supreme Court ruled Saturday.

The court was told Peveri was the first in the family to arrive for a formal reading of his late father's will. He looked at it and, apparently not liking what he saw, ate it.

The court ruled he had not eaten himself out of a share in the inheritance.

Man Injured In Accident On Louisville

Charles Edward Lucas, 39-year-old Monroe man, was seriously injured when he collided with the side of a car in the 1400 block of Louisville Avenue Saturday afternoon.

Lucas, of 302 Bayou Oaks Dr., was rushed to St. Francis hospital by Mulhearn ambulance where his injuries included compound fractures of the wrist and jaw and undetermined head injuries.

The driver of the automobile with which he collided, William F. Petty, 44, of 208 Fairbanks Dr., Monroe, was booked for negligent injury and reckless driving by investigating Monroe police.

According to investigating officers, Petty, traveling east on Louisville Avenue, apparently made a left turn into Sears, Roebuck and Co. in front of Lucas, who was riding a motor scooter west on Louisville Avenue. Lucas smashed into the center post of the car driven by Petty and was knocked unconscious.

Late Saturday night, Lucas was still in a semi - conscious state at the hospital, and officers had not been able to talk to him. The accident occurred around 3 p.m.

Monroe officers also booked several persons for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages late Friday and Saturday. Kenneth Don Ford, 27, of 2703 Lee Ave., was booked for DWI and reckless driving at 11:03 p.m. Friday. He was apprehended at the intersection of Oliver Road and Forsythe Avenue. Shortly before 2 a.m. Saturday, Monroe police booked Savery Stuckey, 58-year-old Ruston man, on the same two counts after his apprehension in the 1900 block of Louisville Avenue. Ford was held in lieu of a $500 bond, while Stuckey's bond was set at $435.

The six winners of bread demonstration awards agreed that "experience is the most important ingredient" in making yeast breads.

Standard Brands Inc., makers of Fleischmann's yeast, presented the awards to: Kitty Fleming, 17, Fairhope, Ala.; Colleen Smith, 16, Safford, Ariz.; Bonnie Lou Ritchie, 20, Middletown, Ind.; Mary Louise Will, 17, Eden, N. Father Slays Two Children, Kills Himself

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AP)—An assistant chain store manager shot his two small children to death, wounded another, and then took his own life in their new ranch-type home Saturday, police reported.

The shootings apparently were prompted by a family argument during which the mother left home Friday night.

The dead were identified by police as Armand Loranger Jr., 30, assistant manager of a Manchester A&P store, his daughter, Leean, 2, and Son, Leon, 4.

The third child, Danny, 3, was reported in critical condition at Manchester Hospital and not expected to live.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Elmer Bourque said Loranger shot the children with a .22-caliber pistol and took his own life with a shotgun blast through the forehead.

Investigators said the tragedy apparently occurred shortly after Loranger had talked with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Armand Loranger Sr. of Lowell, Mass.

The Lowell couple left for Manchester directly after they talked with their son about 2 p.m. When they arrived at the Manchester home the door was locked. They broke in and discovered the bodies and the wounded child.

The father and two of the children were found in the bedroom. The youngest child was in a crib.

ON CUBAN CRISIS

Security Council Meet Is Expected

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Acting Secretary-General U Thant said Saturday he expects the U.N. Security Council to meet late next week to deal with progress to date in settling the Cuban crisis.

"I have a feeling we can have a Security Council meeting next week," he told newsmen.

By that time, he explained, there should be Cuban-Soviet-U.S. agreement "not on all points, but to such an extent that it might warrant a meeting of the Security Council."

He said there was no official reply yet from the United States to a formal agreement on the subject proposed by Cuba and the Soviet Union.

He said he expected one soon and hoped it would come Monday.

As to the contents of the proposed agreement, he confirmed only that it contained 14 points.

Communist sources said the Cuban-Soviet proposals embodied the agreement President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev had already reached by letter for pulling Soviet missiles and bombers out of Cuba, lifting the U.S. blockade of that country and pledging no U.S. invasion of Cuba.

But they reported that the document would also have the United States agree to lift its economic blockade of Cuba, stop alleged interference in Cuba's domestic affairs and talk with Cuba about U.S. withdrawal from Guantanamo naval base in Cuba.

These points reflect Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's so-called five demands, in one degree or another, sources familiar with the U.S. position said Washington would not discuss anything taken from the five demands. One described the Cuban-Soviet plan as "no go." Another said nothing was going to come of it.

ON CUBAN CRISIS

Security Council Meet Is Expected

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —Acting Secretary - General U Thant said Saturday he expects the U.N. Security Council to meet late next week to deal with progress to date in settling the Cuban crisis.

"I have a feeling we can have a Security Council meeting next week," he told newsmen.

By that time, he explained, there should be Cuban-Soviet-U.S. agreement "not on all points, but to such an extent that it might warrant a meeting of the Security Council."

He said there was no official reply yet from the United States to a formal agreement on the subject proposed by Cuba and the Soviet Union.

He said he expected one soon and hoped it would come Monday. As to the contents of the proposed agreement, he confirmed only that it contained 14 points.

Communist sources said the Cuban-Soviet proposals embodied the agreement President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev had already reached by letter for pulling Soviet missiles and bombers out of Cuba, lifting the U.S. blockade of that country and pledging no U.S. invasion of Cuba.

But they reported that the document would also have the United States agree to lift its economic blockade of Cuba, stop alleged interference in Cuba's domestic affairs and talk with Cuba about U.S. withdrawal from Guantanamo naval base in Cuba.

These points reflect Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's so-called five demands, in one degree or another, sources familiar with the U.S. position said Washington would not discuss anything taken from the five demands. One described the Cuban-Soviet plan as "no go." Another said nothing was going to come of it.

Thanksgiving Topic Given Review Club

Mrs. J. C. Loftin was hostess to the Review Club Monday afternoon in the conference room of the Ouachita Parish Public Library, at which time Mrs. Ralph King Jr. was welcomed as a visitor.

In keeping with the season, Mrs. W. Tom Davis gave an inspirational Thanksgiving meditation. Following the business meeting, Katherine Ann Porter's book, "Ship of Fools" was reviewed by Mrs. Claude Smith. The novel, based on a 15th century German satire, is ostensibly the tale of a shipload of voyagers, an evil and uncommonly well - drawn lot, journeying to a doomed Germany of 1931.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. Loftin invited the members and guest into the Louis Locke room for coffee and assorted pastries and to view the display for Library Week exhibited there. On the refreshment table was a bisque cherub holding a pyramid arrangement of seasonal greenery, accented with red birds.

Other members present for the Thanksgiving meeting were Mrs. W. E. Bennett Jr., Mrs. Thomas Dansby, Mrs. Herschel Gentry Jr., Mrs. Allen Givens, Mrs. Prentice Gray Jr., Mrs. Fred Huenefeld Jr., Mrs. Robert Lewis, Mrs. L. N. Waddell and Mrs. George Walker.

The next meeting of the club on December 3 will be in the home of Mrs. W. Tom Davis, 106 Glenmar, at 2:30 p.m.

From head to toe gals are muffling up. Hats cover the hair, have attached scarves to wrap around the throat. Fur collars rise above the chin, or else big stoles wrap right up to the nose.

Thanksgiving Topic Given Review Club

Mrs. J. C. Loftin was hostess to the Review Club Monday afternoon in the conference room of the Ouachita Parish Public Library, at which time Mrs. Ralph King Jr. was welcomed as a visitor.

In keeping with the season, Mrs. W. Tom Davis gave an inspirational Thanksgiving meditation. Following the business meeting, Katherine Ann Porter's book, "Ship of Fools" was reviewed by Mrs. Claude Smith. The novel, based on a 15th century German satire, is ostensibly the tale of a shipload of voyagers, an evil and uncommonly well - drawn lot, journeying to a doomed Germany of 1931.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. Loftin invited the members and guest into the Louis Locke room for coffee and assorted pastries and to view the display for Library Week exhibited there. On the refreshment table was a bisque cherub holding a pyramid arrangement of seasonal greenery, accented with red birds.

Other members present for the Thanksgiving meeting were Mrs. W. E. Bennett Jr., Mrs. Thomas Dansby, Mrs. Herschel Gentry Jr., Mrs. Allen Givens, Mrs. Prentice Gray Jr., Mrs. Fred Huenefeld Jr., Mrs. Robert Lewis, Mrs. L. N. Waddell and Mrs. George Walker.

The next meeting of the club on December 3 will be in the home of Mrs. W. Tom Davis, 106 Glenmar, at 2:30 p.m.

STRAIGHT JACKET

The straight jacket isn't such a mad idea after all. Designer Rudi Gernreich proved it by creating a suit with a jacket that looks as if it was put on backwards. It has a notched collar, three buttons down the spine, and a cutaway effect at the hips.

Thurman-Hendricks Vows Exchanged By Candlelight

Miss Lynda Sue Hendricks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moody Willis Hendricks, 1709 West Avenue, became the bride of Joseph Ernest Thurman, son of Mrs. A. C. Thurman, 1105 Mississippi St., and the late Mr. Thurman, in a double ring ceremony Wednesday, November 21. Rev. Richard Walton officiated at the 7 p.m. vows in Memorial Methodist Church.

Pedestal baskets of white gladioli flanked the altar, which was adorned with tall bouquets of the same blossoms. Candles, entwined with fern completed the setting for the exchange of vows. Mrs. Willie Mae Wafer accompanied W. E. Hendricks, uncle of the bride, who sang "I Love You Truly," "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer," and played traditional wedding marches.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white bridal satin. Swiss embroidered lace embellished the neckline and lily points of the long sleeves. The bouffant skirt extended into a chapel train from a bustle, caught up with self fabric roses. Her veil of illusion was attached to a pillbox, covered with bridal satin and trimmed with Swiss embroidered lace. She carried a large white orchid, mounted on a Bible, belonging to her paternal grandmother, Mrs. W. E. Hendricks Sr.

Miss Sheryle Dianne Hendricks, sister of the bride was maid of honor. She wore a frock of kelly green nite-lite, with scooped neckline, three quarter length sleeves and bell skirt with back bustle formed by self material roses. Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids, Miss Jane Hendricks, St. Joseph, cousin of the bride; Miss Ann Walker, Mrs. Ronald Squyres, Mrs. Terry Reeves and Mrs. Malcolm Keith Jr. The attendants wore matching pillbox hats with nose veils, kelly green shoes and carried kelly green muffs with bronze miniature chrysanthemums.

Candles were lighted by Danny Hendricks, Lake Providence and Miss Susan Hendricks, St. Joseph, both cousins of the bride. Miss Hendicks wore a gold nite-lite dress with matching shoes and a wrist corsage of bronze chrysanthemums.

James W. Thurman, McGhee, Ark., was his brother's best man. Groomsmen were Bill G. Smith, Billy Clark, Rex Carter, Don E. Owen, Fort Worth, Tex., uncle of the bride and Wade L. Burleson, Birmingham, Ala. Jerry Wayne Thurman, McGhee, Ark., nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a beige embossed taffeta sheath with matching full length coat and bronze accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore an orchid wool sheath, with matching hat, complemented with white jewelry and black accessories.

A reception was held in the church parlor following the ceremony. An arrangement of gladioli centered the bride's table where Mrs. Verdrue Bird and Mrs. Ernie Johnson, aunts of the bride, served the cake and Mrs. Bob Terry of St. Louis, presided at the punch bowl. Miss Linda Ann Rogers had charge of the guest book at a table graced with a memory candle. Others assisting were Mrs. Doug Turner, Mrs. Roland Coates, Miss Betty Tillery, Miss Sheila Townley, Mrs. B. G. Smith and Mrs. Harold J. Smith. Rice bags were distributed by Miss Tris Owen, Fort Worth, cousin of the bride and Miss Debbie Turner.

The couple left for a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast and New Orleans, for the L.S.U. vs Tulane football game Saturday. For travel the bride wore a beige suit and coat with black pill box, black accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. Upon their return they will reside at 2206 South Grand. A graduate of Neville high school, Mrs. Thurman will graduate from Northeast Louisiana State College in January. She is a member of Sigma Kappa sorority.

Yule Decorations Shown Welcome Garden Club

A demonstration on Christmas decorations for the home highlighted the November meeting of the Welcome Garden Club held Monday afternoon in the Westminster Recreation Center.

Mrs. J. Howard Carroll introduced the guest lecturer, Van Alsup from Winnsboro. In his demonstration of Christmas decorations, Mr. Van Alsup used wreaths and garlands for the door and for the living room, Madonnas in crystal containers. One outstanding arrangement was a Madonna in a Brandy snifter and another one was combined with white carnations and gold cut leaves, which he suggested could be used for a church arrangement.

Another unique arrangement consisted of a Manzanita tree with silver leaves and the base of the tree in a pot, was surrounded with silver Christmas balls.

Mrs. V. S. Garnett concluded the program with a short business meeting. Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. J. Howard Carroll, Mrs. A. B. Smith, Mrs. D. C. Golson, Mrs. R. G. Taylor and Mrs. Oscar Harrell.

Rev. A. D. Becton of West Lake, La., performed the double ring ceremony following a program of wedding music by Miss Linda Callender, organist and Larry Kulcke, who sang "The Twelfth of Never," "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Large fan shaped arrangements of white and pumpkin colored gladioli in white pedestal jardeniers, flanked by white tapers in wrought iron candelabra against a background of fern and Southern smilax formed a setting for the exchange of vows.

Wearing a gown of white delustred satin the bride was escorted to the altar by her father, who gave her in marriage. The bodice, overlaid with Chantilly lace was designed with scalloped neckline and long sleeves tapering to points at the wrists. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion with scalloped hem was attached to a pillbox hat with seed pearls encircling the crown. She carried a yellow - throated white orchid, surrounded by stephanotis in a cascade design.

The church social room was scene of the reception which followed the ceremony. The reception table and guest book table were covered with floor length white satin covers. Bridesmaids bouquets in an arrangement flanked by white tapers in silver candelabra centered the punch table.

For a short wedding trip the bride changed into a two piece suit of green velvet with matching accessories and the corsage from her bouquet. They will establish a home at 3002 Cypress in West Monroe. And now begins the gayest season of the year, with parties and general merriment gathering momentum from Thanksgiving until New Year's. The week began with a reception Sunday afternoon at the Lotus club, given by the C. D. OAKLEYS, JACK ROGERS, and CLYDE BROWNS.

Club rooms have never looked lovelier than on this occasion, with the plenteousness of Thanksgiving season exemplified in lavish use of autumn flowers and foliage. Hammered brass containers holding tall magnolia branches stood at each side down the length of the foyer. At the end of the room was a brass bowl filled with dozens of chrysanthemums of various sizes in shades of yellow and brown.

A horizontal arrangement of yellow and bronze mums in a long brass container decorated the mantel in the library. The refreshment table in this room was covered with a white cutwork cloth and centered with a silver candelabra wreathed in green grapes and ivy. Bittersweet candles were used here, as throughout the reception suite . . . In the dining room, green grapes and ivy overflowed from a brass cornucopia which decorated the round refreshment table.

The square pillar which centers the club's main lounge was encircled with a round table draped to the floor with a green cloth. On each of the pillar's four sides was attached a magnolia branch, used as a sconce and decorated with a nosegay of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums and burning bittersweet candles. The buffet menu included smoked and Virginia hams, chicken salad sandwiches, devilled oysters in patty shells, a hot shrimp dip, roast beef with hot biscuits, and hot chicken livers.

Two small round tables, used at opposite sides of the room, offered a choice of cheese and a choice of tarts and miniature pies. Green grapes and ivy decorated the silver candelabra which centered the green covered table. Cheeses included Brie, Swiss, cheese with raisins, Bel paese, and others.

Music was provided by JERRY HODGE at the piano. Over two hundred guests called between five and seven in the evening, including MRS. JAMES R. EUBANK and MRS. LEE JARRELL of Alexandria.

No convention has even enjoyed a better party than that given last Friday night at the home of the GEORGE SNELLINGS, JR., for the Lousiana Federation of Women's Republican clubs. Guests included those attending the convention, members of the local Women's Republican club, and of those clubs in the immediate area. The living and dining rooms, which were cleared for dancing, were decorated with yellow chrysanthemums. A large basket of the blooms hung from the center of the living room ceiling, with more of the same flowers on the mantel. A mass arrangement in a brass basket was placed atop the secretary . . . Refreshments were served on the porch, where the table was centered with a pyramid of maroon chrysanthemums interspersed with pale pink camellias.

And speaking of the Snellings, there's big news in the family, with daughter NANCY participating in the debutante festivities in New Orleans this year. She was presented last night at "Le Debut des Jeunes Filles de la Nouvelle Orleans," official presentation at the Roosevelt.

The evening began with a reception from seven until nine, followed by a dinner for the girls and their parents. There was a ball from ten until two-thirty, with music by that debutant's favorite, Renee Louapre and his orchestra . . . Nancy had been presented at the Pickwick Club last week, and attended Debutante Night at the opera. The BREARD SNELLINGS entertained in her honor, and the JOSEPH JONESES are planning a party for next Sunday. On December 21, her parents will honor Nancy with a ball in New Orleans, and the RICHARD LEEMANS will be hosts at a brunch later in the holidays. It all sounds fabulous—and it couldn't happen to a nicer girl. Nancy is one who will love every bit of it.

Both the Revelers and Cotillion dance clubs had their fall dances this week, with small groups of members gathering at pre-dance parties in both cases. DEDE and LAMAR BUFFINGTON invited a few friends in before the Cotillion last Saturday night. Bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece on the dining table. Dede wore for her party, and the dance, a cocktail dress of peau de soie in periwinkle blue shading into deep purple.

Later the group moved on to the Paragon and the Cotillion's Harvest Moon dance. A large glittered moon and stars draped with moss hung over the bandstand, where Billy Williams and his orchestra played. Red candles and pyracantha berries decorated individual tables.

On Wednesday night, Thanksgiving Eve, BETTY and JIMMY MOORE entertained at open house preceeding the Revelers' dance. 'Twas delightful to find the open fire in the panelled family room — for the first time this year we've had the kind of weather that deserves an open fire. Betty greeted her guests wearing a cherry red chiffon dancing dress.

Several out of town visitors attended the Revelers dance at the Paragon. We saw ROSEMARY and RUDY BECKER from New Orleans, and BETTY and WALTER HASTINGS of Lake Charles . . . BILLIE and BOB SPRANKLE came from Baton Rouge. Billie was wearing a black dress styled with long sleeved blouse of wool jersey and bubble skirt of tiers of silk ruffles . . . SALLY CARMICHAEL, here from Jackson, Miss., with husband CHARLIE, looked divine in bright pink silk chiffon with giving, returning home Friday.

Wednesday afternoon, FRANCES TROUSDALE and ADRIENNE GASTON honored Cherry at a sherry party at the Trousdale home on Fairview. About twenty-five old friends were invited for a chat with the visitor. Sherry was served in the dining room, with chicken salad sandwiches, salted nuts, and tiny confections. The centerpiece of green ed in gold was worn with a matching three-quarter length jacket . . . Dance chairman EVELYN COLE chose holiday green chiffon with dyed-to-match satin cummerbund and shoes . . . With a print of shocking pink roses on a black background, DORIS STEPHENS wore matching pink satin shoes . . . Teardrops of jet were embroidered on BETSY FILES' white satin bodice, worn with straight black satin skirt . . . HELEN LEDBETTER's full skirted frock featured a floral print in muted beige-to-brown tones.

Guests in town from Atlanta, Georgia this week were CHERRY and FRED GULLEDGE and their children, who visited her parents, the MILLING BERNSTEINS. They were here over Thanks- full skirt and bodice in shades of pink sequins.

Simply styled with blouson bodice and slim skirt, JEANNE EASTMAN's dress was of an opulant material printed with gold lace design on a black background . . . . BARBARA RIVERS' chocolate brown brocad- grapes, avacados, lemons, and ivy in a footed container echoed the arrangement pictured in a still life painting over the buffet.

With school out all this week, there have been several parties for the younger set. On Tuesday LOUISE LEIGH was hostess at luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club, honoring her granddaughters LOUISE NORMANN and CONNIE FAUST, here visiting from New Orleans. Eighteen little ten-year-olds were seated at the table in the bay window. Fruit spilling from a horn of plenty centered the table, and place cards featured tiny Pilgrim figures. Tiny china favors, all different, were at each place: animal figures, miniature ash trays.

On Friday, CHRISTINE MOORE invited friends to a morning party honoring these visiting cousins. About twenty-five little girls attended the conversational hour in the Moore home.

Celebrating her eighth birthday, BETTY COLE had a skating party Monday. Prizes for games went to FRED CHURCH, SUE PIPES, and PAM McLELAND. Doughnuts and soft drinks were served to thirty-five guests from Betty's second grade class.

Our poem today is by Lyla Myers:

Do you get everything you want?
You don't? — Well, I'll declare
That's strange; I have the same complaint.
Perhaps it's not so rare.
The things we don't want come to us,
In bunches, every day;
But when we really like a thing,
It seems to stay away.
We hope and wish and pray and cry
And scheme and work and plan;
While our desires remain beyond
The reach of mortal man.
So, after years of fruitless hopes,
I think I'll cease to fret;
And when I don't get things I like —
I'll like the things I get!

No convention has even enjoyed a better party than that given last Friday night at the home of the GEORGE SNELLINGS, JR., for the Lousiana Federation of Women's Republican clubs. Guests included those attending the convention, members of the local Women's Republican club, and of those clubs in the immediate area. The living and dining rooms, which were cleared for dancing, were decorated with yellow chrysanthemums. A large basket of the blooms hung from the center of the living room ceiling, with more of the same flowers on the mantel. A mass arrangement in a brass basket was placed atop the secretary . . . Refreshments were served on the porch, where the table was centered with a pyramid of maroon chrysanthemums interspersed with pale pink camellias.

And speaking of the Snellings, there's big news in the family, with daughter NANCY participating in the debutante festivities in New Orleans this year. She was presented last night at "Le Debut des Jeunes Filles de la Nouvelle Orleans," official presentation at the Roosevelt.

The evening began with a reception from seven until nine, followed by a dinner for the girls and their parents. There was a ball from ten until two-thirty, with music by that debutant's favorite, Renee Louapre and his orchestra . . . Nancy had been presented at the Pickwick Club last week, and attended Debutante Night at the opera. The BREARD SNELLINGS entertained in her honor, and the JOSEPH JONESES are planning a party for next Sunday. On December 21, her parents will honor Nancy with a ball in New Orleans, and the RICHARD LEEMANS will be hosts at a brunch later in the holidays. It all sounds fabulous—and it couldn't happen to a nicer girl. Nancy is one who will love every bit of it.

Both the Revelers and Cotillion dance clubs had their fall dances this week, with small groups of members gathering at pre-dance parties in both cases. DEDE and LAMAR BUFFINGTON invited a few friends in before the Cotillion last Saturday night. Bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums formed the centerpiece on the dining table. Dede wore for her party, and the dance, a cocktail dress of peau de soie in periwinkle blue shading into deep purple.

Later the group moved on to the Paragon and the Cotillion's Harvest Moon dance. A large glittered moon and stars draped with moss hung over the bandstand, where Billy Williams and his orchestra played. Red candles and pyracantha berries decorated individual tables.

On Wednesday night, Thanksgiving Eve, BETTY and JIMMY MOORE entertained at open house preceeding the Revelers' dance. 'Twas delightful to find the open fire in the panelled family room — for the first time this year we've had the kind of weather that deserves an open fire. Betty greeted her guests wearing a cherry red chiffon dancing dress.

Several out of town visitors attended the Revelers dance at the Paragon. We saw ROSEMARY and RUDY BECKER from New Orleans, and BETTY and WALTER HASTINGS of Lake Charles . . . BILLIE and BOB SPRANKLE came from Baton Rouge. Billie was wearing a black dress styled with long sleeved blouse of wool jersey and bubble skirt of tiers of silk ruffles . . . SALLY CARMICHAEL, here from Jackson, Miss., with husband CHARLIE, looked divine in bright pink silk chiffon with giving, returning home Friday.

Wednesday afternoon, FRANCES TROUSDALE and ADRIENNE GASTON honored Cherry at a sherry party at the Trousdale home on Fairview. About twenty-five old friends were invited for a chat with the visitor. Sherry was served in the dining room, with chicken salad sandwiches, salted nuts, and tiny confections. The centerpiece of green ed in gold was worn with a matching three-quarter length jacket . . . Dance chairman EVELYN COLE chose holiday green chiffon with dyed-to-match satin cummerbund and shoes . . . With a print of shocking pink roses on a black background, DORIS STEPHENS wore matching pink satin shoes . . . Teardrops of jet were embroidered on BETSY FILES' white satin bodice, worn with straight black satin skirt . . . HELEN LEDBETTER's full skirted frock featured a floral print in muted beige-to-brown tones.

Guests in town from Atlanta, Georgia this week were CHERRY and FRED GULLEDGE and their children, who visited her parents, the MILLING BERNSTEINS. They were here over Thanksfull skirt and bodice in shades of pink sequins.

Simply styled with blouson bodice and slim skirt, JEANNE EASTMAN's dress was of an opulant material printed with gold lace design on a black background . . . . BARBARA RIVERS' chocolate brown brocadgrapes, avacados, lemons, and ivy in a footed container echoed the arrangement pictured in a still life painting over the buffet.

With school out all this week, there have been several parties for the younger set. On Tuesday LOUISE LEIGH was hostess at luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club, honoring her granddaughters LOUISE NORMANN and CONNIE FAUST, here visiting from New Orleans. Eighteen little ten-year-olds were seated at the table in the bay window. Fruit spilling from a horn of plenty centered the table, and place cards featured tiny Pilgrim figures. Tiny china favors, all different, were at each place: animal figures, miniature ashtrays.

On Friday, CHRISTINE MOORE invited friends to a morning party honoring these visiting cousins. About twenty-five little girls attended the conversational hour in the Moore home.

Celebrating her eighth birthday, BETTY COLE had a skating party Monday. Prizes for games went to FRED CHURCH, SUE PIPES, and PAM McLELAND. Doughnuts and soft drinks were served to thirty-five guests from Betty's second grade class.

Our poem today is by Lyla Myers:

Do you get everything you want?
You don't? — Well, I'll declare
That's strange; I have the same complaint.
Perhaps it's not so rare.
The things we don't want come to us,
In bunches, every day;
But when we really like a thing,
It seems to stay away.
We hope and wish and pray and cry
And scheme and work and plan;
While our desires remain beyond
The reach of mortal man.
So, after years of fruitless hopes,
I think I'll cease to fret;
And when I don't get things I like —
I'll like the things I get!

'War Lover' Coming Soon To Paramount

"The War Lover," a story of men in love and war and, especially, of a man who finds a special delight in the brutal business of destruction, arrives Sunday at the Paramount Theatre.

The Columbia Pictures release, based on Pulizer Prize winner John Hersey's best selling novel, was produced by Arthur Hornblow, Jr, and directed by Philip Leacock. Steve McQueen, Robert Wagner and Shirley Ann Field are starred in this vivid re - enactment of the air battles of World War II, and of the men who fought them.

CHARACTERIZATION

The depth of the characterizations and the conflicts of the male principals — two pilots, one who revels in war and killing and one who hates the war he is waging and is repelled by it — provide sharp counterpoint to the dramatic battle scenes, according to Hollywood.

The girl is torn between the two, in ways that are foreign to her own nature. The trio reportedly makes a powerful, daring wartime version of the so-called 'romantic' triangle. War, and what it does to people, is the villian here.

Steve McQueen plays the title role, that of Cap. "Buzz" Rickson, the hot pilot whose only love is war; if they figure at all in his life, then women are there to be conquered. Robert Wagner is effectively seen as the direct opposite to McQueen's brash and powerful portrayal of "The War Lover." Wagner plays "Bo" Bolland, Rickson's roommate and copilot who detests their job of destruction; he is a sensitive man who hates war but knows he must play his role in it.

LOVER

Shirley Anne Field plays Daphne, the English girl who falls in love with Bolland even while she is fascinated by the amoral Rickson who takes a special delight in death.

ROBERT WAGNER and Steve McQueen star in the "War Lover", the adventure of World War II B-17 missions and the girls the flyers left behind. The film opens Sunday at the Paramount Theater. It co-stars Shirley Ann Field.

Curtain Call

"Gigi," will open at Strauss Playhouse on Tuesday, December 4, and run through Sunday, December 9. In addition to nightly showings at 8:15 p.m., there will be a Sunday matinee at 2:30 p.m. for a total of seven performances.

The Tuesday opening was unavoidable on this occasion. We urge members to attend the mid-week performances if convenient, as this will help assure the even distribution of reservations we need in order to provide for all.

A bulletin is in the mail to members with the customary advance reservation form. Its prompt return is the best way to secure the date and seats of your choice for "Gigi." For reservation by phone (FAirfax 3-1235) or in person, the box office on Lamy Lane will open next Sunday, December 2, with hours from 1 p.m to 8 p.m daily through the run of the show.

TASK

The task of getting out a mailing to 2,300 members falls heavily on patron member Mrs. Ryder Gore, another diligent worker in behalf of Little Theatre. Aside from typing, printing and folding, a single run through the address plates takes several hours itself.

The authentic period sets for "Gigi" are fast nearing completion. Among the volunteers wielding needle, hammer or paintbrush are Jan Evans, Judy Evans, Wade Brisbin, Bobby Taylor and James West. Richard Clark and Ray Lucero have devised an unusual means of flying one of the sets with a double batten, while the other is mounted on the largest single wagon we have ever used.

ELVIS PRESLEY, in his newest movie "Girls! Girls! Girls!" sings 14 new song hits including "Return to Sender." The production depicts Elvis as a sea-going night club singer, with Stella Stevens as his torch-singing girl friend. The picture is now showing at the Jim Theatre.

Try - outs for "Hansel and Gretel" last Monday and Tuesday attracted a good many young people and their parents. The display of talent was not surprising because children have always demonstrated fine acting ability in our productions. Ray Lucero has some difficult choices in casting the title roles for this play.

AT TRYOUTS

Among the young people seen at try - outs were Brenda Bell, Diane, Mary, Bill and Randy Biegenwald, Zoe Brennen, Carol Lynn Brian, Karen and Lisa Dante, Deidre Fominaya, Susan Golson, Jon Hattaway, Bubbles Janes, Sissy Kotz, Susan Lary, Lala Loftin, Johnny and Gary Laffey, Vee Marshall, Susan Martin, Caroline and Marilyn Maxwell, Margaret Miles, Ann Murphy, Alana Oxford, Mimi Peat, Kathy Shaver, Alan Slakter and Betsy and Rick Taylor.

"Hansel and Gretel" will be presented December 26 - 30 in association with the Junior Charity League of Monroe. Not a membership play. It will be the subject of a later mailing with more details, but meanwhile plan to take your children to see it during the holidays.

T'e members of Cinema 63 who braved the elements on November 17 to see "Henry V," were rewarded by one of the most acclaimed films of all times. Faithful in language and plot to the original play, the picture escaped the confines of the Globe Theatre of Shakesperean times to take the audience to the French court and the battle of Agincourt in 1415.

FIRST OF EIGHT

This is but the first of eight outstanding films in the Cinema 63 series. The next will be "The Cruel Sea," on Tuesday, December 11, taken from the famous Nicholas Monsarrat novel about the Battle of the Atlantic. It is by no means too late to join in time to see this and six others of equal calibre at the modest cost of $5 for adults and $2.50 for full time college students for the entire series. You can either call Mrs. R. C. White Jr. at FAirfax 2-2137 or take out membership at the door on December 11.

Strauss Playhouse is an interesting challenge to the amateur photographer, as two of our patrons have discovered. Jack B. Tarver has taken some fine exterior shots in black and white, while Maurice Glazer has produced some splendid color photographs of the interior.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Clouds Lift For Popular Pianist

By JOHN CALE

The moist curtain of gray over most of Louisiana during the past week made it difficult for anyone to venture out and pursue live culture. We want to thank Bob Evans again for the column last week on the "Dream Operetta" of 1922. Some of the participants are still with us here in Monroe-West Monroe, and then as now, they like to read about what they did.

The Northeast Concert Association is carrying its membership campaign through an additional week. First attraction on its schedule of events is the musical, "Carnival," starrring Elaine Malbin. The presentation is slated for 8:15 December 10 at Neville auditorium.

Little Theatre's production of "Gigi" will open Tuesday, December 4, at Strauss Playhouse. We understand there's a children's play to follow sometime during the Christmas season.

LIVE AT TECH

Recording artist Roger Williams is the next billing on the Louisiana Tech series. The pianist and his ensemble will perform in Louisiana Tech's Memorial Gymnasium Tuesday of this week at 8 p.m.

Since his recording of "Autumn Leaves" started turning success his way in 1955 (has it been so long ago?), Williams has enjoyed steady employment on the concert stage. He uses a genuine American approach in his playing and purpose, so it's no wonder that he outlasted all the affectations of Liberace.

When asked to describe his musical aims, Williams expresses it something like this:

"For years, there has been a gulf between popular and classical music. I think it is more the result of tradition than desire on the part of the public. People who genuinely enjoy good music can appreciate the best in both the classics and jazz. I hope to build a bridge across that gulf."

The National Federation of Music Clubs, an organization which through its branches in cities throughout the United States has helped to forward American musicians more so than any other group, has posted its annual composers' competition and performers' auditions.

Judges for this year's composition contest include such names as Norman Dello Joio, Walter Piston, Vincent Persichetti, Bruce Benward and Herman Neuman. Manuscripts must be postmarked not later than midnight, April 1, 1963, so there's plenty of time for any composer in these parts to enter — if he has really serious aspirations.

The biennial student auditions for performers in piano, organ, voice, violin, cello and orchestral winds are slated at the state level in March. Age brackets range from 16-25.

Young artists' auditions have been scheduled at state level during late March, 1963. Categories include men and women vocalists, oratorio, piano and violin.

Further information on any of the above events may be obtained from Mrs. Blant Burford, Public Relations Department, 3 Barre Street, Charleston South Carolina, or locally from the Musical Coterie.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Timely Show Is Presented

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

Wednesday's program brought to T.V. and the Garden Center by Dr. John Wright, Tech horticulture professor, was quite timely.

Dr Wright used at least nine varieties of mums in making arrangements for Thanksgiving. These mums were exceptional in beauty and quality. These specimens were grown at Louisiana Tech. From the Handbook No. 2 National Chrysanthemum Society, Inc., U.S.A., Dr. Wright gave some valuable quotes in one of his recent articles on mums, as follows: "Before you plunge into the steps which will insure success with mums, please consider the history behind the flower which has whetted your gardening enthusiasm.

"The exact origin of mums is lost in antiquity, but some Luther Burbank of the Orient started the development of our modern mums by breeding species of plants within the chrysanthemum genus of the Composition family over 2,500 years ago.

SHOW FLOWER

"When the chrysanthemum reached America it was primarily a show flower, and it has remained a favorite flower for autumn exhibitions ever since. However, its potential as a garden plant for autumn landscape use was soon apparent.

"The development of exhibition types of mums has also continued throughout the world as well as in our U.S.A. At present the interests of the hardy garden mum advocates are ably represented by the 'All America Mum Selections'. This non-profit organization evaluates the many new mum seedlings produced each year by actual tests in gardens throughout the U.S. and selects the best of these varieties each year. The coveted AAMS seal on any variety you purchase is your guarantee of quality based upon impartial evaluation.

It is interesting to note further, "There are 15 distinct bloom forms which the mum enthusiast may grow, but they have only two growth patterns. The large bloom types are specific cultivars which are grown to produce from one to four large blooms per plant. All of the multi-bloom cultivars were developed for use as landscape or bedding plants.

"The large bloom cultivars are designated in the catalogs as 'Standards' 'exhibitions' 'commercials,' or 'disbuds.' The bush type plants are listed as 'hardy garden,' or 'greenhouse pom poms. The basic requirments and much of the culture are the same for all chrysanthemums. Good drainage is very important. Mums do not like to spend the winter with their roots in water. By following the recommendations for winter protection that are given in the 'Basic Mum Culture' section for your area, you should be able to protect any of the many cultivars you may wish to grow."

ARRANGEMENTS

We might say "Mum" is the word for Dr. Wright's program—but it is the mum that we like to talk about. In his first arrangement Dr. Wright used the large decorative mum (Criterian) which is a lavender - pink. It was used in a zig-zag fashion forming a vertical design in a light pink ceramic usabata container. The leaves of the mum formed the filler This would make you the envy of your friends if you had it in your home for the holidays — perhaps in the entrance hall.

A massed - oval design suitable for the church or a tea was created by Dr. Wright by using several types of mums—all of the same color, but different shades of lavender into purple. The container was a white compote. The mums used were "Criterian," "Personality," and dark rose (Humdinger).

A very striking design, a vertical, was created by the use of four large mums (decorative type) called "Thanksgiving Pink." These were placed in a modern compote container which was a deep purple color. The leaves of the mum formed the only filler for this lovely-long lasting arrangement.

Fugi mums (Maple Leaves) in tan gold combination or bronze formed a very outstanding exhibit in a large tan modern compote container. These have really been an "eye-catcher" in the center show. Those who stop to look will ask if they are real. These mums are at least 11 inches across. I measured them. They are spectacular.

For the Thanksgiving table, Dr. Wright made a massed arrangement using bright yellow, bronze and deep bronze-red mums for his table design.

The container was a clear glass vegetable bowl which he placed in a low basket woven tray. The mums used in this arrangement were the lemon yellow (Jack Straw), a feathered decorative mum; the yellow - gold spider mum (Duchess); red (Humdinger) decorative; and the yellow spoon. It was a lovely combination of colors that would grace any Thanksgiving table. When you see mums like these Dr. Wright brought and so artistically arranged, it really inspires you to be one of those who are willing to seek more knowledge about growing mums and devote more energy toward cultivating this wonderful project which is so worthwhile.

The next program will be brought to us by the Daffodil Garden Club of Wisner, of which Mrs. Charles I. Watson is the president. Another treat is in store for you, so be watching.

Light Needed By Plants In House Areas

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

If you have trouble growing house plants, the cause may be insufficient light. Plants require light as a source of energy, some more than others.

Fluorescent lamps used for varying periods are helping many flower growers who force plants indoors for later transplanting outdoors.

One of the newest fluorescent lamp developments spurs plant growth by concentration of the red and blue light waves of the spectrum that are used most efficiently by plant life. This provides concentrated light.

Growers of African violets, gloxinias and other popular decorative plants, and amateur hybridizers have reported considerable success with a new lamp (Gro-Lux) by Sylvania.

HYBRIDIZER Emanuel Dannett of Scarsdale, N.Y., examines luxuriant African violet grown in basement greenhouse under fluorescent lamps.

FOR ORCHIDS

The manufacturer reported that it was being used also in commercial raising of orchids and other flowers. In Alaska, a group was reported developing windowless greenhouses to produce salad crops without natural light. Shipping fresh foods by air conditioned air transport during the winter is costly to Alaskans.

A men's garden club in Illinois has reported growing prize flowers under the balanced light diet. In the Northwest, timbermen are using such fluorescent light to speed growth of seedlings needed in reforesting projects.

The fluorescent light also helps prevent diseases such as damping - off infections by inducing growth of sturdier stalks and stems, more fibrous root systems and fleshier, healthier leaves.

Increased seed germination of orchids, without presence of diseases common to this plant, also has been reported.

USE

Lamps should be used for 13 to 18 hours for long-day plants, and 10 to 13 hours for short-day plants. The latter include chrysanthemums, gardenias, Christmas begonia and poinsettias. Long - day plants include China asters, calceolaria, coreopsis, dahlias, nasturtiums and many other annuals grown for spring flowering.

Of course, proper temperature, watering and feeding are very important. The lighting is no substitute for this.

The lamp balances the red and blue light bands of radiant energy. The red light alone generally would cause plants to become tall and spindly. Blue light causes low, stocky growth. Red light stimulates vegetative growth and blue regulates the plant's respiratory system.

The Gro-Lux and similar fluorescent lamps also will stimulate aquatic plant growth in fish tanks.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

We camera fans are living in an age of photographic improvements. Cameras and equipment have been automated, mechanized and improved to a degree far removed from the simple box camera era that we started from. And, since each improvement is improved, the cycle is endless.

Then, every once in a while, someone breaks into these endless cycles and announces: "The latest improvement! We're back to the box camera ... it's so simple and inexpensive! No widgits, no gidgits, no extras!"

SLIDE PROJECTOR

Well, folks, that's what has happened in the 35mm slide projector field right now.

Do you realize the tremendous wizardry that has taken place in slide projectors these past few years? In the beginning we pushed the slides, one by one, into a simple machine.

Then came the first big improvement ... the single slides were herded into trays. Then the trays were mechanized. Then they were automated. Then came space - age wonders of remote control ... remote focusing and automatic progression, forwards or backwards, at selected intervals. The most recent wonder has been the addition of a magnetic sound track on each 35mm slide.

Of course, with each improvement the price of the projector was hiked a bit higher. Needless to say, at various stages of these improvements, the price soared out of reach for some slide fans.

So, to you displaced, side-tracked or priced-out-of-market, color slide hobbyists ... and to you beginners or youngsters who want to feel your way slowly in this rainbow world ... and to you independents who do not have to keep up with the slide projector Joneses, comes this announcement from Bausch & Lomb.

NEW

The Balmite 50 is a new, low-priced (under $15) slide projector that does for picture looking what the box camera did for picture taking. It is simple to operate and foolproof; you insert a slide in a viewing groove which runs through the center of the little machine. To change slides you insert another slide and it pushes the previous slide out.

Shaped like a long rectangular box with a lens, it is made out of a black, tough plastic and weighs only two pounds. It accepts 2 x 2 inch cardboard mounted slides of 35mm, Bantam (828) and Super-slides (1 5/8 x 1 5/8). The lens revolves for focusing and projects a 33 x 45 inch image from a 35mm slide from 10 feet away. When the lens is all the way forward, it is two feet from the image which measures five by eight inches. At this close-up position, it's sort of a projected hand viewer ... if the room is dark enough.

Book Shows Rose Beauty

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The work of a superb new rose painter, Mademoiselle Trechslin, has just appeared in this country in the form of a beautiful book called simply, "Roses," with text written by the well-known French rose specialist, Monsieur Bois, who created the Geneva rose garden.

Not since the time of the great flower painters like Redoute, painter to the Empress Josephine, and his contemporary, Pancrece Bessa, have we seen such paintings of roses. One can tell at first glance that Mlle Trechslin really loves roses. She likes them in every stage, from bud to full-blown ... perhaps even in their faded stages and it is evident that she has lived with them and knows how they change from hour to hour and from day to day.

SIZES

The 60 colored plates of the new book are nine by seven inches and are mounted on the eleven and a half by eight-inch pages. The plates begin with some of the ancestors of our garden roses and some of the oldest roses. The dog rose is first. Then come the damask, the musk and father Hugo's roses, and then, fittingly, La France, one of the very first hybrid teas.

Experienced rose growers will find amongst the rest of the plates many of their old favorites which are still appreciated and grown by the French. Frau Karl Druschi could not have been omitted from this volume by any responsible rosarian-artist team. Some of our senior rosarians will be pleasantly surprised and a bit nostalgic over Plate 8 which depicts sensitively the old red rose of 1914, Hadley. After these old-timers, the plates progress up through the years through the great roses like Etoile de Hollande 1919, Comtesse Vandal 1932, Peace 1942, and Queen Elizabeth 1956, to Romantica of 1962. Of course, many of the old roses are still widely grown and admired in France and in this country, because of their sterling qualities.

DESCRIPTION

The text of this new rose book comprises 128 pages in 14 chapters. History and symbolism, the uses and classification, the perfume and propagation of roses take up the first 46 pages. Then cultivation as practiced in France, the creation of new roses in the landscape and finally diseases and pests are discussed by this leader amongst the world rose specialists.

M. Bois is well known as an international rose judge in the great contests that take place in Europe every year. He explains, in a very interesting chapter, just how roses are brought to Geneva and grown and eventually judged there. He also lists the European rose societies, describes the Geneva garden and, like all good gardeners, provides a list of his best rose varieties.

This book was published by Thomas Nelson & Sons at $20. The color work was done in Zurich. There are a few errors, here and there, of no consequence, and one can tell that it is a translation from French.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Some Services Of Library Listed

BY FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

One of the services which the Ouachita Parish Public Library gives to its readers is the distribution of bookmarks called INSIDE BOOKS. These bookmarks are published each month and contain lists of approximately 10 each of the outstanding titles of fiction and non-fiction published that month. We purchase these bookmarks from R. R. Bowker Company in New York and we do not always have all of the books, but we do have a great many of them. Each month they send us an advance list stating what the Bookmark will contain.

The Bookmark for December is different from the ones for previous months. It is a summary of the outstanding books published during the year. When I looked at it, I was delighted to find that we had every fiction title on the list and many of the non - fiction titles. I thought you might be interested in checking the list to see just how many of the books you had read.

First Fiction: "Ship of Fools" by Katherine Ann Porter is a very graphic presentation of a group of travellers on a German ship bound from Mexico to Germany in the years preceding World War II. "The Reivers" is the latest and last book to be written by William Faulkner; "Youngblood Hawke" by Herman Wouk is a large book dealing with the career of a rough hewn American. Mr. Wouk is a born story teller and this is a book you will not forget. "The Thin Red Line" is the latest book by James Jones. It deals with the Guadalcanal campaign and is an unforgettable war story. "The Bull From The Sea" by Mary Renault has for its background a story from Greek mythology. "A Shade of Difference" by Allen Drury is the sequel to his "Advise and Consent." It is a powerful story that one can not forget, dealing with the politics of the United Nations.

"Letting Go" by Phillip Roth is a tough - minded commentary on the contemporary scene with which many readers can identify. "Fair Safe" by Burdick and Wheeler is the horrifying story of how a nuclear war could be started accidently. "Seven Days in May" by Fletcher Knebel is another story concerned with the government of the United States. This one deals with a conspiracy to take it over by a small group of the military men of the country.

Non-fiction also is interesting. "Silent Spring" by Rachel Carson is the account of how our water supply is being polluted and how it can lead to extinction of the bird population and eventually of man - kind. "The Rothschilds" by Frederick Morton is a fascinating account of the career of this group of international bankers. "Travels With Charley" by John Steinbeck is an account of a journey which he made to all parts of this country.

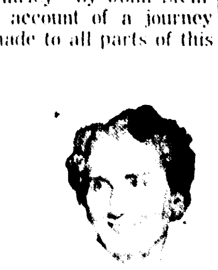
Use Plants For Cover



BY AUDREY H. DAWSON

I am sure you, Mrs. Gardener, have a problem area just as nearly every property owner has, such as those small left - over bits of ground area, too small to effectively use lawn grasses because of difficulty in mowing.

Our Specialist, Neil Odenwald, suggests you use ground covers which will also give ease in maintenance, but will give added interest to the landscape.

Take a look at your area such as strips of ground between sidewalks and drives, or walls, steep slopes associated with ditches, areas of dense shade where grasses will not form a good carpet.

Consider these plants as ground covers.

English Ivy is excellent and will grow in shade and partial sun; daylilies require sun, liriope will grow in sun and shade, ajuga requires a moist shady area, monkey grass will thrive in sun or shade; the Confederate Jasmine needs sun and partial shade; Santolina requires full sun and dry soil. So for those who need a ground cover for that problem area, there's one which will meet your need.

FIRE WOOD

Each year our Extension office receives calls regarding the chemical treatment of fire wood to give different colors of flame during the holidays. So, if some of you homemakers are ambitious and want to get your's ready, this month, here's some information from A. S. McKean, specialist in Forestry ... evergreen cones, small blocks of wood or kindling, wood chips and sawdust, or even one inch diameter rolls of tightly wrapped newspapers or magazines tied at both ends, soaked in chemical solutions and dried, will give off flames of various colors when they are burned in the fireplace to add to Christmas cheer.

The following chemicals will produce the colors indicated. Copper sulfate — green, calcium chloride — orange, copper chloride — blue, potassium chloride — purple. He suggests that you not use any of the chlorates, nitrates or potassium permanganate. Use rubber gloves and dissolve the chemical in a wooden pail or earthern crock since the chemicals will destroy the metal containers.

Use one pound of chemical to one gallon of water. The material should be left in the solution at least one day and then lifted out and allowed to dry on paper. Save the paper and burn it in the fireplace ... this will give color too.

McKean said that the treated materials should be burned only in well ventilated fireplace. So if you want color in the fireplace during the Christmas holidays, prepare your materials now before the last minute rush.

WINNERS

The members of the Progressive and McClendon Home Demonstration Clubs were the winners in the awards program for the year. The Progressive Club, under the leadership of Mrs. Roy Simmons, as president, placed first in the best club score and received a silver coffee and tea service from the Tyner Petrus Company. The club also won the best scrapbook award.

The McClendon Club scored highest in Council attendance and received $10 cash award from the Ouachita Valley Fair Association. Mrs. J. G. Haynes is president of this club.

A great big thanks from the members of 24 Home Demonstration Clubs to Mrs. L. J. Bower for a splendid job as president of the parish council for the past two years. It was a superb job, Pearl.

Holiday fashions for the young and gay include cottons as bright and festive as a Christmas tree spark. Jewel toned velveteens trimmed with white lace collar and cuffs share the spotlight with snowy white wide rib cotton ottomans and petit point piques embroidered in red or pastel floral designs. Big sister will attend the whirl of holiday social activities in low waisted shift dresses or jumpers of plush corduroy, cotton suede and elegant cotton failles. For a dress up touch, many shift jumpers are teamed with white organdy bowed blouses.

FROZEN FOODS

When frozen foods thaw in the home it is not always necessary to discard them. USDA Research Service scientists say if the temperature of the food has not risen above ordinary refrigerator level, it may be re-frozen without danger.

A THOUGHT

The ships that come in while we sit and wait are mostly hardships.

Stamp News

A new airmail stamp honoring the "Alianza Para El Progreso" (Alliance for Progress) will be issued in January, 1963 by Bolivia. The new 1,200 Bolivianos stamp, about 10 cents in U.S. value, will go on sale at that time to commemorate the famed concord among the nations of the Americas. When the design for the stamp was announced, special ceremonies were held in the presidential palace at La Paz. Attending the cermonies for the United States was Teodoro Mosocoso, U.S. coordinator for the Alliance.

Two stamp printing mistakes, usually a bonanza for the collector who buys the imperfect stamps, have turned up within a week of each other. At least two 200-stamp sheets — four 50-stamp panes — of the Dag Hammorskjold stamp issued Oct. 24 were printed with 4-cent designation in the upper right corner instead of the lower left. The stamp's yellow plate was inverted, moving the 4-cent designation and making the lower portion of the stamp white instead of yellow. After claims of possession of these stamps had been authenticated in Ohio and New Jersey, the Post Office Department decided to issue as many of the imperfect Hammarskjold stamps as collectors would want to buy.

The Thatcher Bridge stamps issued Oct. 12 in the Panama Canal Zone also contain a printing error — in four 50 - stamp panes, the new silver bridge which spans the canal was missing. Canal Zone Post Office officials thought they had destroyed all the imperfect stamps, but one pane of 50 was sent to Henry E. Harris of Boston. Harris wouldn't guess the stamps' value.

The last U.S. stamp printing error was in the first U.S. air mail issue in 1918. The blue center was inverted on one 100-stamp pane of the 24-cent stamps. One stamp from this 1918 issue recently brought $9,700 at auction.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: I have always been afraid to get up in a crowd and speak. My knees get weak and I can't say anything. I am constantly afraid someone will call upon me to pray or speak. My prayers in private come natural and easy, but I would be paralyzed if the minister asked me to lead in prayer.

ANSWER: The Bible says we all have different gifts. If speaking in public were one of your gifts, you would not fear it so much. Don't let this fear be a deterrent to your worship, however. Have a talk with your minister. I'm sure he will understand and never embarrass you. It is just possible that when the fear of being called upon is removed, that you may reach the point where you will want to express yourself publicly. And if you don't, just remember the best and most effective way to speak for God is to set a Christian example. The old saying, "What you are speaks louder than what you say." So, let your life speak eloquently for Christ.

Incidently you might be interested to know that I too get tense and nervous almost every time I'm called on to speak.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: I have always been afraid to get up in a crowd and speak. My knees get weak and I can't say anything. I am constantly afraid someone will call upon me to pray or speak. My prayers in private come natural and easy, but I would be paralyzed if the minister asked me to lead in prayer.

ANSWER: The Bible says we all have different gifts. If speaking in public were one of your gifts, you would not fear it so much. Don't let this fear be a deterrent to your worship, however. Have a talk with your minister. I'm sure he will understand and never embarrass you. It is just possible that when the fear of being called upon is removed, that you may reach the point where you will want to express yourself publicly. And if you don't, just remember the best and most effective way to speak for God is to set a Christian example.

The old saying, "What you are speaks louder than what you say." So, let your life speak eloquently for Christ.

Incidently you might be interested to know that I too get tense and nervous almost every time I'm called on to speak.

Light Needed By Plants In House Areas

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

If you have trouble growing house plants, the cause may be insufficient light. Plants require light as a source of energy, some more than others.

Fluorescent lamps used for varying periods are helping many flower growers who force plants indoors for later transplanting outdoors.

One of the newest fluorescent lamp developments spurs plant growth by concentration of the red and blue light waves of the spectrum that are used most efficiently by plant life. This provides concentrated light.

Growers of African violets, gloxinias and other popular decorative plants, and amateur hybridizers have reported considerable success with a new lamp (Gro-Lux, by Sylvania).

HYBRIDIZER Emanuel Dannett of Scarsdale, N.Y., examines luxuriant African violet grown in basement greenhouse under fluorescent lamps.

FOR ORCHIDS

The manufacturer reported that it was being used also in commercial raising of orchids and other flowers. In Alaska, a group was reported developing windowless greenhouses to produce salad crops without natural light. Shipping fresh foods by air-conditioned air transport during the winter is costly to Alaskans.

A men's garden club in Illinois has reported growing prize flowers under the balanced light diet. In the Northwest, timbermen are using such fluorescent light to speed growth of seedlings needed in reforesting projects.

The fluorescent light also helps prevent diseases such as damping - off infections by inducing growth of sturdier stalks and stems, more fibrous root systems and fleshier, healthier leaves.

Increased seed germination of orchids, without presence of diseases common to this plant, also has been reported.

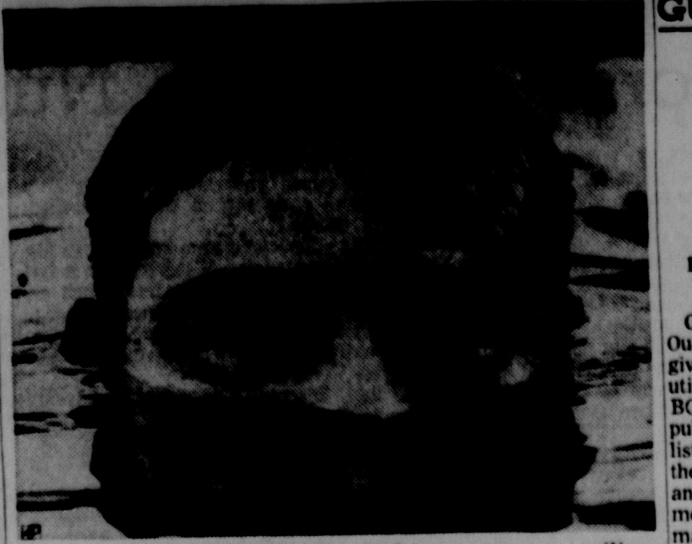
USE

Lamps should be used for 13 to 18 hours for long-day plants, and 10 to 13 hours for short-day plants. The latter include chrysanthemums, gardenias, Christmas begonia and poinsettias. Long - day plants include China asters, calceolaria, coreopsis, dahlias, nasturtiums and many other annuals grown for spring flowering.

Of course, proper temperature, watering and feeding are very important. The lighting is no substitute for this.

The lamp balances the red and blue light bands of radiant energy. The red light alone generally would cause plants to become tall and spindly. Blue light causes low, stocky growth. Red light stimulates vegetative growth and blue regulates the plant's respiratory system.

The Gro-Lux and similar fluorescent lamp fixtures also will stimulate aquatic plant growth in fish tanks.



IN OVER YOUR HEAD? Relax, come up smiling and start again. Sometimes it can prove to be a prize winner like this humorous closeup by Robert L. Davis of Lawrenceburg, Tenn. It won a $500 second prize in the 1962 Newspaper National Snapshot Awards.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

We camera fans are living in an age of photographic improvements. Cameras and equipment have been automated, mechanized and improved to a degree far removed from the simple box camera era that we started from. And, since each improvement is improved, the cycle is endless.

Then, every once in a while, someone breaks into these endless cycles and announces: "The latest improvement! We're back to the box camera . . . it's so simple and inexpensive! No widgits, no gidgits, no extras!"

SLIDE PROJECTOR

Well, folks, that's what has happened in the 35mm slide projector field right now.

Do you realize the tremendous wizardry that has taken place in slide projectors these past few years? In the beginning we pushed the slides, one by one, into a simple machine.

Then came the first big improvement: the single slides were herded into trays. Then the trays were mechanized. Then they were automated. Then came space - age wonders of remote control — remote focusing and automatic progression, forwards or backwards, at selected intervals. The most recent wonder has been the addition of a magnetic sound track on each 35mm slide.

Of course, with each improvement the price of the projector was hiked a bit higher. Needless to say, at various stages of these improvements, the price soared out of reach for some slide fans.

So, to you displaced, side-tracked or priced-out-of-market, color slide hobbyists . . . and to you beginners or youngsters who want to feel your way slowly in this rainbow world . . . and to you independents who do not have to keep up with the slide-projector Joneses, comes this announcement from Bausch & Lomb:

NEW

The Balmite 50 is a new, low-priced (under $15) slide projector that does for picture looking what the box camera did for picture taking. It is simple to operate and foolproof; you insert a slide in a viewing groove which runs through the center of the little machine. To change slides, you insert another slide and it pushes the previous slide out.

Shaped like a long rectangular box with a lens, it is made out of a black, tough plastic and weighs only two pounds. It accepts 2 x 2 inch cardboard mounted slides of 35mm, Bantam (828) and Super-slides (1 5/8 x 1 5/8). The lens revolves for focusing and projects a 33 x 45 inch image from a 35mm slide from 10 feet away. When the lens is all the way forward, it is two feet from the image which measures five by eight inches. At this close-up position, it's sort of a projected hand viewer . . . if the room is dark enough.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Book Shows Rose Beauty

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The work of a superb new rose painter, Mademoiselle Trechslin, has just appeared in this country in the form of a beautiful book called simply, "Roses," with text written by the well-known French rose specialist, Monsieur Bois, who created the Geneva rose garden.

Not since the time of the great flower painters like Redoute, painter to the Empress Josephine, and his contemporary, Pancrece Bessa, have we seen such paintings of roses. One can tell at first glance that Mlle. Trechslin really loves roses. She likes them in every stage, from bud to full-blown — perhaps even in their faded stages and it is evident that she has lived with them and knows how they change from hour to hour and from day to day.

SIZES

The 60 colored plates of the new book are nine by seven inches and are mounted on the eleven and a half by eight-inch pages. The plates begin with some of the ancestors of our garden roses and some of the oldest roses. The dog rose is first. Then come the damask, the musk and father Hugo's roses, and then, fittingly, La France, one of the very first hybrid teas.

Experienced rose growers will find amongst the rest of the plates many of their old favorites which are still appreciated and grown by the French. Frau Karl Druschi could not have been omitted from this volume by any responsible rosarian-artist team. Some of our senior rosarians will be pleasantly surprised and a bit nostalgic over Plate 8 which depicts sensitively the old red rose of 1914, Hadley. After these oldtimers, the plates progress up through the years through the great roses like Etoile de Hollande 1919, Comtesse Vandal 1932, Peace 1942, and Queen Elizabeth 1956, to Romantica of 1962. Of course, many of the old roses are still widely grown and admired in France and in this country, because of their sterling qualities.

DESCRIPTION

The text of this new rose book comprises 128 pages in 14 chapters. History and symbolism, the uses and classification, the perfume and propagation of roses take up the first 46 pages. Then cultivation as practiced in France, the creation of new roses in the landscape and finally diseases and pests are discussed by this leader amongst the world rose specialists.

M. Bois is well known as an international rose judge in the great contests that take place in Europe every year. He explains, in a very interesting chapter, just how roses are brought to Geneva and gown and eventually judged there. He also lists the European rose societies, describes the Geneva garden and, like all good gardeners, provides a list of his best rose varieties.

This book was published by Thomas Nelson & Sons at $20. The color work was done in Zurich. There are a few errors, here and there, of no consequence, and one can tell that it is a translation from French.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Some Services Of Library Listed

BY FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

One of the services which the Ouachita Parish Public Library gives to its readers is the distribution of bookmarks called INSIDE BOOKS. These bookmarks are published each month and contain lists of approximately 10 each of the outstanding titles of fiction and non-fiction published that month. We purchase these bookmarks from R. R. Bowker Company in New York and we do not always have all of the books, but we do have a great many of them. Each month they send us an advance list stating what the Bookmark will contain.

The Bookmark for December is different from the ones for previous months. It is a summary of the outstanding books published during the year. When I looked at it, I was delighted to find that we had every fiction title on the list and many of the non - fiction titles. I thought you might be interested in checking the list to see just how many of the books you had read.

First Fiction: "Ship of Fools" by Katherine Ann Porter is a very graphic presentation of a group of travellers on a German ship bound from Mexico to Germany in the years preceding World War II. "The Reivers" is the latest and last book to be written by William Faulkner; "Youngblood Hawke" by Herman Wouk is a large book dealing with the career of a rough hewn American. Mr. Wouk is a born story teller and this is a book you will not forget. "The Thin Red Line" is the latest book by James Jones. It deals with the Guadalcanal campaign and is an unforgettable war story. "The Bull From The Sea" by Mary Renault has for its background a story from Greek mythology. "A Shade of Difference" by Allen Drury is the sequel to his "Advise and Consent." It is a powerful story that one can not forget, dealing with the politics of the United Nations.

"Letting Go" by Phillip Roth is a tough - minded commentary on the contemporary scene with which many readers can identify. "Fair Safe" by Burdick and Wheeler is the horrifying story of how a nuclear war could be started accidently. "Seven Days in May" by Fletcher Knebel is another story concerned with the government of the United States. This one deals with a conspiracy to take it over by a small group of the military men of the country.

Non-fiction also is interesting. "Silent Spring" by Rachel Carson is the account of how our water supply is being polluted and how it can lead to extinction of the bird population and eventually of man - kind. "The Rothschilds" by Frederick Morton is a fascinating account of the career of this group of international bankers. "Travels With Charley" by John Steinbeck is an account of a journey which he made to all parts of this country.

Use Plants For Cover

BY AUDREY H. DAWSON

I am sure you, Mrs. Gardener, have a problem area just as nearly every property owner has, such as those small left - over bits of ground area, too small to effectively use lawn grasses because of difficulty in mowing.

Our Specialist, Neil Odenwald, suggests you use ground covers which will also give ease in maintenance, but will give added interest to the landscape.

Take a look at your area such as: strips of ground between sidewalks and drives, or walls; steep slopes associated with ditches; areas of dense shade where grasses will not form a good carpet.

Consider these plants as ground covers:

English Ivy is excellent and will grow in shade and partial sun; daylilies require sun; liriope will grow in sun and shade; ajuga requires a moist shady area; monkey grass will thrive in sun or shade; the Conferdate Jasmine needs sun and partial shade; Santolina requires full sun and dry soil. Sofor those who need a ground cover for that problem area, there's one which will meet your need.

FIRE WOOD

Each year our Extension office receives calls regarding the chemical treatment of fire wood to give different colors of flame during the holidays. So, if some of you homemakers are ambitious and want to get your's ready, this month, here's some information from A. S. McKean, specialist in Forestry — evergreen cones, small blocks of wood or kindling, wood chips and sawdust, or even one inch diameter rolls of tightly wrapped newspapers or magazines tied at both ends, soaked in chemical solutions and dried, will give off flames of various colors when they are burned in the fireplace to add to Christmas cheer.

The following chemicals will produce the colors indicated: Copper sulfate — green; calcium chloride — orange; copper chloride — blue; potassium chloride — purple. He suggests that you not use any of the chlorates, nitrates or potassium permanganate. Use rubber gloves and dissolve the chemical in a wooden pail or earthern crock since the chemicals will destroy the metal containers.

Use one pound of chemical to one gallon of water. The material should be left in the solution at least one day and then lifted out and allowed to dry on paper. Save the paper and burn it in the fireplace — this will give color too.

McKean said that the treated materials should be burned only in well ventilated fireplace. So if you want color in the fireplace during the Christmas holidays, prepare your materials now before the last minute rush.

WINNERS

The members of the Progressive and McClendon Home Demonstration Clubs were the winners in the awards program for the year. The Progressive Club, under the leadership of Mrs. Roy Simmons as president, placed first in the best club score and received a silver coffee and tea service from the Tyner Petrus Company. The club also won the best scrapbook award.

The McClendon Club scored highest in Council attendance and received $10 cash award from the Ouachita Valley Fair Association. Mrs. J. G. Haynes is president of this club.

A great big thanks from the members of 24 Home Demonstration Clubs to Mrs. L. J. Bower for a splendid job as president of the parish council for the past two years. It was a superb job, Pearl.

Holiday fashions for the young and gay include cottons as bright and festive as a Christmas tree spark. Jewel toned velveteens trimmed with white lace collar and cuffs share the spotlight with snowy white wide rib cotton ottomans and petit point piques embroidered in red or pastel floral designs. Big sister will attend the whirl of holiday social activities in low waisted shift dresses or jumpers of plush corduroy, cotton suede and elegant cotton failles. For a dress up touch, many shift jumpers are teamed with white organdy bowed blouses.

FROZEN FOODS

When frozen foods thaw in the home it is not always necessary to discard them. USDA Research Service scientists say if the temperature of the food has not risen above ordinary refrigerator level, it may be re - frozen without danger.

A THOUGHT

The ships that come in while we sit and wait are mostly hardships.

Stamp News

A new airmail stamp honoring the "Alianza Para El Progreso" (Alliance for Progress) will be issued in January, 1963 by Bolivia. The new 1,200 Bolivianos stamp, about 10 cents in U.S. value, will go on sale at that time to commemorate the famed concord among the nations of the Americas. When the design for the stamp was announced, special ceremonies were held in the presidential palace at La Paz. Attending the cermonies for the United States was Teodoro Mosocoso, U.S. coordinator for the Alliance.

Two stamp printing mistakes, usually a bonanza for the collector who buys the imperfect stamps, have turned up within a week of each other. At least two 200-stamp sheets — four 50-stamp panes — of the Dag Hammorskjold stamp issued Oct. 24 were printed with 4-cent designation in the upper right corner instead of the lower left. The stamp's yellow plate was inverted, moving the 4-cent designation and making the lower portion of the stamp white instead of yellow. After claims of possession of these stamps had been authenticated in Ohio and New Jersey, the Post Office Department decided to issue as many of the imperfect Hammarskjold stamps as collectors would want to buy.

The Thatcher Bridge stamps issued Oct. 12 in the Panama Canal Zone also contain a printing error — in four 50 - stamp panes, the new silver bridge which spans the canal was missing. Canal Zone Post Office officials thought they had destroyed all the imperfect stamps, but one pane of 50 was sent to Henry E. Harris of Boston. Harris wouldn't guess the stamps' value.

The last U.S. stamp printing error was in the first U.S. air mail issue in 1918. The blue center was inverted on one 100-stamp pane of the 24-cent stamps. One stamp from this 1918 issue recently brought $9,700 at auction.

Negotiators To Resume Nuclear Treaty Talks

GENEVA (UPI) — The chief American negotiator at the 17-nation disarmament conference flew to Geneva Saturday amid optimistic speculation the Indian and Cuban crises might have eased the path toward a nuclear test ban agreement.

Arthur H. Dean arrived to head the American delegation at Monday's resumption of the conference. He said on arrival the West is prepared to examine seriously any proposals the Soviets may make for breaking the deadlock on a test ban by scientific or other means.

U. S. sources said the West feels recent East-West tensions elsewhere may have made the path of the negotiations here easier.

While declining to speculate on the possibility of a test ban agreement by Christmas, they said the Cuban crisis and the Chinese invasion of India had undoubtedly helped underline the importance of some sort of quick agreement here.

The conference resumes in plenary session Monday after a two and half month recess which enabled the disarmament question to be discussed in the United Nations General Assembly in New York.

Discussion of a test ban treaty has gone on at the same time here but without result, largely because of Soviet refusal to accept some form of on-site inspection of suspected underground blasts.

Dean said Saturday the West is prepared to consider scientifically any Russian proposal for breaking the deadlock on this issue, singling out specifically the so-called "black box" idea, under which sealed mechanical devices would automatically check on suspicious disturbances.

But American sources said later the idea of black boxes "becomes more and more unappealing each time we consider it."

They pointed out there are dozens of ways in which such devices could be tampered with and said they felt there was no substitute for on-site inspection by neutral scientists.

Thant Hopes Katanga To Share Funds

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —U.N. Acting Secretary-General U Thant said Saturday he had unofficial and indirect word that the big mining company in the Congo's Katanga province was going to start paying revenues to the Congolese central government.

The company, called Union Miniere, has been paying all royalties and export duties on its copper and cobalt production to provincial President Moise Tshombe's secessionist Katanga regime.

Thant is pushing a plan to have Katanga share the funds 50-50 with Premier Cyrille Adoula's central government, which needs the money badly, and reenter the Congo under a federal constitution.

He made his statement in response to correspondents' questions. He said that how much money the company would pay to the central government was a subject for negotiation.

Thant also said he would meet here Monday with Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak. Spaak will arrive from Brussels for U.N. talks on the next steps to be taken to get Katanga back into the Congo.

Diplomatic sources first reported Friday that Thant expected Union Miniere to start paying part of the revenues to the Adoula government. They said U.S. Undersecretary of State George C. McGhee worked out that arrangement on visits last week to Brussels and London. Union Miniere is controlled mainly by Belgian and British interests.

Some diplomats said Saturday that these reports were premature. They said things were still in the talking stage and should become clear only when Spaak got here. But Thant's statement tended to confirm the story.

Since Thursday he has been calling in delegates on his 20-nation Congo advisory committee in small groups to brief them on his expectations.

Diplomatic informants said Friday he had told these delegates he was hopeful Tshombe would give up secession because he expected Union Miniere would start cooperating with the central government.

They also said he had dropped the idea of pressuring Tshombe by calling on U.N. members to ban purchases of Katangan copper and cobalt.

In announcing his Congo reunification plan last Aug. 20, Thant said he would issue such a call if Tshombe did not soon give a positive reply.

But he could never get Britain to back the boycott idea, even though the United States, Belgium and West Germany agreed to carry it out if Tshombe could not be brought around otherwise.

Authoritative sources reported Thant had received recent promises of 10 planes from Italy and Sweden to strengthen the air branch of the U.N. force in the Congo.

Negotiators To Resume Nuclear Treaty Talks

GENEVA (UPI) — The chief American negotiator at the 17-nation disarmament conference flew to Geneva Saturday amid optimistic speculation the Indian and Cuban crises might have eased the path toward a nuclear test ban agreement.

Arthur H. Dean arrived to head the American delegation at Monday's resumption of the conference. He said on arrival the West is prepared to examine seriously any proposals the Soviets may make for breaking the deadlock on a test ban by scientific or other means.

U. S. sources said the West feels recent East-West tensions elsewhere may have made the path of the negotiations here easier.

While declining to speculate on the possibility of a test ban agreement by Christmas, they said the Cuban crisis and the Chinese invasion of India had undoubtedly helped underline the importance of some sort of quick agreement here.

The conference resumes in plenary session Monday after a two and half month recess which enabled the disarmament question to be discussed in the United Nations General Assembly in New York.

Discussion of a test ban treaty has gone on at the same time here but without result, largely because of Soviet refusal to accept some form of on-site inspection of suspected underground blasts.

Dean said Saturday the West is prepared to consider scientifically any Russian proposal for breaking the deadlock on this issue, singling out specifically the so-called "black box" idea, under which sealed mechanical devices would automatically check on suspicious disturbances.

But American sources said later the idea of black boxes "becomes more and more unappealing each time we consider it."

They pointed out there are dozens of ways in which such devices could be tampered with and said they felt there was no substitute for on-site inspection by neutral scientists.

Thant Hopes Katanga To Share Funds

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —U.N. Acting Secretary-General U Thant said Saturday he had unofficial and indirect word that the big mining company in the Congo's Katanga province was going to start paying revenues to the Congolese central government.

The company, called Union Miniere, has been paying all royalties and export duties on its copper and cobalt production to provincial President Moise Tshombe's secessionist Katanga regime.

He made his statement in response to correspondents' questions. He said that how much money the company would pay to the central government was a subject for negotiation.

Thant also said he would meet here Monday with Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak Spaak will arrive from Brussels for U.N. talks on the next steps to be taken to get Katanga back into the Congo.

Diplomatic sources first reported Friday that Thant expected Union Miniere to start paying part of the revenues to the Adoula government. They said U.S. Undersecretary of State George C. LSU Whips Wave, Accepts Bowl Bid

FLEET-FOOTED Billy Moore (10), sensational Arkansas quarterback, gets away from a pair of would-be Texas Tech tacklers and goes for 13-yards in the game at Lubbock Saturday. End Charles Gladson (82) finally made the stop on Moore, who closed out his regular collegiate career by scoring three touchdowns and passing for two more as the Porkers routed Texas Tech 34-0. TRAMBLE TEXAS TECH

Moore Scores Three, Leads Hogs 34-0 Win

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Brilliant Billy Moore, winding up the regular season with 84 points, scored three touchdowns and passed for two more Saturday as the Arkansas Razorbacks warmed up for the Sugar Bowl with an easy 34-0 victory over Texas Tech.

Moore came within one-point of the 35-year-old scoring record set by George Cole, present assistant athletic director. The All-America nominee tried to break the mark with a two-point conversion in the fourth quarter. He was stopped short.

The Razorbacks scored the first time they held the ball with Moore flipping a 5-yard pass to wingback Stan Sparks. After that Moore scored twice on 1-yard plunges and once on a 4-yard jaunt, while completing a pass good for 30 yards to tailback Jesse Branch.

The Razorbacks, relaxed and unworried, never had their goal threatened with the Raiders only twice reaching Arkansas territory. Tech reached the Hog 41 late in the second quarter and the 48 early in the fourth quarter.

the Razorbacks to a school rushing record. The Hogs, needing 179 yards, piled up 247. At the same time, Arkansas held the Raiders to only 68 yards rushing to set another school mark.

Branch, Arkansas' third leading rusher, padded his total with 85 yards on nine carries to pace the Razorbacks, while fullback Danny Brabham had 46 on 13 carries and Moore, 42 on nine.

Arkansas drove 76 yards in eight plays for its first touchdown, all Coach Frank Broylers' team needed. Tom McKnelly kicked the first of his four successful attempts for extra points.

After that the Razorbacks went 40 yards to the Tech 15, where McKneely's field goal attempt was wise, his third miss of the season. But the 7-0 first quarter lead stood up and the Razorbacks added three touchdowns in the second period and closed it out with another in the last quarter.

SAYS BROYLES

Club Surpassed All Expectations

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Arkansas, performing for Sugar Bowl president Marshall J. David and selection committee chairman Monk Simon, gave the two officials something to gloat over as the Razorbacks toyed with Texas Tech 34-0, in the final game of the season Saturday.

David and Simon were among two of many well wishers going to the Arkansas dressing room after the game. They wished coach Frank Broyles, who ran his personal November winning streak to 18 games, well against the Sugar Bowl opponent.

Although no announcement is expected until Dec. 1, Arkansas is looking forward to playing Mississippi, defeated by Texas in the Cotton Bowl this year.

"We had everything working fine, Broyles said in the dressing room, "especially in the first half. We're going to take a couple of weeks off and then start to work. We're pretty tired right now."

The Arkansas coach praised the 1962 team as one of great desire and one "which exceeded all expectations. They've worked real hard all year. I've never been associated with a finer squad.

"We have a great leader in Billy Moore. He's truly an All-America in every sense. He inspires the entire squad to do better.

'Brabham? He made the adjustment to fullback better than we ever dreamed possible. He was the key to our success, because he gave us the threat up the middle that we lacked."

Danny Brabham had played as a tackle in his sophomore year, as guard in his junior season and was moved late in the summer to fullback. He wound up Saturday as the third leading rusher in the Southwest Conference, beaten out only by teammates Moore and tailback Jesse Branch.

"We weren't looking ahead to a bowl," Moore said. "We've just been playing them one at a time. I'm serious. Don't take a thing away from Tech. We just had things going our way."

Arkansas struck for the only touchdown it needed in the first three minutes and 18 seconds. After that, with the tide going its way, the players sat relaxed on the bench, laughed and generally had a good time.

Tech sophomore center C. C. Willis probably described the Razorbacks as well as anyone when he said after the game: "Arkansas has a good defense. I think Arkansas was better than Texas and Moore's as good a quarterback as we've seen all year. Their linemen are so fast you can hardly block them."

Rodgers Kicks Clemson Past South Carolina

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Rodney Rogers kicked the second of his two 24-yard field goals with 1:42 left Saturday giving Clemson a hard-won 20-17 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over arch-rival South Carolina.

Clemson had forged a 17-17 tie late in the third period on a 14-yard run by halfback Elmo Lam, who gathered in a pitch-out from quarterback Jim Parker.

The outmanned South Carolina Gamecocks, playing their first unit most of the way in this renewal of one of the South's oldest football rivalries, had a chance to play for a tie with time running out in the fourth, but elected to go for the victory.

With the ball on the Clemson 20, four straight passes failed, two of them barely missing in the end zone.

The Gamecocks were victims of Clemson's cruching ground attack run equally effective by alternate first and second units.

Francis Paces Buckeye's Win

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Fullback Dave Francis wound up his collegiate football career in star-spangled fashion Saturday as Ohio State overwhelmed Michigan 28-0 in a televised Big Ten Conference contest.

The Columbus-born senior who carried the ball only five times last year as All-America Bob Ferguson's understudy, outgained the entire Wilverine running and passing corps as he ate up 186 yards in 31 carries, scored two touchdowns and set up another.

The one he set up was on a 52-yard run on which he fell of utter exhaustion on the 6-yard line without a hand being put on him.

Reserve Rallies Stanford To Win Over California

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Reserve quarterback Clark Weaver rallied Stanford's Indians on four touchdown drives in the second half for a 30-13 triumph over Califonia Satuday in their traditional Big Game.

Weaver sat out the first two quarters as California grabbed a 13-3 lead. Then he directed the first scoring drive and threw touchdown passes to cap the next three.

The 30 points were the most for Stanford in one game this season and the Indians' highest total against California since 1930, when they scored 41.

Tigers Meet Texas 11 In Cotton Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Louisiana State University Saturday accepted an invitation to meet Texas, the Southwest Conference championship, in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Tex., on Jan. 1.

Athletic Director Jim Corbett announced LSU's acceptance after the Bengals, eighth-ranked in last week's Associated Press poll, defeated Tulane 38-3 to conclude an 8-1-1 season in Charlie McClendon's initial year as head coach.

The Tigers lost only to undefeated, untied Mississippi and played a 6-6 tie against Rice. Ironically, the only blot on Texas' 10-game record was a 6-6 tie against the same Rice Owls.

Charles Woolridge, president of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, extended the invitation to LSU following the Tulane game. Southeastern Conference teams are not allowed to accept bowl invitations until they end their regular seasons.

Texas won its place as host team for the Cotton Bowl with a 13-3 Thanksgiving Day victory over Texas A&M, which clinched the Southwest Conference title for Darrel Royal's Longhorns.

Earlier this season, LSU defeated Texas A&M 21-0. Other common foes included Texas Christian, which LSU defeated 5-0 and Texas beat 14-0, and Tulane, which Texas defeated 35-8.

LSU's acceptance marks the Tigers' fourth bowl appearance in the past five years. Their most recent bowl appearance was a 25-7 victory over Colorado in the 1962 Orange Bowl at Miami.

LSU's only previous Cotton Bowl appearance was in 1947, when the Bayou Bengals played a scoreless tie with Arkansas on a frozen turf. LSU's overall bowl record is 3-5-1.

Corbett said "it will be a privilege for our squad to represent its university and state in this great post-season classic. We are looking forward to this game with enthusiasm."

Woolridge said, "I am proud that we were able to secure a team of LSU's stature for our annual game. The previous acceptance by the University of Texas will insure a colorful and exciting contest Jan. 1."

Colorado Beats Air Force; Ends Worst Season

BOULDER, Colo (AP) — Colorado capped the worst season in its 72-year football history Saturday by whipping three-touchdown favorite Air Force 34-10.

Then William (Bud) Davis announced his resignation after coaching Colorado to a 2-8 record since taking over last March. The Buffaloes had not lost more than seven games in one season since 1890. The defeat gave Air Force a 5-5 record.

Terps Ramble Past Virginia In 40-18 Rout

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Maryland sophomores went on a scoring binge, featuring Ken Ambrusko's 58-yard touchdown run, before Virginia came to life Saturday and was suddenly snuffed out on a 100-yard intercepted pass return by Tom Brown in a 40-18 rout.

Virginia scored three touchdowns in the last quarter and was going for another when Brown went from goal to goal in closing out his Maryland football career with a flourish.

Maryland had scored in every way possible before Virginia, held to four first downs in three quarters, tallied three fast touchdowns.

Maryland fans were getting nervous then, recalling last year when Virginia knocked the Terps out of a bowl bid with a 28-16 upset in the season's finale.

The triumph saved a 6-4 season for Maryland. It was Virginia's fifth setback in nine games with one more to play.

Sophomore quarterback Jim Corcoran of Jersey City, N.J., threw two Maryland touchdown passes, one to Brown and another to Mike Funk, first-year varsity end from Harrisburg, Pa. Len Chiaverini, another sophomore fullback from Ambridge, Pa., scored the other Maryland touchdown in a brief appearance due to a sore leg.

Smash Tulane 38-3 On 2nd Half Effort

By BEN THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The passing and kicking of Lynn Amedee led Louisiana State to a 38-3 victory over old rival Tulane here Saturday. Immediately after the game, LSU accepted an invitation to meet Texas in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1.

Amedee, a 175-pound senior quarterback from Baton Rouge, who played the finest game of his college career, rifled two long touchdown passes and kicked a 31-yard field goal. He also kicked five conversions to account for 20 of LSU's 38 points.

The Tigers concluded their first season under head coach Charlie McClendon with an 8-1-1 record, making McClendon the most successful rookie coach of the year.

Tulane coach Tommy O'Boyle, also in his first season, wound up with 10 defeats as the Greenies' losing streak stretched to 11 — the longest current victory drought in the Southeastern Conference.

The Tigers, apparently caught unaware by a surprisingly volatile Tulane offense at the beginning of the game, trailed 3-0 at the end of the first period.

It was the first time the Greenies have been in front of LSU in the traditional rivalry since 1956. Tulane led LSU 6-0 at halftime that year, but the Tigers came from behind to win 7-6.

The Green Wave, taking the ball after Jerry Stovall's punt rolled dead on its 24, moved to the LSU 7 in 16 plays where Gordon Rush backed off and booted a 29-yard field goal.

But the Tigers moved in front 7-3 early in the second stanza as fullback Charles Cranford spurted over from the 5. The 66-yard march, which started just before the end of the first period, required nine plays.

Key gains of the thrust came on a 42-yard Amedee pass which was snared by Stovall. The pass put the Bengals on the Tulane 5 and Cranford scored on the next play.

A threat by LSU midway in the second period was broken up when Tulane's Al Burguieres, who was a standout on both offense and defense for the Greenies, intercepted a Jimmy Field pass on the Wave 15.

The Tigers tallied twice in the third period, with the first marker coming on a 60-yard drive in 9 plays. Halfback Bo Campbell capped the march with a 1-yard plunge. A 25-yard Amedee to Campbell pass and Cranford's 19-yard waltz gained most of the yardage.

Amedee fired a 50-yard pass to 6-foot-5 Bill Truax, a junior end from Gulfport, Miss. to give the eighth-ranked Bengals a 21-3 lead at the end of the third period.

Stovall, LSU's All-America and Heisman Trophy candidate, scored from the 2, Amedee kicked his field goal and fired 32 yards to Gene Sykes to wrap up the Tiger scoring in the final period.

Truax, helped give LSU its 1961 victory over Mississippi when he caught a 6-yard shoestring pass from Amedee, dragged Tulane's Oechsner into the end zone when he caught Amedee's long toss.

Stovall put his stamp on the march which he climaxed with his touchdown spurt. The Tigers, aided by a 15-yard clipping penalty against Tulane, needed only five plays to move the ball 60 yards. The elusive Stovall carried three times, gaining 22 yards.

LSU piled up 222 yards rushing, while Tulane amassed 103.

Amedee clicked on five of his nine tosses for 167 yards, while Chinese Bandit quarterback Dwight Robinson completed one 4-yard pass to give the Tigers 171 yards in the air.

Tulane only managed 42 yards passing, with Ted Miller hitting on two of four for 27.

Cranford was the game's top ground gainer with 68 yards in 13 carries, while Burguieres ground out 52 in 16 attempts for the Green Wave.

Stovall was the total offensive leader with 36 yards rushing and a 42-yard pass reception.

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI) — Quarterback Jerry Yost passed for one touchdown and score another as West Virginia upset heavily favored Syracuse, 17-6, Saturday to gain its best season record since 1955.

Glenn Bennett kicked a field goal and two conversions to put the game out of the reach of the Orange and give the Mountaineers their eighth victory in 10 games. Bennett booted his 26-yard field goal early in the first quarter, several minutes after the Orange had halted a West Virginia drive on the Syracuse

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Brilliant Billy Moore, winding up the regular season with 84 points, scored three touchdowns and passed for two more Saturday as the Arkansas Razorbacks warmed up for the Sugar Bowl with an easy 34-0 victory over Texas Tech.

Moore came within one-point of the 35-year-old scoring record set by George Cole, present assistant athletic director. The All-America nominee tried to break the mark with a two-point conversion in the fourth quarter. He was stopped short.

The Razorbacks scored the first time they held the ball with Moore flipping a 5-yard pass to wingback Stan Sparks. After that Moore scored twice on 1-yard plunges and once on a 4-yard jaunt, while completing a pass good for 30 yards to tailback Jesse Branch.

The Razorbacks, relaxed and unworried, never had their goal threatened with the Raiders only twice reaching Arkansas territory. Tech reached the Hog 41 late in the second quarter and the 48 early in the fourth quarter.

the Razorbacks to a school rushing record. The Hogs, needing 179 yards, piled up 247. At the same time, Arkansas held the Raiders to only 68 yards rushing to set another school mark.

Branch, Arkansas' third leading rusher, padded his total with 85 yards on nine carries to pace the Razorbacks, while fullback Danny Brabham had 46 on 13 carries and Moore, 42 on nine.

Arkansas drove 76 yards in eight plays for its first touchdown, all Coach Frank Broylers' team needed. Tom McKnelly kicked the first of his four successful attempts for extra points.

After that the Razorbacks went 40 yards to the Tech 15, where McKneely's field goal attempt was wise, his third miss of the season. But the 7-0 first quarter lead stood up and the Razorbacks added three touchdowns in the second period and closed it out with another in the last quarter.

SAYS BROYLES

Club Surpassed All Expectations

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Arkansas, performing for Sugar Bowl president Marshall J. David and selection committee chairman Monk Simon, gave the two officials something to gloat over as the Razorbacks toyed with Texas Tech, 34-0, in the final game of the season Saturday.

David and Simon were among two of many well wishers going to the Arkansas dressing room after the game. They wished coach Frank Broyles, who ran his personal November winning streak to 18 games, well against the Sugar Bowl opponent.

Although no announcement is expected until Dec. 1, Arkansas is looking forward to playing Mississippi, defeated by Texas in the Cotton Bowl this year.

"We had everything working fine, Broyles said in the dressing room, "especially in the first half. We're going to take a couple of weeks off and then start to work. We're pretty tired right now."

The Arkansas coach praised the 1962 team as one of great desire and one "which exceeded all expectations. They've worked real hard all year. I've never been associated with a finer squad.

"We have a great leader in Billy Moore. He's truly an All-America in every sense. He inspires the entire squad to do better.

'Brabham? He made the adjustment to fullback better than we ever dreamed possible. He was the key to our success, because he gave us the threat up the middle that we lacked."

Danny Brabham had played as a tackle in his sophomore year, as guard in his junior season and was moved late in the summer to fullback. He wound up Saturday as the third leading rusher in the Southwest Conference, beaten out only by teammates Moore and tailback Jesse Branch.

"We weren't looking ahead to a bowl," Moore said. "We've just been playing them one at a time. I'm serious. Don't take a thing away from Tech. We just had things going our way."

Arkansas struck for the only touchdown it needed in the first three minutes and 18 seconds. After that, with the tide going its way, the players sat relaxed on the bench, laughed and generally had a good time.

Tech sophomore center C. C. Willis probably described the Razorbacks as well as anyone when he said after the game: "Arkansas has a good defense. I think Arkansas was better than Texas and Moore's as good a quarterback as we've seen all year. Their linemen are so fast you can hardly block them."

Weaver sat out the first two quarters as California grabbed a 13-3 lead. Then he directed the first scoring drive and threw touchdown passes to cap the next three.

Tigers Meet Texas 11 In Cotton Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Louisiana State University Saturday accepted an invitation to meet Texas, the Southwest Conference championship, in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas, Tex., on Jan. 1.

Athletic Director Jim Corbett announced LSU's acceptance after the Bengals, eighth-ranked in last week's Associated Press poll, defeated Tulane 38-3 to conclude an 8-1-1 season in Charlie McClendon's initial year as head coach.

The Tigers lost only to undefeated, untied Mississippi and played a 6-6 tie against Rice. Ironically, the only blot on Texas' 10-game record was a 6-6 tie against the same Rice Owls.

Charles Woolridge, president of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, extended the invitation to LSU following the Tulane game. Southeastern Conference teams are not allowed to accept bowl invitations until they end their regular seasons.

Texas won its place as host team for the Cotton Bowl with a 13-3 Thanksgiving Day victory over Texas A&M, which clinched the Southwest Conference title for Darrel Royal's Longhorns.

Earlier this season, LSU defeated Texas A&M 21-0. Other common foes included Texas Christian, which LSU defeated 5-0 and Texas beat 14-0, and Tulane, which Texas defeated 35-8.

LSU's acceptance marks the Tigers' fourth bowl appearance in the past five years. Their most recent bowl appearance was a 25-7 victory over Colorado in the 1962 Orange Bowl at Miami.

LSU's only previous Cotton Bowl appearance was in 1947, when the Bayou Bengals played a scoreless tie with Arkansas on a frozen turf. LSU's overall bowl record is 3-5-1.

Corbett said "it will be a privilege for our squad to represent its university and state in this great post-season classic. We are looking forward to this game with enthusiasm."

Woolridge said, "I am proud that we were able to secure a team of LSU's stature for our annual game. The previous acceptance by the University of Texas will insure a colorful and exciting contest Jan. 1."

Colorado Beats Air Force; Ends Worst Season

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Coloraco capped the worst season in its 72-year football history Saturday by whipping three-touchdown favorite Air Force 34-10.

Sophomore Bill Symons sparkled in the victory by running for two touchdowns and contributing to another with a 79-yard kickoff return. He set up one of the scores by recovering Air Force quarterback Terry Isaacson's fumble on the Falcon 14.

The victory, Duke's eighth against two losses, gave the Blue Devils their third straight Atlantic Coast Conference championship and buoyed their hopes of a possible post-season bowl bid.

North Carolina, hoping to write a dramatic finish to a dedioere season, had shot out front 14-13 in the fourth period on an 8-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Junior Edge to end Bob Lacey. Dave Braine kicked the second of two extra points. The Tar Heels ended with a 3-7 season record.

Edge, who turned in a brilliant performance, threw a 24-yard touchdown pass to halfback Roger Smith in the second period to put the Tar Heels ahead, 7-3.

Reynolds booted two second period field goals, the first for 20 yards and the second for 40 yards only two seconds before the half.

Smash Tulane 38-3 On 2nd Half Effort

By BEN THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The passing and kicking of Lynn Amedee led Louisiana State to a 38-3 victory over old rival Tulane here Saturday. Immediately after the game, LSU accepted an invitation to meet Texas in the Cotton Bowl Jan. 1.

touchdown passes and kicked a 31-yard field goal. He also kicked five conversions to account for 20 of LSU's 38 points.

The Tigers concluded their first season under head coach Charlie McClendon with an 8-1-1 record, making McClendon the most successful rookie coach of the year.

Tulane coach Tommy O'Boyle, also in his first season, wound up with 10 defeats as the Greenies' losing streak stretched to 11 — the longest current victory drought in the Southeastern Conference.

The Tigers, apparently caught unaware by a surprisingly volatile Tulane offense at the beginning of the game, trailed 3-0 at the end of the first period.

It was the first time the Greenies have been in front of LSU in the traditional rivalry since 1956. Tulane led LSU 6-0 at halftime that year, but the Tigers came from behind to win 7-6.

The Green Wave, taking the ball after Jerry Stovall's punt rolled dead on its 24, moved to the LSU 7 in 16 plays where Gordon Rush backed off and booted a 29-yard field goal.

But the Tigers moved in front 7-3 early in the second stanza as fullback Charles Cranford spurted over from the 5. The 66-yard march, which started just before the end of the first period, required nine plays.

Key gains of the thrust came on a 42-yard Amedee pass which was snared by Stovall. The pass put the Bengals on the Tulane 5 and Cranford scored on the next play.

A threat by LSU midway in the second period was broken up when Tulane's Al Burguieres, who was a standout on both offense and defense for the Greenies, intercepted a Jimmy Field pass on the Wave 15.

The Tigers tallied twice in the third period, with the first marker coming on a 60-yard drive in 9 plays. Halfback Bo Campbell capped the march with a 1-yard plunge. A 25-yard Amedee to Campbell pass and Cranford's 19-yard waltz gained most of the yardage.

Amedee fired a 50-yard pass to 6-foot-5 Bill Truax, a junior end from Gulfport, Miss. to give the eighth-ranked Bengals a 21-3 lead at the end of the third period.

Stovall, LSU's All-America and Heisman Trophy candidate, scored from the 2, Amedee kicked his field goal and fired 32 yards to Gene Sykes to wrap up the Tiger scoring in the final period.

Truax, helped give LSU its 1961 victory over Mississippi when he caught a 6-yard shoestring pass from Amedee, dragged Tulane's Oechsner into the end zone when he caught Amedee's long toss.

Stovall put his stamp on the march which he climaxed with his touchdown spurt. The Tigers, aided by a 15-yard clipping penalty against Tulane, needed only five plays to move the ball 60 yards. The elusive Stovall carried three times, gaining 22 yards.

LSU piled up 222 yards rushing, while Tulane amassed 103.

Amedee clicked on five of his nine tosses for 167 yards, while Chinese Bandit quarterback Dwight Robinson completed one 4-yard pass to give the Tigers 171 yards in the air.

Tulane only managed 42 yards passing, with Ted Miller hitting on two of four for 27.

Cranford was the game's top ground gainer with 68 yards in 13 carries, while Burguieres ground out 52 in 16 attempts for the Green Wave.

Stovall was the total offensive leader with 36 yards rushing and a 42-yard pass reception.

Florida State Ties Auburn

By REX THOMAS

AUBURN, Ala. (AP)—Florida State spotted Auburn two touchdowns Saturday then came roaring back to cash in on an intercepted pass and a recovered punt to hold the favored Tigers to a 14-14 football deadlock.

Both Florida State touchdowns came on fourth down passes from little Eddie Feely.

Injuries hampered Auburn and forced Coach Ralph Jordan to field an almost all - sophomore team. But even with the lack of experience, the underclassmen performed like seasoned veterans for most of the game.

A second - year quarterback, Jimmy Sidle, sprinted 77 yards for one of the Tigers' scores and threw an 8-yard pass to halfback Tucker Frederickson, another sophomore, for the other six-pointer.

With many regulars on the bench, the Tigers still managed to put up a tough defense. Three times they stopped the Seminoles inside the 25 and took the ball on downs.

But on two other fourth down plays, the Tiger defense yielded, and Florida State scored both times.

Feely tossed 10 yards to halfback Jim Loftin for one touchdown and caught end John McConnaughay in the end zone with another of 3 yards.

Auburn mistakes gave the Seminoles both scoring chances. Fullback Dave Snyder intercepted Sidel's pass and ran it to the Tiger 13 to set up the first score. Then, with less than four minutes remaining in the fourth period, a Florida State punt brushed Frederickson and Seminole center Bruce Darsey downed it on Auburn's 6.

Sidel tried desperately to connect with long passes which might have put the Tigers in front again, but there wasn't enough time.

For the young Auburn quarterback, it was his biggest day. Pressed into fulltime duty by the absence of the injured Mailon Kent, he turned in 116 yards rushing and another 62 on his passes.

Edge Gophers 14-9 For Bid To Rose Bowl

By DAVE O'HARA

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Rose Bowl-bound Wisconsin captured the Big Ten Conference football championship by edging Minnesota 14-9 Saturday on an 80-yard touchdown march helped by two 15 yard penalties in the closing minutes.

The Badgers, ranked No. 3 in the nation, completed their finest season since 1912 by earning their eighth victory in nine games in dramatic fashion before a packed crowd of 65,514 at Camp Randall Stadium.

Wisconsin needs only formal Big Ten approval to represent the conference against Southern California, the nation's top-ranked power, in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The University of Wisconsin football team was named officially Saturday night as the Big Ten representative in the Rose Bowl game in Pasadena, Calif., on New Year's Day.

The announcement was made by Bill Reed, the Big Ten Commissioner, after a poll of six conference athletic directors. He said all six favored the Badgers, who took the conference title by defeating Minnesota 14-9 in the regular season finale here.

Reed said that as soon as the six had voted in favor of the Badgers he notified Wisconsin President Fred Harrington, who immediately accepted the invitation.

"We hope to provide the finest sort of representation," Harrington said. The trip will be the third to the Rose Bowl for the Badgers, who were defeated by west coast opponents in 1953 and 1960.

The Badgers capitalized on a 15-yard penalty for a personal foul on a play in wheih a Minnesota pass interception was nullified. The Gophers then were penalized another 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct because of words from the bench.

The two infractions against the Gophers gave Wisconsin a first down on the Minnesota 13. Lou Holland raced to the 9 and quarterback Ron VanderKelen skirted left end on an option play for a first down on the 2. Sophomore Ralph Kurek then hit right guard for a touchdown with only 1:37 left to play.

Penalties plagued the Badgers after the ensuing kickoff and the Gophers moved from their 45 to a first down on the Wisconsin 14 with 1:00 remaining. However, Jim Nettles ended the threat by picking off a Duane Blaska pass in the end zone.

The victory gave Wisconsin the Big Ten title with a 6-1 record against conference opponents. The heart-breaking setback left Minnesota with an over-all mark of 6-2-1, including 5-2 in league play.

The Gophers' stout defense held the nation's highest scoring machine in check most of the way but penalties ruined the tremendous effort.

Minnesota, which didn't allow Wisconsin to advance beyond the Badgers' 18 in the opening period, scored on Blaska's pass to Jim Carns on a play covering 15 yards at the outset of the second period.

Collin Versich's kick for the extra point sailed wide.

Trojans Blast Tough Bruins Late For Win

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California's undefeated and untied Trojans, the nation's No. 1 football team, crushed the amazing Bruins of UCLA with two touchdowns in the final period Saturday for a 14-3 victory that nailed down a Rose Bowl berth.

Thrown back in a desperate touchdown bid at the 1-yard line by the galant and underdog Bruins, the Trojans surged back with fullback Ben Wilson smashing the final 2 yards for the winning touchdown.

In the final few minutes of the game, quarterback Pete Beathard led Southern Cal 82 yards against the overmanned Bruins for the second touchdown.

It was the ninth straight victory in the finest season for the Trojans in 30 years and automatically cinched the Big Six Southern championship.

The victory ushered them to the Rose Bowl for the 13th time. Their Big Ten Conference opponent in the New Year's Day classic will be Wisconsin.

Executive Director Tom Hamilton of the Athletic Association of Western Universities, watching the game from the press box, issued the formal statement about the Trojans' berth in the Rose Bowl.

A crowd of 86,740, the largest to see a college game here since 1955, watched this annual renewal of crosstown rivalry in Memorial Coliseum.

For most of the game, it appeared that UCLA and its sophomore place-kicker, Larry Zeno, might pull off the totally unexpected.

The slender, 180-pound quarterback put UCLA ahead with 57 seconds left in the first half with a 35-yard field goal.

The field goal came after a march of 71 yards in 12 plays, 10 of them for short chunks of ground against the powerful Trojan defense.

When the drive was finally stopped on the 13, and UCLA was thrown back to the 18, Zeno kicked the three-pointer.

Dan Devine's Tigers, favored by one touchdown, got undisputed second place in the Big Eight Conference with the tie, the ninth in the 71-game border rivalry. Oklahoma won the conference championship.

Mizzou, with seven victories, one defeat and two ties was under consideration by the Bluebonnet Bowl.

The Tigers had a 5-1-1 record in the Big Eight while Kansas was fourth with 4-2-1 and 6-3-1 overall, same as last year.

Missouri's outstanding line was outplayed in the second quarter but dominated the third period, holding Kansas without a first down. A Kansas punt was returned to the Kansas 49 late in period. From there, the Tigers drove to the Kansas 4, stalled and Leistritz, a sophomore halfback from St. Louis, kicked his field goal with 12:16 left.

Brian Palmer, second - string quarterback, punted 40 yards to the Missouri 3, setting up the Kansas comeback. Missouri punted out to the Tiger 39. Palmer's passing and Armand Baughman's running moved the ball to the 4. Then after a delay penalty, Duff, a sophomore from Salina, Kan., kicked the tying field goal.

The yardage figures were almost as even as the score. Each club had 11 first downs. Kansas had an over-all 208 to 156 edge rushing and passing, wider because of some long Tiger losses trying to pass and killing the clock late in each half.

Gale Sayers, fleet Jayhawker sophomore halfback, outgained Johnny Roland, Tiger rookie, 72 yards to 34 but Sayers was held to only 15 yards in the second half. Sayers finished the season with 1,125 yards.

The Sun Bowl and National Trophy Bowl had expressed interest in the improving Tigers who ground out five touchdowns to outclass the Titans whose star quarterback Jerry Gross was held in check by a tenacious defense.

Gross, a 175-pound Mr. Everything for Detroit this season, was unable to ignite a scoring drive until the game was out of range late in the final period. Halfback Bob la Porte went over from the one and Gross ran for the two-point conversion.

A crowd of 9,622 watched the teams play their final game of the season. The win boosted the Tigers' 1962 scorecard to 8-1. The Titans finished with a dismal 1-9 slate.

Memphis State went almost the length of the field for its first touchdown, marching 96 yards in 13 plays. Vollmer, a versatile 180-pounder, rammed over from the one.

The Tigers broke the game open in the second stanza by rolling for three touchdowns, two of them coming within 80 seconds of one another. Dave Casinelli, a 205-pound battering ram fullback, bolted over from the one for the first score of the quarter. Then with machine gun rapidity, Vollmer pranced 18 yards around end and reserve quarterback Charles Alexander tossed a 30-yard strike to end Walt Heitzenrater for the decisive tallies that put the game out of range.

MEMPHIS (AP)—Rugged Memphis State voted against playing in the Sun Bowl football game Saturday after trampling Detroit 33-8 in a scramble that ended with a free-for-all.

Coach Billy Murphy said he left the bowl bid strictly up to the players and they decided against it. Any other bids received also would be put to a vote, he added.

The game, with Detroit outgunned and outmanned from the start, wound up in a kicking, fist-swinging brawl with helmets being flailed like Irish shillelaghs.

The battle royal, broken up by the coaching staffs, was rated a standoff. No one knew what started it. Apparently the lone casualty was a Memphis State "ball boy" who collected a broken nose.

Calhoun Downs Sterlington Five

STERLINGTON (Special) — Calhoun used the point scoring efforts of Paul Thompson and James Futrell here Saturday night to down Sterlington's Panthers, 68-57 with the Sterlington girls taking a 35-28 victory over Calhoun.

Thompson hit for 24-points and Futrell kept the net swinging with 23-points. Joe Pratt scored 18 for Sterlington and teammate Gerlad Corbin added 17-points to the Sterlington cause.

Charlotte Swayze and Jackie Dumas paced the winning girls by dumping in 13-points apiece. Charlotte Brownlee scored 22 points for the Calhoun girls.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bill Bridges' 40 points paced the stampeding Kansas City Steers to a 128-113 victory over the Chicago Majors in an American Basketball League game Saturday night.

Down 24 points late in the first half, the Majors used outside shooting and the 3-point basket to cut the margin to 110-106 with four minutes left.

Steer regulars who had gone to the bench, returned and Bridges and George Pruitt led a closing rush. Player-coach Ron Sobieszczy hit four of the bonus shots, three in the third period, and Kelly Coleman swished five of the extra pointers.

Fighting Irish Upset Iowa In 35-12 Rout

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Tiny Frank Minik scampered 19 yards for one touchdown and grabbed a 24-yard scoring pass from quarterback Daryle LaMonica Saturday as Notre Dame swept to its fourth successive football triumph 35-12 over Iowa's Hawkeyes.

LaMonica, who socred on a 27-yard run, and the 5-foot-7, 160-pound Minik broke up the game after Iowa trailed only 7-6 midway in the third quarter. They tallied two of Notre Dame's three touchdowns in a 22-point closing quarter.

This was Iowa's season finale and the Hawkeyes became the first Big Ten victim of Notre Dame. The Irish have been trimmed by four Big Ten contenders this season.

For the Hawkeyes, the loss marked their first losing campaign in seven years. Iowa finished with an over-all 4-5 mark, poorest since a 1955 finish of 3-5-1.

Notre Dame, which still has a game with top-ranked Southern California, again responded sharply to the brilliant quarterbacking of LaMonica, who completed 10 of 19 passes for 144 yards and bewildered Iowa with his keeper plays acounting for 85 yards in 10 carries.

The Irish continued their amazing bounceback after successive losses to Purdue, Wisconsin, Michigan State and Northwestern. Notre Dame moved into a inning pace at 5-4.

Beaty's Basket Wins For Hawks

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Zelmo Beaty's layup basket with 24 seconds left to play gave the St. Louis Hawks a 97-95 victory over the Boston Celtics in a National Basketball Association game before 10,612 Saturday night in a battle between the division leaders.

Twice the Celtics had close shots at the basket in the remaining seconds, but Bob Cousy and Bill Russell missed and St. Louis' Bob Pettit clutched the rebounds.

It was St. Louis' second straight victory over Boston here. There was no repeat of the shoving match which took place between Boston Coach Red Auerbach and fans two weeks ago, although eggs were thrown onto the floor by spectators four times during the game.

Mike Farmer's foul shot with a second to play followed Beaty's layup.

Pettit led all scorers with 36 points. Tom Sanders was high for Boston with 21.

Cox Leads Upset Over Tennessee

By LOWRY BOWMAN

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Little Darrell Cox, a stubby halfback who quit the Kentucky team once this year, scored a touchdown and set up two field goals Saturday to lead the outmanned Wildcats to a 12-10 upset of Tennessee.

Kicking specialist Clarkie Mayfield kicked the winning 19-yard field goal with 16 seconds left in the game after Cox had carried the Wildcats 80 yards down the field on his sturdy shoulders. It was Mayfield's second field goal of the game, and Cox made them both possible.

To make his day complete, the 5-foot-8, 172-pound junior from Miami broke up what looked like a winning Tennessee pass in the end zone as the game ended. The jubilant Kentucky squad, only 29 strong, carried both Coach Charlie Bradshaw and a battered beer barrel—the prize in the Tennessee-Kentucky series—off the field on its shoulders.

This was the sweetest one of all for the Wildcats from Lexington. They started the year with 44 players in Bradshaw's first year as coach and ended it with hardly enough left to make up a scrimmage.

Without Cox, it would have been Tennessee all the way. The Vols took a 3-0 lead in the first period on George Shuford's 25-yard field goal, but Cox brought Kentucky back after a run, grunt and punt second period and riped off long gains to put Mayfield in position to tie it up in the third period from 36 yards out.

The Wildcats, on quarterback Jerry Woolum's long passes, rolled back in the final period to the Tennessee 27 where Tennessee end John Hudson leaped high to intercept a Woolum pass and lumber 76 yards downfield. George Canale carried it over to give Tennessee a 10-3 margin.

Cox wouldn't quit. He took a Woolum pass with nine minutes left in the game for a 58-yard touchdown play that put Kentucky back in the game. The Wildcats tried for two points and failed. Tennessee led by a point and the crowd started filing out.

The little man cranked up his left arm and lobbed a southpaw aerial to halfback Gary Steward the next time Kentucky got the ball. He pushed it down to the three and stepped aside for Mayfield to kick the three-pointer and hand Bradshaw his third victory of the season.

HAHNVILLE, La. (AP) — A last minute interception by halfback John Crum saved Thibodaux' 7-6 victory over Hahnville Saturday night and put the winners into the state double-A playoffs against Crowley.

Crum snared the pass at his own 5 and returned to the 14 with just 20 seconds left.

The winning margin was Robert DeFelice's pass to Tony Naquin after Thibodaux' conversion kick was nullified by a 15-yard penalty. Ray Gaubart plunged one yard for the second period Thibodaux TD.

DEADLOCK, 14-14

By REX THOMAS

AUBURN, Ala. (AP)—Florida State spotted Auburn two touchdowns Saturday then came roaring back to cash in on an intercepted pass and a recovered punt to hold the favored Tigers to a 14-14 football deadlock.

Both Florida State touchdowns came on fourth down passes from little Eddie Feely.

Injuries hampered Auburn and forced Coach Ralph Jordan to field an almost all - sophomore team. But even with the lack of experience, the underclassmen performed like seasoned veterans for most of the game.

A second - year quarterback, Jimmy Sidle, sprinted 77 yards for one of the Tigers' scores and threw an 8-yard pass to halfback Tucker Frederickson, another sophomore, for the other six-pointer.

With many regulars on the bench, the Tigers still managed to put up a tough defense. Three times they stopped the Seminoles inside the 25 and took the ball on downs.

But on two other fourth down plays, the Tiger defense yielded, and Florida State scored both times.

Feely tossed 10 yards to halfback Jim Loftin for one touchdown and caught end John McConnaughay in the end zone with another of 3 yards.

Auburn mistakes gave the Seminoles both scoring chances. Fullback Dave Snyder intercepted Sidel's pass and ran it to the Tiger 13 to set up the first score. Then, with less than four minutes remaining in the fourth period, a Florida State punt brushed Frederickson and Seminole center Bruce Darsey downed it on Auburn's 6.

Sidel tried desperately to connect with long passes which might have put the Tigers in front again, but there wasn't enough time.

Bridges Scores 40 In Steers 128-113 Victory

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Bill Bridges' 40 points paced the stampeding Kansas City Steers to a 128-113 victory over the Chicago Majors in an American Basketball League game Saturday night.

Down 24 points late in the first half, the Majors used outside shooting and the 3-point basket to cut the margin to 110-106 with four minutes left.

Steer regulars who had gone to the bench, returned and Bridges and George Pruitt led a closing rush. Player-coach Ron Sobieszczy hit four of the bonus shots, three in the third period, and Kelly Coleman swished five of the extra pointers.

Beaty's Basket Wins For Hawks

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Zelmo Beaty's layup basket with 24 seconds left to play gave the St. Louis Hawks a 97-95 victory over the Boston Celtics in a National Basketball Association game before 10,612 Saturday night in a battle between the division leaders.

Twice the Celtics had close shots at the basket in the remaining seconds, but Bob Cousy and Bill Russell missed and St. Louis' Bob Pettit clutched the rebounds.

It was St. Louis' second straight victory over Boston here. There was no repeat of the shoving match which took place between Boston Coach Red Auerbach and fans two weeks ago, although eggs were thrown onto the floor by spectators four times during the game.

Mike Farmer's foul shot with a second to play followed Beaty's layup.

Pettit led all scorers with 36 points. Tom Sanders was high for Boston with 21.

Fighting Irish Upset Iowa In 35-12 Rout

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Tiny Frank Minik scampered 19 yards for one touchdown and grabbed a 24-yard scoring pass from quarterback Daryle LaMonica Saturday as Notre Dame swept to its fourth successive football triumph 35-12 over Iowa's Hawkeyes.

LaMonica, who socred on a 27-yard run, and the 5-foot-7, 160-pound Minik broke up the game after Iowa trailed only 7-6 midway in the third quarter. They tallied two of Notre Dame's three touchdowns in a 22-point closing quarter.

This was Iowa's season finale and the Hawkeyes became the first Big Ten victim of Notre Dame. The Irish have been trimmed by four Big Ten contenders this season.

For the Hawkeyes, the loss marked their first losing campaign in seven years. Iowa finished with an over-all 4-5 mark, poorest since a 1955 finish of 3-5-1.

Notre Dame, which still has a game with top-ranked Southern California, again responded sharply to the brilliant quarterbacking of LaMonica, who completed 10 of 19 passes for 144 yards and bewildered Iowa with his keeper plays acounting for 85 yards in 10 carries.

The Irish continued their amazing bounceback after successive losses to Purdue, Wisconsin, Michigan State and Northwestern. Notre Dame moved into a inning pace at 5-4.

Cox Leads Upset Over Tennessee

By LOWRY BOWMAN

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Little Darrell Cox, a stubby halfback who quit the Kentucky team once this year, scored a touchdown and set up two field goals Saturday to lead the outmanned Wildcats to a 12-10 upset of Tennessee.

Kicking specialist Clarkie Mayfield kicked the winning 19-yard field goal with 16 seconds left in the game after Cox had carried the Wildcats 80 yards down the field on his sturdy shoulders. It was Mayfield's second field goal of the game, and Cox made them both possible.

To make his day complete, the 5-foot-8, 172-pound junior from Miami broke up what looked like a winning Tennessee pass in the end zone as the game ended. The jubilant Kentucky squad, only 29 strong, carried both Coach Charlie Bradshaw and a battered beer barrel—the prize in the Tennessee-Kentucky series—off the field on its shoulders.

This was the sweetest one of all for the Wildcats from Lexington. They started the year with 44 players in Bradshaw's first year as coach and ended it with hardly enough left to make up a scrimmage.

Without Cox, it would have been Tennessee all the way. The Vols took a 3-0 lead in the first period on George Shuford's 25-yard field goal, but Cox brought Kentucky back after a run, grunt and punt second period and riped off long gains to put Mayfield in position to tie it up in the third period from 36 yards out.

The Wildcats, on quarterback Jerry Woolum's long passes, rolled back in the final period to the Tennessee 27 where Tennessee end John Hudson leaped high to intercept a Woolum pass and lumber 76 yards downfield. George Canale carried it over to give Tennessee a 10-3 margin.

Cox wouldn't quit. He took a Woolum pass with nine minutes left in the game for a 58-yard touchdown play that put Kentucky back in the game. The Wildcats tried for two points and failed. Tennessee led by a point and the crowd started filing out.

The little man cranked up his left arm and lobbed a southpaw aerial to halfback Gary Steward the next time Kentucky got the ball. He pushed it down to the three and stepped aside for Mayfield to kick the three-pointer and hand Bradshaw his third victory of the season.

Edge Gophers 14-9 For Bid To Rose Bowl

By DAVE O'HARA

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Rose Bowl-bound Wisconsin captured the Big Ten Conference football championship by edging Minnesota 14-9 Saturday on an 80-yard touchdown march helped by two 15-yard penalties in the closing minutes.

MADISON, Wis. (AP)— Statistics of the Minnesota-Wisconsin football game:

The Badgers, ranked No. 3 in the nation, completed their finest season since 1912 by earning their eighth victory in nine games in dramatic fashion before a packed crowd of 65,514 at Camp Randall Stadium.

Wisconsin needs only formal Big Ten approval to represent the conference against Southern California, the nation's top-ranked power, in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — The University of Wisconsin football team was named officially Saturday night as the Big Ten representative in the Rose Bowl game in Pasadena, Calif., on New Year's Day.

The announcement was made by Bill Reed, the Big Ten Commissioner, after a poll of six conference athletic directors. He said all six favored the Badgers, who took the conference title by defeating Minnesota 14-9 in the regular season finale here.

Reed said that as soon as the six had voted in favor of the Badgers he notified Wisconsin President Fred Harrington, who immediately accepted the invitation.

"We hope to provide the finest sort of representation," Harrington said. The trip will be the third to the Rose Bowl for the Badgers, who were defeated by west coast opponents in 1953 and 1960.

The Badgers capitalized on a 15-yard penalty for a personal foul on a play in whcih a Minnesota pass interception was nullified. The Gophers then were penalized another 15 yards for unsportsmanlike conduct because of words from the bench.

The two infractions against the Gophers gave Wisconsin a first down on the Minnesota 13. Lou Holland raced to the 9 and quarterback Ron VanderKelen skirted left end on an option play for a first down on the 2. Sophomore Ralph Kurek then hit right guard for a touchdown with only 1:37 left to play.

Penalties plagued the Badgers after the ensuing kickoff and the Gophers moved from their 45 to a first down on the Wisconsin 14 with 1:09 remaining. However, Jim Nettles ended the threat by picking off a Duane Blaska pass in the end zone.

The victory gave Wisconsin the Big Ten title with a 6-1 record against conference opponents. The heart-breaking setback left Minnesota with an over-all mark of 6-2-1, including 5-2 in league play.

The Gophers' stout defense held the nation's highest scoring machine in check most of the way but penalties ruined the tremendous effort.

Minnesota, which didn't allow Wisconsin to advance beyond the Badgers' 18 in the opening period, scored on Blaska's pass to Jim Cairns on a play covering 15 yards at the outset of the second period.

Collin Versich's kick for the extra point sailed wide.

HAHNVILLE, La. (AP) — A last minute interception by halfback John Crum saved Thibodaux' 7-6 victory over Hahnville Saturday night and put the winners into the state double-A playoffs against Crowley.

Crum snared the pass at his own 5 and returned to the 14 with just 20 seconds left.

Trojans Blast Tough Bruins Late For Win

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Southern California's undefeated and untied Trojans, the nation's No. 1 football team, crushed the amazing Bruins of UCLA with two touchdowns in the final period Saturday for a 14-3 victory that nailed down a Rose Bowl berth.

Thrown back in a desperate touchdown bid at the 1-yard line by the galant and underdog Bruins, the Trojans surged back with fullback Ben Wilson smashing the final 2 yards for the winning touchdown.

In the final few minutes of the game, quarterback Pete Beathard led Southern Cal 82 yards against the overmanned Bruins for the second touchdown.

It was the ninth straight victory in the finest season for the Trojans in 30 years and automatically cinched the Big Six Southern championship.

The victory ushered them to the Rose Bowl for the 13th time. Their Big Ten Conference opponent in the New Year's Day classic will be Wisconsin.

Executive Director Tom Hamilton of the Athletic Association of Western Universities, watching the game from the press box, issued the formal statement about the Trojans' berth in the Rose Bowl.

A crowd of 86,740, the largest to see a college game here since 1955, watched this annual renewal of crosstown rivalry in Memorial Coliseum.

For most of the game, it appeared that UCLA and its sophomore place-kicker, Larry Zeno, might pull off the totally unexpected.

The slender, 180-pound quarterback put UCLA ahead with 57 seconds left in the first half with a 35-yard field goal.

The field goal came after a march of 71 yards in 12 plays, 10 of them for short chunks of ground against the powerful Trojan defense.

When the drive was finally stopped on the 13, and UCLA was thrown back to the 18, Zeno kicked the three-pointer.

yard field goal for Missouri in the last period, then Gary Duff booted a 26-yarder for Kansas with 2½ minutes left.

Dan Devine's Tigers, favored by one touchdown, got undisputed second place in the Big Eight Conference with the tie, the ninth in the 71-game border rivalry. Oklahoma won the conference championship.

Mizzou, with seven victories, one defeat and two ties was under consideration by the Bluebonnet Bowl.

The Tigers had a 5-1-1 record in the Big Eight while Kansas was fourth with 4-2-1 and 6-3-1 over-all, same as last year.

Missouri's outstanding line was outplayed in the second quarter but dominated the third period, holding Kansas without a first down. A Kansas punt was returned to the Kansas 49 late in period. From there, the Tigers drove to the Kansas 4, stalled and Leistritz, a sophomore halfback from St. Louis, kicked his field goal with 12:10 left.

Brian Palmer, second - string quarterback, punted 49 yards to the Missouri 3, setting up the Kansas comeback. Missouri punted out to the Tiger 39. Palmer's passing and Armand Baughman's running moved the ball to the 4. Then after a delay penalty, Duff, a sophomore from Salina, Kan., kicked the tying field goal.

The yardage figures were almost as even as the score. Each club had 11 first downs. Kansas had an over-all 208 to 156 edge rushing and passing, wider because of some long Tiger losses trying to pass and killing the clock late in each half.

Gale Sayers, fleet Jayhawker sophomore halfback, outgained Johnny Roland, Tiger rookie, 72 yards to 34 but Sayers was held to only 15 yards in the second half. Sayers finished the season with 1,125 yards.

their seventh consecutive victory and a possible bowl invitation.

The Sun Bowl and National Trophy Bowl had expressed interest in the improving Tigers who ground out five touchdowns to outclass the Titans whose star quarterback Jerry Gross was held in check by a tenacious defense.

Gross, a 175-pound Mr. Everything for Detroit this season, was unable to ignite a scoring drive until the game was out of range late in the final period. Halfback Bob la Porte went over from the one and Gross ran for the two-point conversion.

A crowd of 9,022 watched the teams play their final game of the season. The win boosted the Tigers' 1962 scorecard to 8-1. The Titans finished with a dismal 1-9 slate.

Memphis State went almost the length of the field for its first touchdown, marching 96 yards in 13 plays. Vollmer, a versatile 180-pounder, rammed over from the one.

The Tigers broke the game open in the second stanza by rolling for three touchdowns, two of them coming within 80 seconds of one another. Dave Casinelli, a 205-pound battering ram fullback, bolted over from the one for the first score of the quarter. Then with machine gun rapidity, Vollmer pranced 18 yards around end and reserve quarterback Charles Alexander tossed a 30-yard strike to end Walt Heitzenrater for the decisive tallies that put the game out of range.

MEMPHIS (AP)—Rugged Memphis State voted against playing in the Sun Bowl football game Saturday after trampling Detroit 33-8 in a scramble that ended with a free-for-all.

Coach Billy Murphy said he left the bowl bid strictly up to the players and they decided against it. Any other bids received also would be put to a vote, he added.

The game, with Detroit outgunned and outmanned from the start, wound up in a kicking, fist-swinging brawl with helmets being flailed like Irish shillelaghs.

The battle royal, broken up by the coaching staffs, was rated a standoff. No one knew what started it. Apparently the lone casualty was a Memphis State "ball boy" who collected a broken nose.

Duck Season Opens Friday

With Sam Hanna

Duck Season Nears

While deer hunters raced off to the woods this week to bag a whitetail, Northeast Louisiana was wrapped up in ducks as the big flights moved South.

The weather was perfect — cold and rainy. But the season doesn't open until Friday.

Actually, there are more ducks in Louisiana now than in past years at this time, according to Dick Yance, the state's assistant wildlife director who keeps close tabs on the waterfowl picture.

Dick said earlier in the week that almost four million ducks have dropped ancher in Louisiana, but mostly smaller ducks and very few mallards.

That was the South Louisiana report, however, since this area got some mallards in. But that doesn't mean they'll be here when the season opens Friday. The season runs through Christmas Eve.

With only one mallard permitted for each daily bag limit this season, the big greenhead shouldn't count so heavily with local hunters as he's done in the past.

For the first time Louisiana hunters have a bonus, which will make up some for the disppointing one-mallard bag. That bonus comes in the form of two scaup, a picture of which appears with this column. Study it, because you might need it.

You can kill a mallard, plus another big duck, such as a greenwing teal or the like, and two scaup. Or you can kill four scaups.

Thus, the duck hunter who wants to remain within the law must be a closer observer of ducks. He'll have to know what he's shooting.

Hunters who know their ducks may not have such a bad season after all.

Shoot, Eat Coot

Northeast Louisiana duck hunters are snobbish by tradition, since Northeast Louisiana by tradition is mallard country. But that tradition may come to pass. The mallard is having a hard time of surviving.

But the duck hunters of this area may be passing up a good opportunity. We say "may" because we're not sure.

At any rate we read an article in a magazine not too long ago by a hunter who has spent years shooting coots — of all things. But he was convincing.

This is what Jack Denton Scott had to say, in summary, about coot hunting:

"They are great on the table; they offer the hunter a shooting challenge; they seem to be everywhere there is water; and they are constant—survival seems to suit them."

Scott goes on to quote the federal surveys that showed the coot coming back annually in greater numbers despite increased gun pressure.

For instance, he said that in the Mississippi Flyway, which includes Louisiana, hunters killed and retrieved 195,112 coots in the survey year of 1960-61—a 136 per cent increase over the previous year. The survey also showed that 60,907 were killed but not retrieved, an indication that hunters do not take the coot seriously.

"Thus," the survey said, "estimated kill is 96 per cent higher than the estimate for the 1959-60 hunting season."

Then Scott wrote, "Not so readily explained is the high coot count this year, which exceeded all counts for the past 13 years and for the first time topped the half-million mark."

So you're still snobbish about coots?

Sure, they're easily hit. But you must admit that they are not so easily killed. You've got to hit them where it hurts to count.

And if you're interested, Scott says he was guest for dinner at a friend's home and oh was the food wonderful. What was it? Coot no less.

Here's how he said it was cooked.

"Just the fileted breasts were used. They had been soaked in iced salt water for several hours, drained, rubbed with olive oil, sprinkled with salt and pepper and broiled fast, so that they came to the table on the rare, rather than the done side. They were superb."

In Louisiana, the coot season opens along with the duck season, November 30th, and runs through December 24th. The daily bag limit is two.

Try a coot. You may like it.

New Zoo Attractions

Because of the public interest in the vastly - improved Monroe zoo, we are starting today a weekly series of background information in this column on various attractions at the zoo.

This idea was suggested by zoo director Kit Beecher, who says he is getting an awful lot of questions from people going out to the zoo to see the attractions.,

One of the popular new animals at the zoo is the Orang Utan, now housed in one wing of the new apehouse.

Kit says the name Orang Utan comes from two Malayan words that mean "Wild Man," but he quickly points out that this does not mean the Orang Utan has a wild disposition.

"They are really quite shy and gentle," he explains.

The zoo has four specimens, all males. Two are medium size, about 65 pounds in weight and four years old. The other two are much smaller and younger.

"Monroe was very fortunate in obtaining these individuals for they are probably among the last few that will come into this country," Beecher said.

Orang Utans are become scarce in their native lands of Borneo and Sumatra where they are rigidly protected. However, Monroe hopes to locate a female so some young ones can be reared.

Kit says the Orang Utan spends almost his entire life in the trees, explaining that a 200-pounder can move faster through the trees than a man can on the ground.

They feed almost entirely on vegetation and fruit, but in captivity they eat like humans.

Little Man's Corner

The little men were in the woods making news afield.

Not far from Monroe on W. L. Coker's farm, Roy Johnson, hunting squirrels with W. L. Coker, followed their dogs to a tree, presumably with a squirrel hiding in it. But once there they found not a squirrel but a big bobcat. Johnson shot the 'cat out.

And near Hamburg, Ark., Thomas White of the Promised Land Community killed a 45-pound wolf.

On the Arkansas scene, in the area of Crossett, some 1,264 deer were killed in the first leg of the season this year. Last year a record was set with 712 bucks killed.

But this year an "any deer" season was held. Result—781 bucks, 483 does. Many small deer were killed, but some big ones too weighing in the neighborhood of 250 pounds.

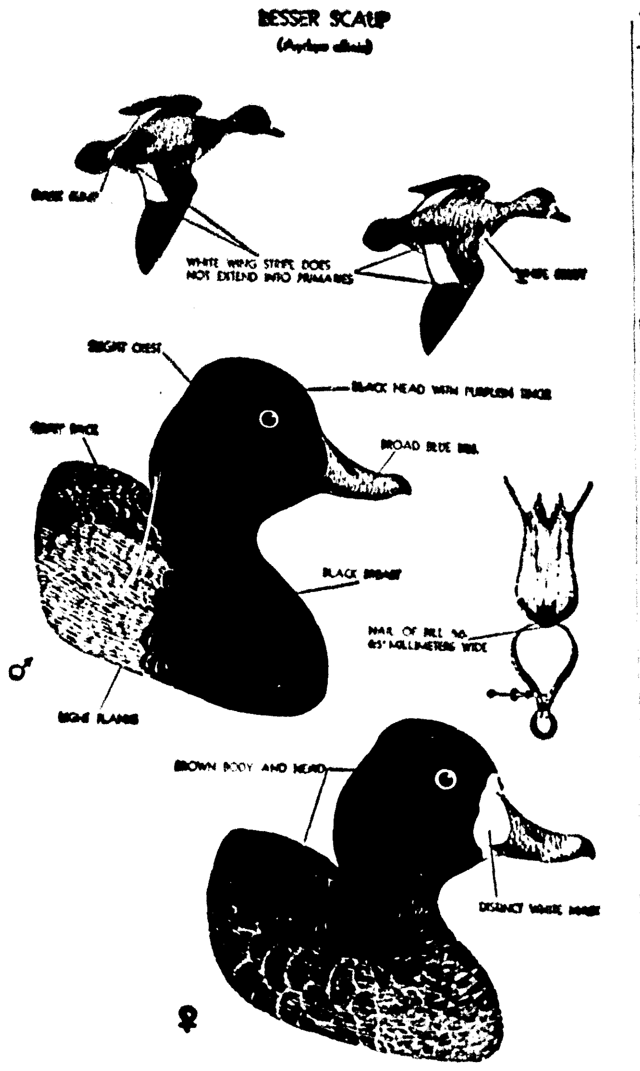
Bill Hall was in the woods north of Lake Providence before dawn Friday. At about 7:10 a.m. he killed a five-point buck and made it back to Lake Providence to open the store where he works, on time at 8 a.m.

Locally, the Ouachita Wildlife Unit will hold its last regular meeting of the year Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Virginia Hotel.

Besides the election of new officers for 1963, the club will present the annual Floyd Martin award to the Outstanding Sportsman of the Year.

In addition, Kit Beecher, zoo director for Monroe, will speak and feature an exhibition or two with animals from the zoo.

All sportsmen are invited to attend.



DUCK HUNTING BONUS this season, which opens November 30th, will be two scaup or a total of four scaup as pictured here. Duck hunters are urged to study their ducks so that they will know what to shoot. Only one mallard can be included in the daily bag, but hunters are permitted some good shooting on scaup. Study the scaup here so you will know your ducks.

Weaver Regains Lead In Carling

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) —Bert Weaver, who fired a course record 65 on opening day, put together a three-under-par 68 in Saturday's third round to move one stroke in front in the $10,000 Carling Open Golf Tournament.

The 20-year-old golfer from Edgewater Beach, Miss., had a three-round total of 206 heading into the final round of play Sunday.

Soft-spoken Bo Wininger of Odessa, Tex., who alternates between golfing and hunting, tied Weaver's two-day-old record for the Rio Pinar course Saturday with a 65 to move into second place at 207.

The leader after the second round, Ted Kroll, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., fired a steady par 71 to take third place at 208.

Bunched in a three-way tie at 209 were Rex Baxter Jr., Amarillo, Tex., Dow Finsterwald, Tequesta, Fla., and Paul Bondeson, Northbrook, Ill. One stroke back at 210 were Jay Hebert, Miami, and Don Fairfield, Perdido Bay, Fla.

The field was cut to 66 pros Saturday with 219 as the cutoff score. One of those failing to survive the cut was Ed Furgol who had 220.

The 66 pros and 10 amateurs will play the final 18 holes Sunday.

"I didn't hit the ball as good Saturday as I did the first day, but this was one of those putt days," Weaver said.

Weaver, who is shooting for his first PGA tour victory, carded six birdies, one bogey and one double-bogey. He one-putted eight greens and used 28 putts.

He scored his double-bogey on the fifth when he tried to cut a corner with his tee shot and got a bad lie. His second shot went into a trap and he failed to get out of it on his third shot. When he got on the green, he missed an eight-foot putt.

Oklahoma has one conference game remaining, against Oklahoma State next Saturday.

Two members of the Orange Bowl committee, Ben Benjamin and Jim Llewellyn, designated the Sooners as the choice for the Orange Bowl classic immediately after the Nebraska game. Alabama probably will be their opponent.

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma beat Nebraska 34-6 Saturday and earned its sixth trip to the Orange Bowl football game. Alabama is the first choice as an opponent for the Sooners.

Two members of the Orange Bowl committee watched the Sooners score their impressive triumph and immediately designated Oklahoma as their choice for the post-season classic in Miami, Fla., New Year's Day.

Under the Orange Bowl's contract with the Big Eight Conference, Oklahoma was obligated to accept the bid without consent of its players.

Oklahoma stunned the Cornhuskers, who were hoping to dump the Sooners and move into a tie for the conference lead, with a touchdown less than three minutes after the game got under way.

End John Flynn crashed through and blocked Nebraska's first punt attempt on the fifth play of the game and guard Newt Burton recovered on the Nebraska 1 - yard line. Jim Grisham scored for Oklahoma on the Sooners first play from scrimmage.

Deere hit end John Porterfield with a 21-yard floater late in the first half for his first touchdown heave and connected for two more in the third period—one to Porterfield and the other to end Allen Bumgardner.

The Sooner reserves added to the festive air, for the partisan fans, with a final touchdown with 26 seconds left to play.

Gibbs Pushes Horned Frogs By Rice Owls

HOUSTON (AP)—Sonny Gibbs scored two touchdowns and passed for two more Saturday as Texas Christian ran over Rice University 30-7 and nailed down third place in the Southwest Conference football standings.

The Horned Frogs still must play Southern Methodist but the victory combined with Baylor's upset of SMU assured TCU a third place finish behind Texas and Arkansas.

Gibbs, a 230-pound senior who had rather bad days against Rice his sophomore and junior years, scored on runs of 1 and 2 yards and passed 4 yards to Bill Bowers for another touchdown in the first 21 minutes of play.

This early rampage by the 6-foot-7 quarterback was good for a 20-0 lead and Rice, meanwhile running only eight plays, never recovered.

Gibbs completed his first eight passes and finished the day with 12 completions in 16 attempts for 117 yards.

Rice drove 65 yards for its lone touchdown in the second period with Randy Kerbow moving the final 5 yards on a keeper.

Oregon Topped By Oregon State

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Oregon State spotted Oregon a 17-6 half time lead, then rallied behind the brilliant quarterbacking of Terry Baker for a 20-17 victory Saturday.

Oregon State completed its season with six straight victories and a 8-2 record. Baker passed for two touchdowns both on fourth down—but fell short of the yardage needed for a one-season collegiate total offense mark.

He needed 242 yards in his final collegiate game, but made only 117 for [illegible] yards.

His 3-yard scoring pass to Vern Burke on the first play of the second period gave Burke a collegiate record for passes caught in a season.

Penn State Gets Bowl Invitation After 16-0 Win

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Penn State earned a Gator Bowl invitation today on record-breaking performance by quarterback Pete Liske who paced the Nittany Lions to a 16-0 victory over Pitt.

The Lions, champions of the Jacksonville classic last year with a 30-15 victory over Georgia Tech, will vote on a return trip Monday.

Should the Lions accept, it will be their fourth consecutive bowl appearance.

Liske shattered two Penn State records for total offense and passing yardage in a single season while leading the Lions to their ninth victory in 10 games.

Two of Liske's passes went for touchdowns—one a 56-yarder to Roger Kochman in the third period and the other went 18 yards to halfback Al Gursky in the final quarter. A 36-yard field goal in the second quarter by Ron Coates rounded out the victors' scoring.

Pitt, finishing with a 5-5 record, came through with a strong first half against their heavily favored intrastate rivals but wilted in the last two periods.

The Panthers started quickly, driving to the Lions' nine but halfback Bill Bodle fumbled on a third down play and Kochman recovered for State to end the threat midway in the opening quarter.

Woodson Leads Hoosiers In

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Marv Woodson, a brilliant Negro halfback from Mississippi, carried an intercepted pass 92 yards Saturday for a touchdown that gave Indiana a 12-7 upset victory over Purdue for the Old Oaken Bucket.

It was Indiana's first Big Ten Conference victory since 1959 and its first over Purdue since 1947.

The Hoosiers got their other six points on two field goals by Luke George, a 28-yarder in the first quarter and a 23-yarder in the second.

Purdue scored in the first eight minutes of the game, fullback Roy Walker going the last 10 yards in a 49-yard drive started by a pass interception. Skip Ohl, whose Big Ten one-game field goal record was tied by George, converted the extra point and the Boilermakers never scored again.

Don Trull Leads 17-13 Baylor Win

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS (AP)—Don Trull failed to break the Southwest Conference passing record but carried Baylor to a 17-13 football victory over Southern Methodist University Saturday by scoring one touchdown, passing for another and setting up a field goal with his aerials.

DALLAS (AP) — Statistics of the Baylor-Southern Methodist football game:

Passes	6-12	7-16
Passes intercepted by	2	1
Punts	4-41.0	5-47.8
Fumbles lost	1	2
Yards penalized	24	45

Trull needed 12 pass completions to break the conference record of 112 but he got only six in 11 attempts. However, Baylor didn't pass as it plowed through the thin Southern Methodist line.

Trull gained 37 yards in a 64-yard drive for a touchdown the first time Baylor had the ball. He made the score with a 2-yard blast.

Baylor got a field goal opening the second period with a Trull pass to James Rust for 14 yards setting it up. Carl Choate booted it from the SMU 31.

Southern Methodist scored late in the period after Martin Cude intercepted a Trull pass on the Baylor 35. Tom Sherwin scored the touchdown with a 17-yard run around end.

But Baylor got another touchdown as soon as it took the kickoff. Rolling 67 yards with a Trull pass to Ronnie Goodwin for 17 yards the big punch. Trull ran 11 yards to set the ball on the Southern Methodist 12 and from there he threw to Rust in the end zone for the touchdown.

Inspired Illinois Upsets Rugged Michigan State

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI)—Mike Taliaferro fired a 31-yard touchdown pass to Jim Warren in the second period and lowly but inspired Illinois hung on for a 7-6 upset over rugged Michigan State Saturday.

Illinois, winding up a dismal Big Ten season, flashed its spark of brilliance when Greg Schumacher fell on a Spartan punt on Michigan State's 31.

Taliaferro, playing what may have been his greatest game, lofted his pass to halfback Warren on the very next play. Warren took it on the 20 and wasn't even touched as he sprinted into the end zone.

Jim Plankenhorn kicked what proved to be the winning extra point.

Late in the second quarter, Michigan State drove 54 yards for its touchdown with left halfback Sherman Lewis slanting over from 3 yards out.

Duck Season Opens Friday

—With Sam Hanna

Duck Season Nears

While deer hunters raced off to the woods this week to bag a whitetail, Northeast Louisiana was wrapped up in ducks as the big flights moved South.

The weather was perfect — cold and rainy. But the season doesn't open until Friday.

Actually, there are more ducks in Louisiana now than in past years at this time, according to Dick Yance, the state's assistant wildlife director who keeps close tabs on the waterfowl picture.

Dick said earlier in the week that almost four million ducks have dropped anchor in Louisiana, but mostly smaller ducks and very few mallards.

That was the South Louisiana report, however, since this area got some mallards in. But that doesn't mean they'll be here when the season opens Friday. The season runs through Christmas Eve.

With only one mallard permitted for each daily bag limit this season, the big green-head shouldn't count so heavily with local hunters as he's done in the past.

For the first time Louisiana hunters have a bonus, which will make up some for the disppointing one-mallard bag. That bonus comes in the form of two scaup, a picture of which appears with this column. Study it, because you might need it.

You can kill a mallard, plus another big duck, such as a greenwing teal or the like, and two scaup. Or you can kill four scaups.

Thus, the duck hunter who wants to remain within the law must be a closer observer of ducks. He'll have to know what he's shooting.

Hunters who know their ducks may not have such a bad season after all.

Shoot, Eat Coot

Northeast Louisiana duck hunters are snobbish by tradition, since Northeast Louisiana by tradition is mallard country. But that tradition may come to pass. The mallard is having a hard time of surviving.

But the duck hunters of this area may be passing up a good opportunity. We say "may" because we're not sure.

At any rate we read an article in a magazine not too long ago by a hunter who has spent years shooting coots — of all things. But he was convincing.

This is what Jack Denton Scott had to say, in summary, about coot hunting:

"They are great on the table; they offer the hunter a shooting challenge; they seem to be everywhere there is water; and they are constant—survival seems to suit them."

Scott goes on to quote the federal surveys that showed the coot coming back annually in greater numbers despite increased gun pressure.

For instance, he said that in the Mississippi Flyway, which includes Louisiana, hunters killed and retrieved 195,112 coots in the survey year of 1960-61—a 136 per cent increase over the previous year. The survey also showed that 60,907 were killed but not retrieved, an indication that hunters do not take the coot seriously.

"Thus," the survey said, "estimated kill is 96 per cent higher than the estimate for the 1959-60 hunting season."

Then Scott wrote, "Not so readily explained is the high coot count this year, which exceeded all counts for the past 13 years and for the first time topped the half-million mark."

So you're still snobbish about coots?

Sure, they're easily hit. But you must admit that they are not so easily killed. You've got to hit them where it hurts to count.

And if you're interested, Scott says he was guest for dinner at a friend's home and oh was the food wonderful. What was it? Coot no less.

Here's how he said it was cooked.

"Just the fileted breasts were used. They had been soaked in iced salt water for several hours, drained, rubbed with olive oil, sprinkled with salt and pepper and broiled fast, so that they came to the table on the rare, rather than the done side. They were superb."

In Louisiana, the coot season opens along with the duck season, November 30th, and runs through December 24th. The daily bag limit is two.

Try a coot. You may like it.

New Zoo Attractions

Because of the public interest in the vastly - improved Monroe zoo, we are starting today a weekly series of background information in this column on various attractions at the zoo.

This idea was suggested by zoo director Kit Beecher, who says he is getting an awful lot of questions from people going out to the zoo to see the attractions.

One of the popular new animals at the zoo is the Orang Utan, now housed in one wing of the new apehouse.

Kit says the name Orang Utan comes from two Malayan words that mean "Wild Man," but he quickly points out that this does not mean the Orang Utan has a wild disposition.

"They are really quite shy and gentle," he explains.

The zoo has four specimens, all males. Two are medium size, about 65 pounds in weight and four years old. The other two are much smaller and younger.

"Monroe was very fortunate in obtaining these individuals for they are probably among the last few that will come into this country," Beecher said.

Orang Utans are become scarce in their native lands of Borneo and Sumatra where they are rigidly protected. However, Monroe hopes to locate a female so some young ones can be reared.

Kit says the Orang Utan spends almost his entire life in the trees, explaining that a 200-pounder can move faster through the trees than a man can on the ground.

They feed almost entirely on vegetation and fruit, but in captivity they eat like humans.

Little Man's Corner

The little men were in the woods making news afield.

Not far from Monroe on W. L. Coker's farm, Roy Johnson, hunting squirrels with W. L. Coker, followed their dogs to a tree, presumbably with a squirrel hiding in it. But once there they found not a squirrel but a big bobcat. Johnson shot the 'cat out.

And near Hamburg, Ark., Thomas White of the Promised Land Community killed a 45-pound wolf.

On the Arkansas scene, in the area of Crossett, some 1,264 deer were killed in the first leg of the season this year. Last year a record was set with 712 bucks killed.

But this year an "any deer" season was held. Result—781 bucks, 483 does. Many small deer were killed, but some big ones too weighing in the neighborhood of 250 pounds.

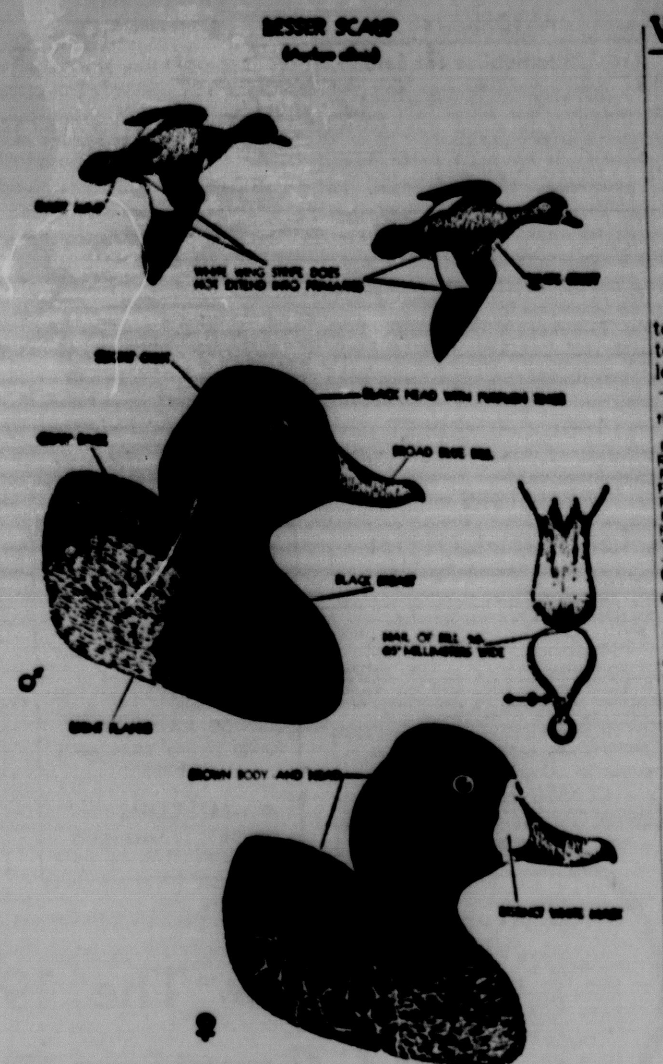
Bill Hall was in the woods north of Lake Providence before dawn Friday. At about 7:10 a.m. he killed a five-point buck and made it back to Lake Providence to open the store where he works, on time at 8 a.m.

Locally, the Ouachita Wildlife Unit will hold its last regular meeting of the year Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Virginia Hotel.

Besides the election of new officers for 1963, the club will present the annual Floyd Martin award to the Outstanding Sportsman of the Year.

In addition, Kit Beecher, zoo director for Monroe, will speak and feature an exhibition or two with animals from the zoo.

All sportsmen are invited to attend.



DUCK HUNTING BONUS this season, which opens November 30th, will be two scaup or a total of four scaup as pictured here. Duck hunters are urged to study their ducks so that they will know what to shoot. Only one mallard can be included in the daily bag, but hunters are permitted some good shooting on scaup. Study the scaup here so you will know your ducks.

Gibbs Pushes Horned Frogs By Rice Owls

HOUSTON (AP)—Sonny Gibbs scored two touchdowns and passed for two more Saturday as Texas Christian ran over Rice University 30-7 and nailed down third place in the Southwest Conference football standings.

The Horned Frogs still must play Southern Methodist but the victory combined with Baylor's upset of SMU assured TCU a third place finish behind Texas and Arkansas.

Gibbs, a 230-pound senior who had rather bad days against Rice his sophomore and junior years, scored on runs of 1 and 2 yards and passed 4 yards to Bill Bowers for another touchdown in the first 21 minutes of play.

This early rampage by the 6-foot-7 quarterback was good for a 20-0 lead and Rice, meanwhile running only eight plays, never recovered.

Gibbs completed his first eight passes and finished the day with 12 completions in 16 attempts for 117 yards.

Rice drove 65 yards for its lone touchdown in the second period with Randy Kerbow moving the final 5 yards on a keeper.

Don Trull Leads 17-13 Baylor Win

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS (AP)—Don Trull failed to break the Southwest Conference passing record but carried Baylor to a 17-13 football victory over Southern Methodist University Saturday by scoring one touchdown, passing for another and setting up a field goal with his aerials.

DALLAS (AP)—Statistics of the Baylor-Southern Methodist football game:

	BAYLOR	SMU
First downs	19	15
Rushing yardage	230	188
Passing yardage	54	78
Passes	6-12	7-16
Passes intercepted by	2	1
Punts	4-43.0	5-42.8
Fumbles lost	1	2
Yards penalized	24	45

Trull needed 12 pass conpletions to break the conference record of 112 but he got only six in 11 attempts. However, Baylor didn't pass as it plowed through the thin Southern Methodist line.

Trull gained 37 yards in a 64-yard drive for a touchdown the first time Baylor had the ball. He made the score with a 2-yard blast.

Baylor got a field goal opening the second period with a Trull pass to James Rust for 14 yards setting it up. Carl Choate booted it from the SMU 31.

Southern Methodist scored late in the period after Martin Cude intercepted a Trull pass on the Baylor 35. Tom Sherwin scored the touchdown with a 17-yard run around end.

But Baylor got another touchdown as soon as it took the kickoff. Rolling 67 yards with a Trull pass to Ronnie Goodwin for 17 yards the big punch. Trull ran 11 yards to set the ball on the Southern Methodist 12 and from there he threw to Rust in the end zone for the touchdown.

Weaver Regains Lead In Carling

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) —Bert Weaver, who fired a course record 65 on opening day, put together a three-under-par 68 in Saturday's third round to move one stroke in front in the $10,000 Carling Open Golf Tournament.

The 30-year-old golfer from Edgewater Beach, Miss., had a three-round total of 206 heading into the final round of play Sunday.

Soft-spoken Bo Wininger of Odessa, Tex., who alternates between golfing and hunting, tied Weaver's two-day-old record for the Rio Pinar course Saturday with a 65 to move into second place at 207.

The leader after the second round, Ted Kroll, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. fired a steady par 71 to take third place at 208.

Bunched in a three-way tie at 209 were Rex Baxter Jr., Amarillo, Tex., Dow Finsterwald, Tequesta, Fla., and Paul Bondeson, Northbrook, Ill. One stroke back at 210 were Jay Hebert, Miami, and Don Fairfield, Perdido Bay, Fla.

The field was cut to 66 pros Saturday with 219 as the cutoff score. One of those failing to survive the cut was Ed Furgol who had 220.

The 66 pros and 10 amateurs will play the final 18 holes Sunday.

"I didn't hit the ball as good Saturday as I did the first day, but this was one of those putt days," Weaver said.

Weaver, who is shooting for his first PGA tour victory, carded six birdies, one bogey and one double-bogey. He one-putted eight greens and used 28 putts.

He scored his double-bogey on the fifth when he tried to cut a corner with his tee shot and got a bad lie. His second shot went into a trap and he failed to get out of it on his third shot. When he got on the green, he missed an eight-foot putt.

Oregon Topped By Oregon State

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — Oregon State spotted Oregon a 17-6 half time lead, then rallied behind the brilliant quarterbacking of Terry Baker for a 20-17 victory Saturday.

Oregon State completed its season with six straight victories and a 8-2 record. Baker passed for two touchdowns—both on fourth down—but fell short of the yardage needed for a one-season collegiate total offense mark.

He needed 242 yards in his final collegiate game, but made only 117 for 4,980 yards.

His 3-yard scoring pass to Vern Burke on the first play of the second period gave Burke a collegiate record for passes caught in a season.

Penn State Gets Bowl Invitation After 16-0 Win

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Penn State earned a Gator Bowl invitation today on record-breaking performance by quarterback Pete Liske who paced the Nittany Lions to a 16-0 victory over Pitt.

The Lions, champions of the Jacksonville classic last year with a 30-15 victory over Georgia Tech, will vote on a return trip Monday.

Should the Lions accept, it will be their fourth consecutive bowl appearance.

Liske shattered two Penn State records for total offense and passing yardage in a single season while leading the Lions to their ninth victory in 10 games.

Two of Liske's passes went for touchdowns—one a 56-yarder to Roger Kochman in the third period and the other went 18 yards to halfback Al Gursky in the final quarter. A 36-yard field goal in the second quarter by Ron Coates rounded out the victors' scoring.

Pitt, finishing with a 5-5 record, came through with a strong first half against their heavily favored intrastate rivals but wilted in the last two periods.

The Panthers started quickly, driving to the Lions' nine but halfback Bill Bodle fumbled on a third down play and Kochman recovered for State to end the threat midway in the opening quarter.

Inspired Illinois Upsets Rugged Michigan State

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI)—Mike Taliaferro fired a 31-yard touchdown pass to Jim Warren in the second period and lowly but inspired Illinois hung on for a 7-6 upset over rugged Michigan State Saturday.

Illinois, winding up a dismal Big Ten season, flashed its spark of brilliance when Greg Schumacher fell on a Spartan punt on Michigan State's 31.

Taliaferro, playing what may have been his greatest game, lofted his pass to halfback Warren on the very next play. Warren took it on the 20 and wasn't even touched as he sprinted into the end zone.

Jim Plankenhorn kicked what proved to be the winning extra point.

Late in the second quarter, Michigan State drove 54 yards for its touchdown with left halfback Sherman Lewis slanting over from 3 yards out.

Woodson Leads Hoosiers In

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—Marv Woodson, a brilliant Negro halfback from Mississippi, carried an intercepted pass 92 yards Saturday for a touchdown that gave Indiana a 12-7 upset victory over Purdue for the Old Oaken Bucket.

It was Indiana's first Big Ten Conference victory since 1959 and its first over Purdue since 1947.

The Hoosiers got their other six points on two field goals by Luke George, a 28-yarder in the first quarter and a 23-yarder in the second.

Purdue scored in the first eight minutes of the game, fullback Roy Walker going the last 10 yards in a 49-yard drive started by a pass interception. Skip Ohl, whose Big Ten one-game field goal record was tied by George, converted the extra point and the Boilermakers never scored again.

Red China Reaps Cold War Gains

By JAMES D. WHITE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Chinese moves to halt their onslaught against India are overshadowed by the basic question of why they started the invasion in the first place.

Why did they invade India at a time when world communism was being shaken by their bitter attacks on its nominal leader, Soviet Premier Khrushchev, as an appeaser of capitalist imperialism because he agreed to back down in Cuba and withdraw Soviet missiles from the Western Hemisphere?

Was all this a reckless Chinese rule-or-ruin thrust based on desperation?

The Chinese never operate recklessly on the strategic level. Their tactics may appear exceedingly daring, but their reasoning in the end always turns out to be firmly rooted in history as they understand it and relevant to the future as they visualize it.

The Chinese have found the Soviet-American cold war a profitable thing and give no evidence of wishing it to end in the foreseeable future. In the uproar of the cold war they have perfected their technique of inciting and promoting revolutions among the underfed and unhappy masses of new, underdeveloped nations.

Their method works best among the uncertainties and perils of the cold war. It keeps everybody on edge. It polarizes international politics. It makes the Soviet Union need China more. It makes it easier to keep things stirred up and guided along planes of hostility instead of coexistence. Above all, the cold war hinders anyone trying to help decisively the new, underdeveloped nations which Peking seeks most to influence herself.

The longer the cold war saps the economic strength of the Soviet Union and America, East and West, protagonist and neutral alike, the stronger China can become in the meantime and the better her chance of influencing any peace that eventually may emerge.

If this much is granted, then it is logical that Peking should view as undesirable any prospective ending or easing of the cold war at this time.

Peking always has opposed coexistence, while giving it lip-service. When coexistence talk threatened to break China's cold war rice bowl, China acted. Her mouthpieces began denouncing Khrushchev, at first obliquely but with growing directness. Peking proclaimed itself the proper leader for revolutions in countries like Cuba. Then the Chinese invade India.

What does all this mean? A reasonable hypothesis could run as follows: China hopes first to avert altogether any real Soviet-American rapprochement. If this proves impractical, the Chinese hope to slow it down or in the end influence it in their favor. And, if the cold war must end, China wants to be in the best possible bargaining position at the council tables where any settlements are hammered out.

The Chinese never have disagreed with the common claim that no agreement to disarm can be worth the paper it is written on unless China is signatory. For that signature there will be a price, and China naturally intends to set it rather than accept someone else's offer.

In this light Chinese tactics fall into pattern as a series of steps toward an improved bargaining posture—advanced positions from which China can fall back in seeming reasonableness if she must.

This is particularly true of the Indian adventure, where Red China never has recognized the McMahon Line neither has Nationalist China.

Another factor is Tibet itself. Whether one agrees with China's historic claim to suzerainty over this very high and difficult tableland, the fact remains that the Chinese have been invaded from Tibet in the past and supposedly want to guard against a recurrence.

This explains why they are not withdrawing from Ladakh, which controls the trade routes from India and the Soviet Union into Tibet.

Particularly from the Soviet Union. The Chinese invaded Tibet in 1950 after Moscow announced it was sending a scientific expedition there. It never arrived. Without consulting Moscow, the Chinese got there first.

So China is unlikely to neglect the Tibetan flank of her 6,000-mile long frontier with the Soviet Union, regardless of whether war or peace is ahead.

Cuba Begins Demobilizing Militia Units

HAVANA (UPI)— Cuba Saturday began demobilizing its crisis-activated militia units, called to arms Oct. 22 just before President Kennedy's blockade speech.

Caravans of trucks loaded with grimy, bearded militiamen poured into hometowns all over the island Friday night and Saturday. In most cities stay-at-home revolutionary organizations staged welcome parades and demonstrations.

Official communications media exhorted the returning militiamen to waste no time returning to the production front "so that battle also can be won."

In a revolution which proliferates slogans, Saturday's was: "From the trenches to the production front."

The National Sugar Commission announced the 1963 harvest will begin between the tenth and fifteenth of next month. Production goals were not announced. Automatic canecutters will be widely used this year for the first time on an experimental basis.

Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, Agrarian reform chief, announced the government will buy 150,000 roasting pigs from Cuban farmers to distribute to stores for Christmas sales, paying forty cents a pound for them. "Lechon" or roast pig is the traditional Christmas delicacy in Cuba, and has been very scarce since 1959.

Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan was officially reported visiting people's farms Saturday in eastern most Oriente Province where the U. S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay is located.

Mikoyan completed his third full week in Cuba and there was no indication of when he will go home. He held two more formal consultations with Prime Minister Fidel Castro and other Cuban leaders during the week, for a total of six since his arrival here Nov. 3.

In addition he has spent hours touring the island with Castro, and, presumably, their talks went on informally. Castro has said the talks were to "settle differences" between the two governments over Russia's decision to strip its rocket sites.

The government-controlled press reported Mikoyan flew to the Oriente capital of Santiago Friday with Militia Commandant Emilio Aragones, where he was received by Armed Forces Minister Raul Castro, who maintains his headquarters there.

Red China Reaps Cold War Gains

By JAMES D. WHITE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Chinese moves to halt their onslaught against India are overshadowed by the basic question of why they started the invasion in the first place.

Why did they invade India at a time when world communism was being shaken by their bitter attacks on its nominal leader, Soviet Premier Khrushchev, as an appeaser of capitalist imperialism because he agreed to back down in Cuba and withdraw Soviet missiles from the Western Hemisphere?

Was all this a reckless Chinese rule-or-ruin thrust based on desperation?

The Chinese never operate recklessly on the strategic level. Their tactics may appear exceedingly daring, but their reasoning in the end always turns out to be firmly rooted in history as they understand it and relevant to the future as they visualize it.

The Chinese have found the Soviet-American cold war a profitable thing and give no evidence of wishing it to end in the foreseeable future. In the uproar of the cold war they have perfected their technique of inciting and promoting revolutions among the underfed and unhappy masses of new, underdeveloped nations.

Their method works best among the uncertainties and perils of the cold war. It keeps everybody on edge. It polarizes international politics. It makes the Soviet Union need China more. It makes it easier to keep things stirred up and guided along planes of hostility instead of coexistence. Above all, the cold war hinders anyone trying to help decisively the new, underdeveloped nations which Peking seeks most to influence herself.

The longer the cold war saps the economic strength of the Soviet Union and America, East and West, protagonist and neutral alike, the stronger China can become in the meantime and the better her chance of influencing any peace that eventually may emerge.

If this much is granted, then it is logical that Peking should view as undesirable any prospective ending or easing of the cold war at this time.

Peking always has opposed coexistence, while giving it lip-service. When coexistence talk threatened to break China's cold war rice bowl, China acted. Her mouthpieces began denouncing Khrushchev, at first obliquely but with growing directness. Peking proclaimed itself the proper leader for revolutions in countries like Cuba. Then the Chinese invade India.

What does all this mean? A reasonable hypothesis could run as follows: China hopes first to avert altogether any real Soviet-American rapprochement. If this proves impractical, the Chinese hope to slow it down or in the end influence it in their favor. And, if the cold war must end, China wants to be in the best possible bargaining position at the council tables where any settlements are hammered out.

The Chinese never have disagreed with the common claim that no agreement to disarm can be worth the paper it is written on unless China is signatory. For that signature there will be a price, and China naturally intends to set it rather than accept someone else's offer.

In this light Chinese tactics fall into pattern as a series of steps toward an improved bargaining posture—advanced positions from which China can fall back in seeming reasonableness if she must.

This is particularly true of the Indian adventure, where Red China never has recognized the McMahon Line neither has Nationalist China.

Another factor is Tibet itself. Whether one agrees with China's historic claim to suzerainty over this very high and difficult tableland, the fact remains that the Chinese have been invaded from Tibet in the past and supposedly want to guard against a recurrence.

This explains why they are not withdrawing from Ladakh, which controls the trade routes from India and the Soviet Union into Tibet.

Particularly from the Soviet Union. The Chinese invaded Tibet in 1950 after Moscow announced it was sending a scientific expedition there. It never arrived. Without consulting Moscow, the Chinese got there first.

So China is unlikely to neglect the Tibetan flank of her 6,000-mile long frontier with the Soviet Union, regardless of whether war or peace is ahead.

Cuba Begins Demobilizing Militia Units

HAVANA (UPI)— Cuba Saturday began demobilizing its crisis-activated militia units, called to arms Oct. 22 just before President Kennedy's blockade speech.

Caravans of trucks loaded with grimy, bearded militiamen poured into hometowns all over the island Friday night and Saturday. In most cities stay-at-home revolutionary organizations staged welcome parades and demonstrations.

Official communications media exhorted the returning militiamen to waste no time returning to the production front "so that battle also can be won."

In a revolution which proliferates slogans, Saturday's was: "From the trenches to the production front."

The National Sugar Commission announced the 1963 harvest will begin between the tenth and fifteenth of next month. Production goals were not announced. Automatic canecutters will be widely used this year for the first time on an experimental basis.

Carlos Rafael Rodriguez, Agrarian reform chief, announced the government will buy 150,000 roasting pigs from Cuban farmers to distribute to stores for Christmas sales, paying forty cents a pound for them. "Lechon" or roast pig is the traditional Christmas delicacy in Cuba, and has been very scarce since 1959.

Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan was officially reported visiting people's farms Saturday in eastern most Oriente Province where the U. S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay is located.

Mikoyan completed his third full week in Cuba and there was no indication of when he will go home. He held two more formal consultations with Prime Minister Fidel Castro and other Cuban leaders during the week, for a total of six since his arrival here Nov. 3.

In addition he has spent hours touring the island with Castro, and, presumably, their talks went on informally. Castro has said the talks were to "settle differences" between the two governments over Russia's decision to strip its rocket sites.

The government-controlled press reported Mikoyan flew to the Oriente capital of Santiago Friday with Militia Commandant Emilio Aragones, where he was received by Armed Forces Minister Raul Castro, who maintains his headquarters there.

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

Want Ad Helps Hire Beatniks

Madison Avenue and suburbia are remote from the paths of the beatniks but the Ivy League bachelor and the dinner party hostess are curious. They hire beatniks to entertain at their parties.

Fred McDarrah first put an ad in the Greenwich Village "Village Voice" to make contact. Now he supplies beatniks for beatnik parties. The hired individual, male or female usually read their poetry at a beatnik masquerade. First time McDarrah explained it was a party, with free food and drink plus a fee, the answer was . . . "let's go man, let's go. Let's get some of that sugar."

WANT-AD WONDERS

Want Ad Helps Hire Beatniks

Madison Avenue and suburbia are remote from the paths of the beatniks but the Ivy League bachelor and the dinner party hostess are curious. They hire beatniks to entertain at their parties.

Fred McDarrah first put an ad in the Greenwich Village "Village Voice" to make contact. Now he supplies beatniks for beatnik parties. The hired individual, male or female usually read their poetry at a beatnik masquerade. First time McDarrah explained it was a party, with free food and drink plus a fee, the answer was . . . "let's go man, let's go. Let's get some of that sugar."

Committee Proposes Time Limits For Louisiana Voter Registration Tests

By JACK OWENS

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A new five-man special advisory committee on voter registration has proposed limits on the time allowed for tests and the frequency in which they can be taken.

And the Louisiana Sovereignty Commission has prepared a four-page pamphlet to be distributed through parish registrars containing answers to all the 43 different questions on the voter test forms.

These are the latest developments in Louisiana's program to simplify and make uniform the requirements set down for citizens to get privilege of voting.

Chairman Frank Voelker Jr. predicts the effect of the new voter registration program approved in Nov. 6 statewide balloting will be that more people than ever before will get on the voter rolls.

Louisiana's constitution requires the applicant to be "attached to the principles of the constitution of the United States and of the state of Louisiana" and to "understand the duties and obligations of citizenship under a Republican form of government."

Backers of the new program insist each applicant should demonstrate "some simple, basic, elemental knowledge" in this area.

Louisiana's long-standing constitutional test for voter applicants, administered by individual voter registrars, is under fire from the federal government. There have been numerous complaints it is administered unfairly and Negroes are subjected to discrimination. Under present law, it still stands.

Voelker claims the new program will permit qualified people to register and vote when they show their basic citizenship knowledge in a simplified test which takes the burdens off registrars.

The sovereignty chairman said in a speech earlier the honest, fair, realistic and legal test has one outstanding defect, if any, "it is too simple."

If the applicant will get a copy of the commission's mineographed pamphlet, Voelker said in an interview, he will know the answers to the questions, many of which he learned in elementary school.

And, Voelker added, if he can register in one parish he can register in any of the other 63 parishes in Louisiana.

Gov. Jimmie H. Davis named the special advisory committee to assist the state board of registration, charged with supervising the administration of voter laws. Davis heads the registration board. Other members are House Speaker Thomas Jewell and Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock.

The new special advisory group is made up of Sen. E. W. Gravolet Jr., Pointe-a-la-Hache; Rep. John Garrett, Claiborne Parish; Louis Nicklaus, an emplope of the registration board; A. P. (Tim) Gallinghouse, Orleans Parish boter registrar, and Voelker.

The group recommended to the registration board that each applicant be allowed 40 minutes to register, on grounds the test itself should take no more than 15, and be allowed to return after 10 days to try again.

The latter requirement would be modified to allow a return once within five days of the deadline for the books to close before an election.

The idea behind the limits is to prevent anyone from hamstringing the registration process by forms and tests, and to give a person another change.

Voter registrars reportedly will be required to display the sovereignty commission pamphlet on citizenship so citizens can get them and learn the information needed.

Passing On Hill Fatal To Three

BRADEN, Tenn. (UPI)—Three men were killed in the predawn hours Saturday when a car trying to pass another on a hill head-on into a third automobile, the Highway Patrol reported.

The dead were identified as Eugene Poindexter, 27, of Longtown; Oscar Wells, 18, of Mason; and Clarence Nelson, 22, of Mason, all Negroes.

Highway patrolman Jerry Simmons said the crash happened about 12:40 a.m. (CST) when a car driven by Poindexter attempted to overtake another on State Road 59 and collided with the car driven by Nelson. Wells was a passenger in Poindexter's car.

TRAIN HITS BUS

CAIRO (UPI) — Railway officials reported Thursday that 16 persons were killed and eight injured Wednesday when a speeding train struck a crowded bus at a grade crossing near Dessouk in the Nile Delta. The group recommended to the registration board that each applicant be allowed 40 minutes to register, on grounds the test itself should take no more than 15, and be allowed to return after 10 days to try again.

The latter requirement would be modified to allow a return once within five days of the deadline for the books to close before an election.

The idea behind the limits is to prevent anyone from hamstringing the registration process by forms and tests, and to give a person another change.

Voter registrars reportedly will be required to display the sovereignty commission pamphlet on citizenship so citizens can get them and learn the information needed.

Passing On Hill Fatal To Three

BRADEN, Tenn. (UPI)—Three men were killed in the predawn hours Saturday when a car trying to pass another on a hill head-on into a third automobile, the Highway Patrol reported.

The dead were identified as Eugene Poindexter, 27, of Longtown; Oscar Wells, 18, of Mason; and Clarence Nelson, 22, of Mason, all Negroes.

Highway patrolman Jerry Simmons said the crash happened about 12:40 a.m. (CST) when a car driven by Poindexter attempted to overtake another on State Road 59 and collided with the car driven by Nelson. Wells was a passenger in Poindexter's car.

TRAIN HITS BUS

CAIRO (UPI) — Railway officials reported Thursday that 16 persons were killed and eight injured Wednesday when a speeding train struck a crowded bus at a grade crossing near Dessouk in the Nile Delta. A number of bus passengers were reported missing. Officials said they apparently had been tossed into a nearby canal by the impact and drowned.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

Go get your husband's old shirts out of the rag bag . . . they are still good for something! Make individual clothes hampers out of them.

First, cut off the sleeves and then turn the shirt wrong side out. Stitch across the bottom of the shirt and sew up the slits where you cut off the sleeves. Trim excess material off where you have sewn it on the bottom.

Turn the shirt right side out and button it all the way up . . . except for the top two buttons.

Hang this on a sturdy coat hanger and put one in each bedroom closet. Instead of carrying soiled laundry from each bedroom to the hamper, throw the dirty clothes from each room into this laundry bag. On wash day, just gather the filled shirts and carry them to the laundry room.

Barbara

DEAR HELOISE:

We have discovered if we wet down the walls of our coal bin with a soft spray from our garden hose—that we do not get coal dust in our house or basement when coal is being shoveled into our bin. It works perfectly!

Use only a fine mist to dampen the walls so that dust will stick to it and settle.

DEAR HELOISE:

My brother was, and still is, a model hobbyist; therefore airplane glue on his blue jeans.

My mother removes this with acetone. This is an ingredient in some types of fingernail polish removers, or straight acetone may be purchased at any drugstore.

We use this product as anyone would use dry cleaning fluid . . . before ironing the jeans.

—Mrs. J. L. Carr

'Tis a good idea to check boxes brought home from the grocery store for roaches. These little critters just love glue.

One can spray, paint and fizz all he wants to, but there is no way to stop all this if you are going to bring 'em in and cultivate 'em.

I also check my bananas and fruits before putting them away. My husband works in a grocery store and he says he sees more roaches among and in the corrugated cardboard boxes than anywhere else in the store.

—Alice Monahan

CUTAWAY IN STYLE

DEAR HELOISE:

I was making sandwiches for my Sunday School Class and was trying to trim the bread and the knife kept tearing it. My scissors just happened to be lying on the cabinet and I thought of trimming the edges of the bread with the scissors.

I found that this is perfect! The edges came out smooth and I also sliced the sandwiches in quarters with the scissors.

—Jerean Franks

We just bought a new "extra long" bed. None of my sheets would fit it! Nor could we afford new sheets for the bed . . . this is something wives don't think of when buying new mattresses.

I finally decided to get all of my worn-out sheets, tear the end off and stitch the good part left from the old sheet to the bottom of the new sheet to lengthen it. Heloise, this is quite a saving.

—Ginny

DEAR HELOISE:

For tiny babies when we start bathing them in the kitchen sink . . . fill the hot water bottle and use it as a seat cushion! Baby won't slip this way.

A slippery, soapy baby is dangerous not only because he can slip under the water and get a snootful of water, but because he could hurt himself if he fell and hit the porcelain.

Gennie H.

SPECIAL SPOTTING

DEAR HELOISE:

When I have a spot on a dress and want special attention paid to it, I finally found out how to call it to the attention of the cleaners.

Pin a big safety pin on the spot with a note if the spot needs extra special attention. They can't fail to see this, and when removing the pin, will see the spot.

Mrs. H. Hatson

SWEEP ON WHEELS

DEAR HELOISE:

I made a garbage hauler for my wife from my child's skates! Remove the wheels and attach them to the bottom of any board the size of the garbage can. Leave the can sitting on the board with the wheels. Keeps the can off the garage floor and helps prevent rotting and rust.

When garbage day comes around, the little woman just has to push the hauler to the front sidewalk. No effort required.

I know you are a woman but please print this. Sure saves lots of henpecking for the men I know. I used to be bawled out many times for not getting the garbage out.

Husband

DEAR HELOISE:

I am no plumber but my brother-in-law is! I would like to pass along a secret that he revealed to us for our own use. (If he weren't my in-law, I wouldn't pass this on!)

When the drain or floor of the shower is filled with hairs—remove the top drain cover! Place a piece of plain steel wool under the drain and let it be thin. Be sure to do this or the water won't flow through.

When the drain doesn't empty quickly, just pick up that old cover, remove the steel wool and you'll see what's the trouble. It's those hairs! Replace the steel wool.

Be sure the steel wool pad is large enough and anchored so that it will not go down the drain.
